British Soldier Slain

BELFAST (CP)—Gunmen fired a volley of shots from a speeding car today as Northern Ireland's Orangemen celebrated 50 years of Protestant rule. A British soldier fell dead, three bullets in the back.

The soldier was on sentry duty in the Roman Catholic Falls Road area.

During the night, 10 bombs exploded in Northern Ireland by the Orangemen defying threats of terrorism began marching at daybreak in celebration of their ancestors' victory over the Catholics 281 years ago. The parades passed quietly.

Twenty thousand troops and police kept an iron security guard on the massive Orange Order testivities after a night of bombs and shooting in which nine civilians were wounded.

Security chiefs said parades in Belfast and other centres were perhaps slightly larger than last year, with an estimated total of 400 bands and more than 100,000 marchers on the routes.

Outgoing marches from town centres to fields and parks passed quietly. Troops took a rest before coming back to full alert in the event, when the Orangemen and their families headed home from a day of speech-making, drinking, picnics and children's sports.

The bombs began going off shortly after midnight Sunday night while thousands of Protestants were dancing around bonfires to celebrate the anniversary.

Four blasts shattered windows along Royal Avenue, Belfast's main street. The Protestants celebrating "the glorious 12th" in other parts of the capital ran for shelter and British troops moved in with armored cars.

Another bomb damaged a Belfast power station.

Seven persons were wounded by the blasts but police said their injuries were light. Six suspects were arrested.

BLAME IRA

Two more bombs damaged an empty Protestant hall and a power station in Irvinestown, 80 miles away. Two exploded in Pomeroy to the west and another went off in Newry near the border with the Irish Republic to the south.

Police and the British Army said the blasts were set by the outlawed Irish Republican Army, trying to provoke violence during the traditional celebration today. It marks the defeat of Catholic King James II by Protestant King William in the Battle of the Boyne in 1690.

Provinces Told To Increase Tax

18-YEAR-OLDS GET VOTE IN ONTARIO

TORONTO (CP)—Eighteen-year-olds will be able to vote in the next Ontario provincial and municipal elections, Premier William Davis announced today.

The reduction of the "age of accountability" to 18 from 21 also will give the young people the right to hold elective office and to sit on juries, the right to consume alcoholic beverages and the right to undertake legal and financial contracts.

Higher Exemptions Mean Less Money

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson told the provinces today they will have to raise their personal income tax rates in order to stay where they now are in the race for the taxpayer's dollar.

Under the new tax plan he proposed in his June 18 budget, larger personal exemptions and lower tax rates will be introduced by the federal government.

Narrows Over-All Tax Base

This considerably narrows the over-all tax base, and the 28 per-cent provincial tax that most provinces now charge will give them less money. Some provinces now charge more than 28 per cent, running up to 39 per cent in Manitoba.

Mr. Benson told a closed-door federal-provincial conference that in order to obtain the same share of income tax revenues, the 28-per-cent figure will have to be raised to 30 per cent. The top rate will have to go up to 42 per cent.

Mr. Benson said that while these higher rates will have to be written into provincial tax law to make it harmonize with the new federal income tax structure, they won't mean that taxpayers will have to pay out more or less in dollars.

Guarantee Same Revenues

In fact, he promised the provinces that if they bring their tax laws into harmony with the new federal plan, he will guarantee that they will receive the same revenues in 1972, 1973 and 1974 as they would receive if the old federal law was continued.

Manitoba immediately asked for a longer guarantee than three years. It said it stood to lose $50 million in five years.

Finance Minister Raymond Garneau of Quebec told the conference, moreover, that his advisers calculate the new rates would still yield the provinces "appreciably lower revenue." He said he would like to compare notes with Ottawa experts on their calculations.

Quebec is a special case, since it has opted out of most federal-provincial shared cost programs and administers its own provincial income tax. Mr. Benson welcomed an earlier statement by Mr. Garneau that the two might get together and harmonize their tax plans.

A. O. Aalborg, provincial treasurer of Alberta, released at the conference a letter to Mr. Benson objecting to the federal plan to tax capital gains. It was inconsistent, he said, with Canada's need to have more Canadians invest in Canadian development.

Ontario Also Voices Objection

Darcy McKeough, provincial treasurer of Ontario, said his experts haven't had time yet to digest the whole of the new tax plan, but he said the incentives for small business "is not as generous as we had hoped and believed."

Mr. McKeough, near the top of the speakers list for the opening session of the two-day conference, led other provincial finance ministers in criticizing as premature the federal government's withdrawal of the estate tax.

British Columbia is being represented at the conference by Gerald Bryson, deputy finance minister. Premier Bennett last week declined to release details of British Columbia's presentation to the conference.

'Withdraw Tax Gradually'

At least two provincial leaders—NDP Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan, and NDP Finance Minister Saul Cherniak of Manitoba—said they would object to Mr. Benson's withdrawal of the federal estate and gift tax next Jan. 1. They want the tax withdrawn gradually, over a period of years, since they get 75 per cent of the revenues from it in their provinces.

Benson listed the following new rates which would have to be applied by each province just to get the same revenues, with the existing rates, in percentages of the federal tax for comparison:

Newfoundland 35.5-33; Nova Scotia 30-28; Prince Edward Island 35.5-33; New Brunswick 41-38; Ontario 30-28; Manitoba 42-33.9; Saskatchewan 36.5-34; Alberta 35.5-33; British Columbia 30-28.

Pay Cuts Forced On M-B's Top 60

VANCOUVER (CP) — The top 60 executives of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., Canada's largest forestry company, have taken pay cuts of up to 10 per cent for the balance of 1971, Chairman J. V. Clyne said Sunday night.

"I cut everybody over $50,000 by 10 per cent and everybody in the $35,000 to $50,000 bracket by five per cent, effective July 1, to the end of the year," Mr. Clyne said in an interview, "and that includes my pay.

"It was important morally that this be done. I felt that when the shareholders were having their dividends cut that the management should do the same in the way of salaries.

"I don't want to give the impression that we are scared about the future because that isn't so. We are succeeding in holding our own. We have always run a tight ship; we don't have any superficiality."

In addition, the Vancouver-based company has eliminated its central engineering department of 25 persons, although the net layoffs from this move are not expected to be more than four.

FACING PROBLEMS

The pay cuts at MacMillan Bloedel are just part of a general tightening among the management and salaried staffs of British Columbia's major forest firms as they face continuing market problems for their products and declining profits.

Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd., with chronic financial problems over a number of years, has reduced its salaried personnel by 15 per cent in all operations during the last four weeks. An estimate of the number of people involved was not available Sunday night.

At least two other companies have allowed attrition to reduce administrative staff. Several other firms said that while there had been no pay of staff cuts that "things are very tight."

At Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., there was a small number of staff cuts in the spring but company officials could not say how many. In many cases, it meant that planned and even authorized additions to staffs, both hourly and salaried, were not made.

Richard C. Nelson, Crown Zellerbach executive vice-president, said the company had "taken a good hard look and we eliminated some positions—we were able to do a great deal of this by attrition."

A spokesman for B.C., Forest Products Ltd. said administrative jobs had been reduced by 20 through attrition. It is understood there have been no staff or pay cuts at Canadian Forest Products Ltd.

NEWS BRIEFS

Charges Faced

ANCHORAGE — Mike Haffenden of Vancouver, skipper of the 30-foot fishing vessel "All Star" today faced charges of violating American territorial waters. The craft was seized Friday while fishing near Coronation Island.

Body Recovered

NELSON B.C. (CP) — Divers recovered the body today of one of two residents of a commune who drowned Sunday in Slocan Lake in southeastern British Columbia. A team of divers found the body of Michael Gregory Peck, 24, in about 30 feet of water about 10 feet from shore. (See earlier story Page 3.)

Passenger Killed

HAVANA (Reuter) — A passenger was killed and three persons — including the two hijackers — were injured when a grenade exploded during an attempt to hijack a Cuban airliner, Cuba radio reported today.

Quake Hits Turkey

ANKARA (AP) — Several persons were injured and buildings were destroyed when an earthquake struck southeast Turkey late Sunday night, officials reported here today.

Firing Squad Kills Moroccan Rebels

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — The leaders of the attempt to overthrow King Hassan II were executed by firing squad at dawn today, Moroccan sources reported.

They said three generals and other officers were shot after giving authorities details of their plot.

It was not known whether the dozen or so senior officers said to have been involved in the plot all were executed.

King Hassan told a news conference Sunday that the officers who led the bloody military coup would all be dead by sundown tonight. The 42-year-old monarch named eight principal plotters including four generals and three colonels.

Hassan said Gen. Mohamed Medhoun, the head of his personal military staff, and three other generals named Mustapha, Bougrine and Hambou used 1,400 ignorant, drug-crazed cadets in an abortive attempt to liquidate him and the entire leadership of his regime.

Medbouh was accidentally killed by his own men during the attack at the king's summer palace on the Atlantic, 15 miles south of Rabat.

At least 30 of the guests at the king's 42nd birthday party were killed, including the country's only field marshal, three generals, the minister of tourism, the president of the Supreme Court, Belgian Ambassador Marcel Duprat, and other officers and officials.

About 150 rebels died in a seven-hour battle for the Rabat radio station. The insurgents seized the radio, announced the king's death and proclaimed a revolutionary republic. But forces loyal to the king finally overcame the rebellion.

The four rebel generals named by the king were not known to have any leftist affiliations. Medbouh became Hassan's closest military adviser in 1963, when he betrayed a plot in which he said he pretended to take part.

BLUMSCHEIN SHARES AIR RACE PRIZE

The winner of the London to Victoria Centennial air race, Joe Blumschein of Germany, will donate $5,000 of his $60,000 winnings to be distributed "at the discretion" of Premier Bennett and Prime Minister Trudeau.

"No matter how prosperous a nation is, there are always still people who need help," he said Saturday night after receiving two trophies and cheques totalling $60,000.

Heroin Crisis Not Doctors Fault: MD

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark displayed a "lack of knowledge" about how doctors practise medicine when he attacked them for their reluctance to treat heroin addicts, Dr. W. G. McClure said today.

McClure, registrar of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in B.C., was commenting on weekend criticism by Loffmark of doctors "who refuse to treat heroin addicts."

Loffmark said doctors "are not doing their public duty" and that "they don't like to have them (addicts) around their offices."

The minister was responding to an earlier complaint by McClure that the provincial government has been doing nothing to meet a growing heroin addiction crisis in B.C.

McClure said today he doesn't want to get into a running public battle with Loffmark but said the minister "betrays a lack of knowledge about how doctors practise."

"The point I have tried to make is that these people can't be treated like an ordinary patient," McClure said. Many doctors who have tried treating addicts on their own have had "nothing but grief," including difficulties with narcotics control agencies when addicts exploit a number of doctors to get heavy drug prescriptions.

PROPER SUPPORT

Until a central registry is established with proper support programs on a provincial basis, doctors will be frustrated in efforts to treat addicts, McClure said.

Dr. Scott Wallace, Social Credit MLA for Oak Bay, said the necessity of seeing an addict every day would "completely disorganize" a general practitioner's practice.

The special purpose clinic approach is needed in treating addicts, Wallace said.

WALKOUT FACES AIRLINE

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada faces a possible shutdown in the near future if its mechanics and ground personnel vote tonight for a study session.

George Daley, vice-president of the Montreal local of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, said today it is "almost certain" that members will vote for a study session.

The starting time and duration of such a walkout would be decided at the meeting beginning at 8 p.m., he said.

Similar meetings were to be held tonight in Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Meanwhile, Air Canada said it would continue normal operations as long as possible.

Victoria airport will not be affected at this stage, a spokesman said.

Debate Resumes

QUEBEC (CP) — The national assembly was to resume debate today on the government's James Bay development legislation and Premier Robert Bourassa has vowed to continue legislature sitting until the bill is adopted.

BAD WEATHER TO END (MAYBE)

The weather pattern which has brought unsummery clouds and cool temperatures to Victoria has broken, giving grounds for cautious optimism, the weatherman said today.

"The situation is easing, but there's still an awful lot of dirty weather over B.C. and I'm a little leery about the whole thing," said Allan McQuarrie of the dominion weather office.

A huge low-pressure trough stretching in an east-west line over southern Vancouver Island has split, carrying rain storms east to the Prairies and west over the Pacific.

Despite this first break in the stubborn over-all pattern, more cloud is expected Tuesday and Wednesday. It was expected to be clear tonight.

MORE PEOPLE AND LESS FOOD

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — The world population will double by the year 2004 at the present rate of growth yet food production has already declined on a per capita basis, the United Nations reported Sunday.

The population total for mid-1969 was put at 3,561 billion. This represented a two-per-cent growth rate which would take the figure to seven billion by the end of this century.

WILSON GETS SUPPORT IN OPPOSING ECM BID

Times News Services

LONDON — Opposition Leader Harold Wilson now has a majority in his "shadow cabinet" opposed to Britain entering the Common Market on the present terms, political commentators reported during the weekend.

The development has been brought about by a change of opinion by two leading members, said David Wood, political correspondent of The Times. They are Denis Healey, shadow foreign secretary, and Anthony Crosland, shadow minister for the environment.

Healey based his change of view on Wilson's allegation that the government's 20,000-word white paper suppressed the total cost of entry, particularly in regard to food, The Times said.

Crosland was seen as supporting Wilson's insistence on the importance of keeping the Labor party united.

Healey disclosed in a television interview Sunday night that he has swung a long way since the white paper was published last Wednesday.

An another market development, Prime Minister Heath said he does not believe that British entry will drive Canada deeper into the United States orbit.

He told reporters the impression he got from talks with Prime Minister Trudeau is that Ottawa will seek widest international relations with China, Soviet Union and others.

U.S. Peace Bid In Mideast Snuffed Out?

CAIRO (WP) — A single sentence by the Egyptian government spokesman Sunday may have spelled the end of the American peace initiative in the Middle East.

In a statement breaking the five-day silence on the visit here of Donald Bergus, chief U.S. diplomat to Egypt, and Michael Sterner, state department expert on Egyptian affairs, spokesman Tahsin Bashir said, "The American officials did not bring anything new." He would not elaborate, and the U.S. diplomatic mission, contacted later, had no comment.

TWO CHOICES

The government statement can be interpreted either as confirming the earlier Egyptian attitude that the Rogers peace bid is dead, or as a strong hint to the two envoys that, if they have anything new to propose, they had better do it now. But as the state department has repeatedly emphasized, Bergus and Sterner are not carrying any new proposals.

Their mission has been to talk about procedures and to discover if Cairo could be made to give way on its demand that any interim peace agreement must contain a guarantee of eventual withdrawal by Israel from all occupied Arab territory. In the Egyptian view, if the U.S. is looking for any "give," it should address itself rather to Tel Aviv.

Egyptian officials are fond of citing a reported exchange between President Anwar Sadat and Secretary of State William P. Rogers during the latter's visit there in May. After they had discussed at length Egyptian willingness to make a peace agreement, Sadat is said to have asked Rogers, "Do you think there is anything more we can give?"

"No," Rogers is quoted as replying.

WHY THE CHANGE

Egyptians now ask why, if he then thought Egypt had made all possible concessions, Rogers is now looking for a concession on what is a fundamental principle for Egypt: Full implementation of the United Nations Security Council resolution of 1967 calling on Israel to abandon the Arab land. Egypt had already agreed to sign a peace agreement with Israel and recognize her as a sovereign state, provided there was full restitution of the seized territory, they point out.

Neither the Egyptian government nor the U.S. embassy is yet willing to say whether or not the U.S. envoys have seen President Sadat. But they must have had some high-level talks since a news blackout was imposed after their meeting Tuesday with Foreign Affairs Minister of State Mohamed Hafez Ismail. Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad is away on an East European tour.

In any case it is certain that Sunday's terse statement by the official spokesman had President Sadat's full approval.

Political observers here now feel that Rogers' quiet diplomacy has failed, and the U.S. peace bid is dead. The next steps for Cairo, it is forecast, will be to step up its campaign to isolate the U.S. on the Israeli withdrawal issue, and to get the whole matter returned to the U.N.

NDP Letter Protests Atom Tests

Saanich and the Islands New Democratic Party Constituency Association has sent a letter to President Pompidou of France protesting that country's 1971 nuclear test program.

The association decided to write the French leader after learning "with dismay" of the explosion of an atomic device in the air June 5.

Concerned with nuclear pollution and the resultant dangers to health, members asked the European country to lead the way to a ban on all such testing by all countries.

They "earnestly implored" the French government to reconsider the program. The association has also protested the U.S. underground test program in the Aleutian islands.

300,000 CHEER PIERRE ON HORSE

CALGARY (CP) — A roaring, laughing, yahooing western crowd estimated at 300,000 cheered Prime Minister Trudeau today as he ambled through downtown streets on horseback in the Stampede parade.

In a white stetson and western outfit provided by Stampede officials, the prime minister was greeted by swelling applause and friendly yells from the sidewalks, bleachers, windows and rooftops along the two-mile route to the reviewing stand. (See also Page 6.)

. . . PAY CUTS FORCED

Ltd., a spokesman said that cuts were made in research and engineering about three years ago and that further cuts in salaried staff had not been necessary in the present "tough circumstances." No cuts in salaries have been made.

Directors of MacMillan Bloedel in April cut out the normal 25-cent second-quarter dividend, the first time the company had omitted this payout.

Profits in the first quarter fell sharply to $1.4 million or seven cents per share from $7.2 million for the same period of 1970.

Mr. Clyne said he was not at liberty to reveal the company's profit position for the three months ended June 30. He said the matter of the dividend for the third quarter will be decided in about two weeks.

He said there were hopes that profits might turn up in the second half of 1971, particularly in the last quarter of the year.

"Generally speaking for the industry there is going to be an improvement for the rest of the year," he said.

"I think, looking at the lumber market and at the outlook for newsprint, that there will be better prospects for the rest of the year.

"The improvement is starting now, but it will not be the same for all companies."

OUTLOOK BAD

Mr. Clyne described the outlook for pulp sales as "lousy," and said prices have dropped 10 to 15 per cent from the level of about $160 per ton for bleached kraft pulp which had been obtained a year ago.

"In fact, the market in Europe is so sloppy it is really hard to say what the prices are."

Mr. Clyne said he thought the economic recession in North America was "bottoming out."

"It has been a recession far deeper than anyone ever thought it was going to be. We have to remember that it is going to be a gradual return to normal. My estimate is about two years."

Observers Welcome

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police forces in British Columbia are reported to have responded favorably to an offer from the B.C. Civil Liberties Association to provide impartial observers or mediators to help avert possible confrontations between transient youth and local authorities. Dave Robertson, secretary of the association, says replies have been received saying authorities will consider the services if the need arise.

Victoria Press Official Retires

The assistant to the general manager of Victoria Press Ltd., Joseph Stephen, has retired.

SOOKE CHILDREN GOOD LOGGERS

By MAUREEN DUFFUS

The children of Sooke are easily distinguishable from visiting children on All-Sooke day.

For one thing, local children are casually at ease balancing on the practice birling log in Sooke Community Association Park.

Visiting children tumble off on the first roll.

"We've never had a broken leg yet, though" Mrs. Annie Akerman of Sooke said, just as another novice bit the dust.

AXE THROWERS

Sooke children throw axes nonchalantly, too.

Half a dozen little boys, between 7 and 12, were flipping man-sized axes at tree-slice targets in the performing ring, while a sawing competition was in progress.

"Sooke parents must have strong nervers," a mother remarked.

Non-Sooke families considered the show great spectator sport.

Four-year-old Robbie Pelton of Sidney had been waiting impatiently for days "to see the lumberjacks."

He was there with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Pelton and his young brother, Carl, "the flower child" who was more interested in dandelions on the grassy bank where the family spent most of the day.

RIGHT ON TOP

It was more than spectator sport for seven-year-old Jamie Duffus, who had the good fortune to be at the top of the ferris wheel when it broke down.

Seat-belted in the same chair with Jamie was one of the prettiest little girls at the show, Dawn-Marie Williamson, 3½ years old.

Interviewed after their adventure, the young couple said they weren't afraid.

"We talked about things like climbing all around and rescuing everybody," they said.

Dawn Marie, who was wearing a pink rain hat and pant suit straight out of junior Vogue, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Williamson, 2545 Asquith.

Down from Port Alberni were Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Webster with their two little girls in blue, Tracy, 4 and Janice, 2.

The girls didn't win any of the children's races — the handicapping system was slightly haphazard due to last minute contestants raising the numbers in some races to nearly 5. They liked watching the chokerman's races, though, especially the exciting bit when two contestants collided and one went into the pond with a splendid splash.

Kevin Winia, six, son of Mr. and Mrs. Siemon Winia of Victoria, spoke for almost all the spectators:

"I like it best when the men go up those big poles."

Adults as well as children agree that Sooke has a great thing going for it at the annual competitions.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Jay of Toronto were there with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jay of Victoria.

"I've been looking forward to this more than the Calgary Stampede," said Jay Senior.

Top all-around logger Earl Marcellus, a forestry student at the University of Washington, agreed.

"It's a really good show," he sais as he watched his fiance, Linda Burgess of Leavenworth, Washington, practice for the ladies' log rolling event.

"It's one of the top three in North America," said Marcellus, who has competed in similar shows across the continent.

As for the barbecued salmon, it got the highest of praise as usual.

Perverse Winds Hold Up Thunderbird Race Start

Forty-three boats in the Thunderbird world championships were still waiting to start the first race early this afternoon.

And the weatherman was offering little encouragement in the way of breezy forecasts.

Race officials had set a course in Haro Strait earlier in the morning, hoping to take advantage of the promised westerlies.

They didn't come and the fleet moved back to the original course off the Victoria waterfront. The wind was patchy there, southeasterlies never rising above six knots.

Out-of-town competitors were frustrated Sunday when they sailed a tune-up race which had to be shortened for lack of wind.

FIRST TUSSLE

For some of them who were unable to finish it was their first tussle with strong local tides.

But one visiting crew was able to meet the challenge.

Tony Redstone of Sydney, Australia, was second over the finish line, sailing Dave Carere's Chinook. In first place was local sailor John Malleson on Sunday, another Victoria competitor, Dave Anstey finishing third in Hussy II.

In the race, which does not count for the world series, another visitor was able to show the transom to the rest of the fleet, Harry "Tanker" Jones of Toronto skippered his Totem Too to first place around the windward mark.

Gene Boudreau, a pharmacist from Shediac, N.B., and his crew are the Canadians travelling the farthest to make the world series. With him are Reg Roy and Emile Cormier, all of whom expressed astonishment at the tides.

Boudreau said Sunday, "I've never seen anything like it. Here we were going like crazy-backwards!"

The New Brunswick crew is using Den Perry's Tahola for the races and Perry is along to round out the crew.

Boudreau says he's not hoping for much success but came here to get some competition. There are only four Thunderbirds at the Shediac Bay Yacht Club.

Both he and Roy, though, are experienced sailors, having earned their spurs in Snipe competition.

Boudreau will ger his wish.

The field of 43 boats competing in this year's world series is the largest one-design fleet to ever compete in these waters.

Two Lost After Canoe Flips

NELSON (CP) — A five-day climbing expedition to Devil's Gulch ended in tragedy Saturday for four climbers returning home by canoe across Slocan Lake. Two men, both landed immigrants from the United States, drowned when their canoe capsized. Two survivors swam to shore but one, a young girl, spent a long night frozen in fear to a narrow ledge 900 feet below highway 6 waiting for help.

The two men missing and presumed drowned by RCMP at New Denver are Michael Gregory Peak, 22, and Charles Madison Reed, 23. All four climbers were from a 10-member commune on Slocan Lake, 40 miles north of Nelson.

RCMP said the four climbers capsized their 17-foot aluminum canoe in the middle of Slocan Lake Saturday afternoon. The two survivors, Mark Maddox and an unidentified girl, swam to safety and began looking for help.

The girl went first taking a diagonal route across 1,400 feet of near vertical rock between the lake's shore and highway 6 at Cape Horn.

About halfway up the rock face the girl slipped and fell to a ledge below, breaking her leg. Hearing a scream, Maddox followed. Finding the girl suffering from severe shock and what appeared to be multiple leg fractures, he left the girl to go for help.

The climber reached the highway by 10 p.m. Saturday night and flagged down a passing motorist and within an hour RCMP reached the area, known as Cape Horn.

Unable to move the girl from her dangerous perch, RCMP officers crawled to the ledge and stayed with the shock numbed girl through the night.

At dawn five rescue climbers from the Kootenay mountaineering and mountain rescue were brought to the scene and they rescued the injured girl by 10 a.m. Sunday.

Police said Sunday night she is recovering satisfactorily in Arrow Lakes hospital at Nakusp.

Church Takes Action

PANAMA (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church has excommunicated all persons involved in the disappearance of Rev. Hector Gallego, a Colombian priest who worked in a poverty-ridden district in the highlands of central Panama. The excommunication was announced by Father Gallego's superior, Bishop Martin Legarra of the Vergauas Diocese. Father Gallego apparently was kidnapped by two men June 9.

First Rain Since 1934 Ends Dry Tradition of All-Sooke Day

By IAN HAMILTON

When Phil Scott of Barrington, N.S., does his thing it's as easy as falling off a long.

For everyone else, that is.

Opponents of the 23-year-old log birler are as clean as sportsmen anywhere because they almost always end up taking quick baths.

After an unusually long dance number on a log Saturday at All Sooke Day, Scott had just dunked Jerry Phillips of walla Walla, Wash. to win the competition yet another time when he noticed two Mr. Cleans eyeing his dry clothes.

Splash!

HOW'S IT FEEL?

"How's it feel, champ?" the loggers asked Scott after dumping him in the water.

"Hey, all your money's going rusty."

Pulling himself out of the logging pool and fishing a soggy $100 bill out of his back pocket — his prize money — he had a lot of sympathizers in the estimated crowd of 8,000.

That's because what has been described as the dry miracle of All Sooke Day came to an end, everybody else got wet for the first time since the annual event began in 1934.

It wasn't a heavy rain, however, and by the middle of the afternoon the sun had broken out to end the logging championships in clear weather.

Lawrie Wallace, deputy provincial secretary, opened the competitions in "the kind of liquid sunshine that has made this area famous for logging."

OFFICIAL SPORT

He told the crowd, which included many competitors from the London-Victoria, B.C. centennial air race, that logging sports are the official industry sport of the province.

With this in mind, numerous loggers competing in the 17 events are unhappy over the amount of publicity their sport is given in the media and the backing it receives from the logging industry.

Over 40 top-notch competitors from the U.S., Canada and Australia came to vie for trophies and prize money at Sooke, but the sport itself was on as many minds as individual glories.

"Logging companies only give the sport a pittance," said Brian Herlihy of Sooke. "And when 55 cents of every dollar earned in the province is earned by the forest industry, that's a mighty poor show."

ALL-ROUNDER

Herlihy was top all-around logger three straight years until beaten out by Earl Marcellus of Seattle for the title last year.

Marcellus, a 27-year-old University of Washington forestry student, agrees about the poor publicity and backing in Canada. He says the situation is even worse in many parts of the U.S.

Herlihy suffered two broken ribs when he fell off log at work two weeks ago but took the Canadian championship in the springboard chop. Marcellus took a third in springboard and a fourth in standing on "just one of those days."

Sooke's Ron Hartill won the best all-around logger trophy, with a first in the obstacle pole event and second in standing block, springboard chop, axe throwing and log-rolling.

Americans won two of three Canadian championship events as sanctioned by Canadian Loggers' Sports Association. Larry Downing of Castle Rock, Wash. took the chokerman's race and Bob Waibel of Sweet Home, Ore. came in first in the peavey log rolling event.

Remaining Class A winners were John Kasnik of Port Albernia, axe-throwing; Mervin Lentz of Cresswell, Ore., power saw bucking and log bucking; Scott, log birling, and Larry Downing, speed-climbing-event.

Downing, a 26-year-old from Albany, Ore., is world champion in speed-climbing, setting a record of 35 seconds flat on July 4 in Albany. Saturday he shot up the pole in a time of 41.2 seconds, still affected by a dislocated shoulder suffered during his record 100-foot climb last week.

In Class B events, Dan Herrling, 14, of Sooke won the log birling title while 12-year-old brother Paul claimed the Hartill trophy as the best young axe-thrower under 14.

Harold McKenzie of Victoria won the Class B log bucking trophy, while Al Marcellus of Seattle took a first in underhand chop and Robbie Carroll of Squamish the speed climb competition.

Two-Car Mishap Injures 6 People

A two-car head-on collision 5½ miles west of Sooke on Highway 14 late Saturday afternoon sent six people to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Ian Young, 15, of the Juan de Fuca Trailer Park near Sooke, is in fair condition with head and internal injuries suffered in the accident.

Sooke RCMP said Young was a passenger in a car driven by Patrick Lucas, 19, also of the trailer camp.

Lucas is in good condition with a concussion.

Hospital officials said the four persons in the second car are all in good condition.

SUFFERED CUTS

Richard Sorenson, 73, of Jordan River, suffered cuts as did Janice Neilson, 9.

Mrs. Sharon De Yaeger, 27, of Jordan River, received facial cuts and possible head injuries and Christine Neilson, 11, suffered a broken leg.

RCMP said the roads were dry and the skies overcast at the time of the crash about 5:30 p.m.

A Sooke ambulance, an RCMP cruiser and a passerby's station wagon transported the injured to St. Joseph's.

Police said two unidentified registered nurses and about eight other men and women assisted at the scene until the ambulance arrived.

Police identified the owner-driver of the station wagon as Tom Scolar, 2065 Oak Bay Ave.

Planning for People

WITH THE SIGNING OF AN agreement to buy the Ocean Cement Ltd. property on Wharf Street the city has moved another step along the way to converting the Inner Harbor area into an amenity which should be of lasting value. Much remains to be done and many decisions have yet to be reached before park-type development, along with waterfront promendades and revitalization of the region can be accomplished. There is, nevertheless, a heartening indication here of sensible planning for the future. Progress is being made.

The action comes at a time when increasing importance is being paid to the necessity of considering not only the aesthetic attractions so essential to urban living, but of devising means by which the social health of the community can be protected in the surge of urbanization.

The situation emerging as so many Canadians flock from rural areas to the cities is now being more completely understood. So also is the need for planning which can no longer overlook the psychological elements involved.

Most Canadians recognize the need to get away from the tensions of congested towns and modern urban life by trips, long or short, to the countryside. Insufficient attention, however, seems to be given to the complementary need to modify the urban environment in ways to overcome hidden human reactions to the conventional accompaniment of the movement to cities — overcrowding.

We recognize the obvious problems created by the high-rise — its elimination of the natural vistas, the congestion of traffic, the noxious fumes and noise. We are less aware of the abrasion that stems from too many people living too closely together.

Professor G. Jorgensen of Germany has placed the issue in perspective, suggesting that urbanized humanity could be on the verge of venting its rage against cramped living conditions, developing aggressiveness born of claustrophobic desperation. If the optimal space for humans has not been determined, a certain connection has been suggested between the density of some European populations and the wars that have occurred in this century — a line of thought exploited in Germany's demand for "living space" in its prelude to the last world war.

As the concept emerges from those who have given more than superficial study to the question, room to live takes on growing significance. Western society, moving away from rural regions and concentrating in the larger centres, must give thought to more than visually appealing civic design, must recognize that congestion creates abrasion and must address itself specifically to the task of keeping planning on the human scale.

There is more at stake than renovating such areas as the Inner Harbor to make it more attractive to tourists, more pleasing to the eye of the resident, important as these considerations are. Inherent in good planning is the cultivation of an area which can become a reservoir of shared values, a neighborhood in which children may acquire that sense of security which will prevent them from becoming rootless neurotics as they grow up.

Providing space for those necessarily confined in high-density shelter indoors is one of the objectives essential to satisfactory solution of the urban problem — space in promenades, in open views of the sky, hills and seascapes, in small park-like areas.

Victoria's opportunities in this respect are obvious. We are in a position to order new development along lines that meet the urbanization problem before that problem has reached unmanageable proportions.

A Missed Opportunity

THE accusation by Chester Ronning, the former Canadian diplomat, that Washington "bungled or sabotaged" the opportunity provided in a peace mission which he made to Hanoi in March, 1966, is another tragic footnote to the Pentagon Papers. Mr. Ronning claims that as a result of his trip to Hanoi the North Vietnamese premier made concessions which, if accepted by the United States, could have led to peace talks two years earlier than their actual opening in 1968. Reportedly, the North dropped its demand that the U.S. recognize the NLF and its call for withdrawal of all U.S. troops before negotiations could begin. Mr. Ronning conveyed Hanoi's terms verbally to U.S. Assistant Secretary of State William Bundy.

What happened then is a mystery. The published portion of the McNamara study has reference only to Mr. Ronning's second mission when Hanoi's position had hardened.

The impression given by the Seaborn missions in 1964 and 1965 that Canada was no more than a messenger boy has been given a new interpretation: this country's role was perhaps not simply looked down upon — it was disregarded when the message conveyed did not suit the needs of high officials in Washington. Middle power status, it seems, has even fewer rewards than had been thought.

Reaching Above the Pusher

WHEN THE ATTORNEY-GENeral of the United States announces that his country is trying to weed out Southeast Asian officials who are allowing narcotics to reach U.S. servicemen, his statement is important far beyond the United States. It is significant to Canada and to other Western nations, not only as a commentary on a Southeast Asian administration which holds jurisdiction over such officials, but because illegal use of narcotics seeps across borders. The neighbor state of one in which addiction becomes epidemic cannot be sure of immunity.

It is dismaying to hear Congressmen who have been to Vietnam charge members of that country's military personnel with trafficking, and accuse a Vietnamese general of being a "chief trafficker."

Some health authorities have contended that addiction, particularly to heroin, will claim a higher toll on American servicemen than will the Viet Cong. What will happen to those addicts once they return to this continent has been forecast. Most of them will become waste humans of no benefit to their country or to any other country to which they may move.

If there is one solace in the American statement on attempts to remove the cause of addiction, and its agents, it lies in the implication that the attack is going up to the top, not ceasing among the small fry so frequently the main target of suppression efforts.

"Excellent, Pierre. It's even more convincing than your unicycle act."

FROM QUEBEC

By PAUL WHITELAW

Can Loubier Stop a Drift to the PQ?

NO government can stay in power indefinitely. Eventually, public opinion — like the pendulum of a clock — will swing against a leader and his party. This political maxim points up the significance of the job held by Gabriel Loubier, the wealthy lawyer who was chosen last month to head the Union Nationale.

Whitelaw

Unless Mr. Loubier can restore his party as a significant force in Quebec politics, the way will have been left clear for the separatist Parti Quebecois to pick up the votes of people who become disenchanted with the Liberal government of Premier Robert Bourassa.

Even some of Mr. Loubier's supporters admit that he faces a difficult, if not impossible, task.

Close to Extinction

There was every indication prior to last month's lacklustre leadership convention that the party founded by the late Premier Maurice Duplessis in the early 1930s was close to extinction.

Little has changed in recent weeks, and it is difficult to foresee how Mr. Loubier could steer the UN to another victory. Quebec society apparently changed too much during the years of the "Quiet Revolution" — launched by the Liberals when they held power from 1960 to 1966 — for the rural conservatism of the Union Nationale to survive.

However, political observers will be watching in the coming year to see whether Mr. Loubier can resuscitate the party to the point where it could draw a significant number of opposition votes away from the other parties, such as the Parti Quebecois.

If Mr. Loubier doesn't succeed, the separatists could form the official opposition in the National Assembly after the next election, not expected until perhaps 1974. After that, they would be in a good position to assume power if the tide turned against Premier Bourassa.

The PQ, it must be remembered, won 23 per cent of the popular vote in the April, 1970, general election. Although the separatists gained only seven seats in the National Assembly, their fortunes could change with the sweeping electoral reforms that Mr. Bourassa has promised.

The Union Nationale, which was reduced from governing Canada's largest province to a lame opposition with a mere 17 deputies, drew a meagre 20 per cent of the popular vote.

The only other party in the volatile Quebec political arena at this time is the Ralliement des Creditistes. Under the leadership of skilled orator, Camil Samson, the Quebec wing of the party managed to pick up 13 seats in its first provincial election bid. However, it attracted only 12 per cent of the popular vote.

Despite efforts by Mr. Samson to widen the base of his party's support, it appears the Creditistes will remain a force to be reckoned with only in rural areas. In addition, the party stands to gain little from the electoral reform that would aid, mainly, the Parti Quebecois.

The new Union Nationale chief, who held the tourism portfolio in the government of former Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand, fits into the party's traditional mould.

Mr. Loubier has an easy manner which is popular with the party's rural power base, and both his opponents and friends agree that he is a pragmatist with few ideological commitments.

His keynote speech to the convention the night before the voting was notable for its vagueness. Mr. Loubier pledged to curb the "hot heads" who demonstrate in the streets, the strong nationalists, the centralizing federalists, and maintain individual liberty. He also promised increased emphasis on the problems of Quebec's various remote regions, while guaranteeing the urban centres will receive a more equitable share of the tax dollar.

Stand Unknown

Few reporters know where Mr. Loubier stands on many issues, if the UN chief even knows himself.

Mr. Loubier is also an experienced dispenser of patronage, who is owed many favors in many parts of the province.

With his background and personality, the new UN chief stands to gain most by trying to re-oil the once powerful Union Nationale machine and concentrating on attacks at the Bourassa "technocracy" that will go down well in the country and poorer districts of Montreal and Quebec City.

The die in which Mr. Lochier will try to cast his image, along with that of the party during the next few years, was — in many ways — set at the convention.

The 1,200 voting delegates selected Mr. Loubier by a narrow 23 votes over Marcell Masse, another former cabinet minister, whose appeal was based on the need to reshape the UN program in a way that would be appealing to the middle class and educated young in the cities.

FROM LENINGRAD

By CHARLES BARTLETT

Flavor From Canada for Red Bread

"WE sinful Communists want it all right here on earth," said the Mayor of Leningrad in an expansive burst of candor and propaganda. Alexander Sizov does not feel he is doing badly. Thanks to the creative genius of Peter the Great, he presides over a city of rich beauty. Thanks to the vigorous Russian spirit, the scars of the Nazi siege have been virtually erased. Thanks to socialist discipline, Leningrad is suffering few of the modern urban scourges.

Bartlett

"We still have problems," conceded the grizzled and engaging Commissar. But his concerns are not the concerns of American mayors. Migration to the city is controlled so that no one comes unless he has a job and a place to live. Crime, by Sizov's records, is astonishingly rare.

Freed of Police Fear

The unruly are not kept in line, the Mayor insisted, by fear of police power. The police carry no sticks or guns and are obliged to be gentle with their clients. There is no problem with a generation gap or with drugs. "Three years ago," he said, "we discovered drugs were being sold by a small group of people and we did away with them."

Quaffing a tonic he called "Russian balm," the Mayor touched lightly on problems he does have. More resources need to be diverted from the military to the consumers. Clothes are better and private cars are multiplying, but labor is inefficient and in short supply. Automation may be the only answer to future needs.

This was about as far as Sizov would go on the negative side. He was more at ease with maps of his plans for Leningrad, allusions to the misery which the Communists inherited here, and jibes at Western vilifiers of the Marxist system. He seemed to challenge the visitor to go out and find holes in his heaven.

The search was not easy for a three-day tourist. Peter built Leningrad to be Russia's link with Europe and, by any Western standard, the city is magnificently clean and its buildings are coated in the dignity of age. In bright weather, the girls looked cheerfully chic. The old drabness had been lifted from the store windows.

Revisiting the stores after a three-year lapse, it was plain that the state is holding to its premise that there must be constant improvement in the quality and diversity of available goods. There must be no lapse in the progress. The state is buying, for example, large quantities of Canadian wheat to raise the average quality of the domestic supply. The public cannot be disappointed in the taste of its bread.

The consumer chooses now among seven brands of cigarettes and three brands of champagne. He can choose among a widening range of television sets and list his name to buy one of five cars which cost (in ruble equivalents) between $2,600 and $10,000 American. His wait may be a long one because less than 2,500 cars of all models have been delivered for sale in Leningrad this year.

This is not yet a consumer's heaven, the prices are forbidding, and the savings are piling up against a better day. The young are composed and short-cropped, but some perceive a quiet apathy in their spirit. One blunt young man said, "I like Americans, Khruschev liked Americans, but our leaders now don't even like the Russians. They only like themselves."

The lid is on tight, so who knows what the sentiment really is? How far away is heaven?

Low Voice In Spain

By DAVID HUMPHREYS, from Madrid

CANADA is leaning on a network of 44 British consuls to meet the needs of Canadians living or travelling in Spain in ever-increasing numbers. Until this summer, the British accepted the additional load as a favor to an old friend, a sort of relic from colonial days. Under sheer weight of numbers this cosy arrangement is beginning to crack.

Humphreys

Following complaints, the Canadian government has agreed to pay the salary of an employee in the British consulate in Barcelona.

With that single exception the British continue to look after Canadian interests in three main categories, without pay. These are the needs of tourists, the needs of Canadians living in Spain and the occastional routine representation of Candian interests.

Several questions are raised. Can such an obviously makeship arrangement last? It is admittedly a case of those shouting loudest getting the attention. But why pay some and not others? Although one salary is being paid one staff member is not being assigned exclusively to Canadian matters. Canadian problems will be handled as they arise, along with the British.

Non-Canadian

One objection is that a non-Canadian cannot possibly represent Canadian interests as well as a Canadian. However sympathetic a British officer may be, he is not Canadian-trained for the task. Indeed, he may never have been to Canada. He cannot know the country he is representing.

There was no problem for the British when the need was for occasional representation, distributing a few pensions to Canadians living here and fielding problems from a few thousand tourists. But this year 140,000 tourists are expected and the rate of increase is 50 per cent or more a year.

The tourists force the issue, and not only here. In London, Canada House renovated the ground floor to cope with the influx. But it is appropriate that the problem should be raised in a different way here because Spain is one of several popular tourist countries where Canada does not have large representation.

The only consul for all of Spain and Morocco is at the embassy in Madrid. The tourists fan out through the country, with several favorite destinations, including Barcelona and Malaga.

To what lengths and expense should Ottawa go to help them when they get into trouble? Last year 50 Canadians went to Spanish jails and six remain in them, most for drug charges. A further 300 lost their passports. Others had accidents or driving problems.

Guilt Assumed

A Canadian in any difficulty in Madrid has a considerable advantage over one in trouble almost anywhere else. Spanish justice assumes one is guilty until proved innocent. And it can be harsh on strangers without legal aid. The consul in Madrid admits it is difficult to keep in touch with distant local authorities.

If he failed or was not able to notify the consul, a Canadian could be held incommunicado for some time. Yet even the presence of a consul does not insure justice. Through the error of suspicious police a young Canadian spent two months in a Madrid jail while his innocence was established.

It is not unusual for staff at some British consulates to spend ten hours a week on Canadian business. And this is while Canadians generally don't realize that the British can be approached. One consul said Canadians in his area didn't know they could register with his office.

One Canadian commented, "I haven't always been so charitable to the British but here I don't know how we'd get along without them." Nor is it likely that Canada will get along without them.

Man in Barcelona

Even allowing for a natural increase in travel, increased attention that might follow the establishment of a Canadian consulate, and the doing of useful things that now go undone, it may be difficult to justify full-time Canadian consulates. If present trends continue the case will be strong for one in Barcelona before long.

The Barcelona agreement suggests that it is time for Ottawa to review a natural arrangement which apparently developed from the days when Canada used the British courier service as routine. Perhaps what is required today is a more formal agreement covering shared facilities, with Ottawa paying for services rendered uniformly and receiving in return services of designated officers. In some cases a Canadian might be appointed to a British office. It would be Commonwealth co-operation in a most practical way.

It's Gin and Bingo as Usual at Tollygunge Club

By SIMON WINCHESTER
Manchester Guardian Weekly

CALCUTTA—It was the second day of the Monsoon Gymkhana down at the Tollygunge Club on Saturday.

The Bath Plate and the Ascot Plate had been run, and Bob Wright, the chief steward, was presenting the Weedon Challenge Cup to a fresh-faced girl with a county accent and muddy jodhpurs.

David Nicoll, an executive from Angus, patted his wife's mount, Fair Go, as it trotted to the start of the last race of the day, the Cawnpore Scurry.

A scurry it was. A quick 700 yard dash through the heat, some spirited cheering from the members' enclosure, and Mrs. Nicoll was home, a good four lengths ahead of Mr. Prendergast on board Marco, the polo club's entry.

David Nicoll went down to collect his winnings, 299 rupees, and to buy his wife a cup of well earned tea.

As they left for the clubhouse, the mansion of a one-time indigo plantation, the evening thunderstorm broke with characteristic ferocity: the huge old oaks in the grounds swayed and crashed, the foursomes taking tea dashed for shelter, their bearers shielding them from the unpleasantries of an Indian summer with massive, heavy umbrellas.

Calcutta on a Saturday, monsoon or no, can be fun for the British. This weekend, once the races were over, there were the films — "Footprints On the Moon," or "Romeo and Juliet": next week there is a brains trust, and down at the swimming club there will be dancing and bingo on the terrace.

Everywhere the notices display the attempt to enforce gentility: servants must not be tipped: bridge and mahjong must not be played on the veranda during lunch: ladies are reassured that the shirts they can buy at the golf club shop have not run — its simply a new fashion just in from the U.K.

Of course, all the clubs that form the hub of the Britons' breathless social whirl are no longer for Britons alone — economy militates against gentility now that the Raj is past.

So the bound volumes of "Punch" at the Bengal Club are pored over by Sikhs and Latvians, Canberrans and Osakans, the orders of pink gins at the bar of the Ballygunge Cricket Club come in a multiplicity of accents.

Polyglot the clubs may have to be, but British in character they will remain. The Tollygunge Club remains an outpost of the Raj, with portraits of the Queen in the writing room and golfing manuals presented by visiting lords down from Delhi.

The swimming club, too, may not be quite so select as once, but still the White-Parsons family have managed to win the Woodward Trophy for the second year running. Jennifer and Lavinia between them are regular contenders for the Viceroy's Medal, and R. V. Briggs and Company reassure the swimmers twice weekly that the water is still pure and good and a sight better to drink than water from most Calcutta taps.

But the existence of the British, or the foreign community in Calcutta is a precarious one. Armed soldiers mingle with the race-goers at Tollygunge, their heavy rifles contrasting with the parasols the others carry.

They are there because Tollygunge itself, a sprawling, horrendous excrescence outside the club's high red walls, sports an unpleasant breed of Goondas and Mastans — the ruffians, as the police courts still call them. A fortnight or so ago a few of them sat on top of the wall and hurled bombs at the passing horses, badly scaring their riders, but, happily, hurting no one.

Now Tollygunge Club is an armed encampment where you'll be searched at the gates if you happen to be other than white or an obvious Brahmin. The high walls, the riflemen, the incestuous party life of the Calcuttan Briton adds to his isolation from the real India.

"You have to ignore the poverty here," explained one diplomat at the Deputy High Commission, "if you didn't, after a month or so you'd go off your head."

They have certainly ignored the refugee crisis. The sales manager of a British-owned motor firm, a little the worse for wear, was impressing on his audience the other night that the Indians were "blowing it all up" so as to get more money out of the West. "I've been here 27 years and I know these chaps," he bellowed. "There have always been refugees here. Maybe there are a few more now, but five million? Stuff and nonsense. Bearer, bring me another gin."

Likewise the remainder of the Britons in Calcutta have displayed a marked lack of interest in the refugees.

One club member said he only heard how bad it all was from his mother, who had just written from home. No one can seem to find a single contributor to a fund set up for refugee relief — nor can anyone find a fund.

True, the U.K. Citizens Association is making a half-hearted attempt to help the relief teams. Mr. Bill Stuff, the vice-chairman, said his members were taking the nurses shopping and had offered them a dip in their pools.

"We prefer to make a practical contribution," Mr. Stuff said. None appeared to have taken the trouble to go and look at the refugee camps, though the nearest is no more than 15 minutes from their lawns and pools in Alipore and Ballygunge.

It is an isolated and a shrinking community. Peter Fowler, Head of Chancery at the Commission, reckons there are 700 Britons in Calcutta now. There were 1,000 last year, but tax increases in Mrs. Gandhi's budget drove a good number away.

A dozen more are packing up and leaving, now their insurance houses have been nationalised, and 20 more may leave once this year's budget is worked out.

David Nicoll reckons on staying a while more, enjoying the racing and the swimming and the sunshine. It'll soon be time for the Bagalore Derby, an event measurably more important to the Britons than the Bangla Desh Derby, being raced only a few miles up the road.

Profit Schools Best Answer?

(This Is the Second of Two Articles)

During this period of Nixon prosperity, stories about highly schooled, highly trained people being out of work keep making the rounds. There was a piece in one of the papers the other day about a PhD being reduced to driving a hack.

Let's hope those ghetto kids we're always telling to stay in school don't read the papers. But they're pretty hip individuals and they may know that the more high school and college graduates there are, the less of a guarantee of steady work a sheepskin becomes.

Aside from the possibility that we may be grossly misleading the young as to the proven economic benefits of sweating it out in school, we might also ask ourselves what we as a nation are losing by having PhDs pushing taxis around. And it's not just them. There are 65,000-plus engineers out of work.

It may be that having all this expensively trained talent on the sidelines is making it much more difficult to do all the tasks needing to be done in this society of curiously threadbare opulence. Or it may be there has never really been a need for all these expensively trained people, and that they are hired as luxury items during boom times and dropped when the business cycle sags.

State Religion

It's easier to convince an American that we have a criminal foreign policy than to get him to believe that we may have seriously overdone the effort to force everybody to suffer 12 to 16 years of sitting on a school bench. Belief in education and the infinite joys and blessings which flow from it pass as the state religion of America.

But now comes a number of inquiries into how good all this schooling is, and we learn that both white collar and blue collar jobs are not performed better by people with more schooling. We discover that the armed forces can train men with less schooling as well or better to repair and operate the most advanced complicated technological devices.

We find out from one study of business executives who like to hire college graduates that, "To a man, the respondents assured us that diplomas and degrees were a good thing, they were used as screening devices by which undesirable employment applicants could be identified, and the credentials sought were indicators of personal commitment to 'good middle-class values,' industriousness and seriousness of purpose, as well as salutory personal habits and styles. One executive pointed out that with only two people conducting interviews of job applicants, 'we needed something to cut the sheer numbers down to what the personnel office could handle.' " (From "Education and Jobs: the Great Training Robbery," by Ivar Berg, published for the Center for Urban Education by Praeger Publishers, New York, 1970.)

It should make millions of parents feel warm and proud to know they saved and did without to get the kids through college to lighten the personnel manager's paper work. Yet a distressing amount of money spent on schooling seems to come down to getting people through the screening into jobs that don't require four years of college to perform.

Indeed the evidence is growing that, since there aren't enough jobs toward the top of the hierarchical pyramid for all these high school and college grads, the overschooled may make poor, more unhappy employees with higher turnover rates.

To this the education industry responds with the shrill imperative that more money be handed over to it . . . with beginning teachers in New York City starting this fall with a salary of $9,400. That's almost as much as garbage collectors make and they are many times more vital to the healthy and orderly running of the city.

Some attempts are being made to chop off this spiraling fiscal and social folly. In Gary, Ind., Behavioral Research Laboratories, Inc., has a contract with the board of education to run one grammar school at a cost of $800 a pupil. Out of that they must pay for everything and make a profit with one proviso: after three years the company must refund the money for every kid who isn't reading or doing math up to the national norm for his age group.

Sixteen Years of Suffering

BRL has a lot of space age mumbo-jumbo about how they do it. Teachers are called curriculum managers, and the executives say things like, "This project is like building a missile. Every child is a component."

Worthless Garnish

More to the point is that there is some kind of cost control, fewer teachers and less of the expensive, worthless garnish that drives up the costs in so many schools. They may fail to teach children any more than the civil service schlepps that used to man the place but they will be failing cheaper and in education these days, that's an accomplishment in and of itself.

It's highly questionable that out and out profit-making concerns are going to get very far in the school business except for selling books and gimmicks to the educationists whose appetite for shiny hardware rivals that of a Pentagon procurement officer.

Of necessity a profit-making enterprise would have to cut back on many of the vague and educationally dubious activities that run up the schools' manpower requirements and costs . . . vocational guidance, driver training, sex education, social work, life adjustment, you name the scores of activities for which there is no rigorously reasoned justification but which exhaust the taxpayers, baffle the parents and infuriate the children.

From the senior high school level and beyond, the absence of more schools run by businessmen for profit seems especially a pity. The older students in this devilishly long process we call education are increasingly prone to revolt at being made to sit through and take notes on arcane gibberish. They call such stuff irrelevant, but useless might be a better word.

Proprietary for-profit schools can't do that. They must offer the student customer what he wants. They also can't practise the tie-in sale which ordinary non-profit schools use to take the money and time of their students — the dozens of course credits students are made to get in subjects they have no desire to learn about.

Proprietary schools wouldn't dare force a would-be architect to take a course in biology on the nebulous grounds that it will make him a "well-rounded man." By the same token, have you ever heard of a student revolt at Berlitz or at any other cash-and-carry schools?

Organized education, by monopolizing the powers of accreditation and licensing, freezes all for-profit educational enterprises on to the farthest margins of the learning industry.

The present system is too miserably expensive for the taxpayer and too economically unproductive for the society and, by no means last, too painful and dreary for the students.

A WRONG NUMBER

THE LAST POST

Despite the creation of a special government agency to disseminate it, information in Canada's capital appears to be as rare a commodity as ever.

An employee of a government department called Information Canada to find out if the new delegation from the People's Republic of China could be reached by phone. "I'm sure they can," said the helpful voice at the other end of the line. "Why they've been here for about thirty years."

Perplexed, the employee suggested to the voice that perhaps it was confusing mainland China with nationalist China. The voice could be heard checkiing through some papers and then apologized profusely. "Do you know you're right," it gushed. "It is Nationalist China."

Well, then, the employee asked, how would one contact the mainland Chinese delegation. The voice thought for a long moment. "I'm sure if you called the Nationalist Chinese," it finally replied, "they would be willing to help you."

Getting Away From It All

By JOHN NICHOL

Ancient civilizations always had holy places where people could go to contemplate the mysteries of life. There were sacred groves, rivers, and mountains which the troubled man could visit. There he could find a moment of calm in the eye of the storm.

For awhile, the churches provided this service to modern man — and some of them still do. But a regular visitor to most modern churches soon finds himself on the committee to raise $80,000 for the new organ. His wife becomes responsible for buttering the date bread.

Some people are lucky enough to live in the country. These fortunate ones DO get moments of peace, and a chance to think. Sometimes they think too much — which may explain why most memorable axe murders occur out beyond the blacktop.

But modern urban man is never alone. His brain is connected to the system by telephones that never stop ringing, and by radios and TV sets that constantly babble. He is needled. He is told that he must be RESPONSIBLE and that he must WORRY. (Mind you, that is no strain — there is plenty to worry about.)

The furrowed brow no longer indicates kidney trouble. It has become a badge of honor. Serenity of expression is seldom found outside of institutions — although alcoholics and opium-smokers come close when they are about two-thirds up.

●

In all this turmoil there remain only a few places where a moment of peace can be found. The movie theatre is one.

The sensation is familiar. You really shouldn't be there at all. There is work to do. Floors to paint. Bills to pay. Children to beat. But you ARE there; and to be there you have defied the system.

You are in your seat listening to "Red Sails in the Sunset." You lean back, examine the cracks in the ceiling, and wonder if the chandelier will fall. And then, as the house lights dim, a wonderful surge of freedom comes. "They can't get me here" your soul cries. "They don't even know where I am!" Then — popcorn — and blessed oblivion.

An airplane trip has much the same effect. You fight your way through traffic, up stairs, and down tunnels; your calves all atingle with fatigue. Your ear is numbed by canned music and shouted announcements. You stagger up the steps to the plane and — there is the stewardess — cool and smiling. "All will be well," she seems to say — 'because I am wife, mother, mistress, daughter, and bartender! "I am Audrey Hepburn, Florence Nightingale, and the Galloping Gourmet."

At this point, the sense of escape begins to overcome the fear of death. And soon the aircraft starts down the runway. Just as it lifts off that feeling comes in a rush. "They can never find me now. I have tricked them: I am gone!"

But most of us don't fly or go to the movies that often. Fortunately though, the bathroom is part of our civilization — and it is the sacred grove available to us all. The world may shriek outside that door, but the rush of water into the tub obliterates all other sound. By locking himself up, man sets himself free. He has cut the wires — and alone with his rubber duck in the swirling steam — he sings.

TRUDEAU

Big Bash to End PM Trip to Alberta

By JOHN HAY

CALGARY (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau plunges into one of the biggest bashes in the country today, riding horseback and white-hatted in the Calgary Stampede parade.

The parade, and a grandstand seat for later stampede events, will wind up his three-day tour of southern Alberta.

He actually will ride only half the parade's length, about two miles, then he will mount the reviewing stand to watch the rest of the western extravaganza go by.

Although speculation was rife that his wife Margaret was in town, there was no indication Sunday night this was the case.

Mr. Trudeau denied suggestions at a press conference Sunday that the tour was a stumping prelude to an election.

"The tour was designed mainly to boost my morale and it has done precisely that," he said.

It was no different in form or purpose than a similar sojourn in the province two years ago.

He was asked bluntly whether he ruled out an election in the near future.

MUM ON ELECTION DATE

"No, I wouldn't rule out an election for any time. I can't predict the future."

He said that a Sunday morning meeting with Liberal riding presidents from Alberta—in Waterton Park, a lush setting of mountain majesty—had not dwelt on the possibilities of a provincial election, expected in the fall or next spring at the latest.

He said he had maintained his practice of staying out of provincial politics. The Liberals hold no seats in the provincial legislature but have said they will field at least a dozen candidates in the next provincial election.

Although he put the damper on election talk, the prime minister said his trip had been necessary to counter attacks on federal agriculture policies by "false prophets" in the opposition.

He referred specifically to the proposed farm products marketing bill, stalled in the Commons for more than a year by the opposition, particularly western MPs.

The opposition had created misunderstanding about that measure and others, telling farmers, for example, that they would be forced to market their goods through a government board against their wishes if the bill is passed, he said.

The government had learned it could not explain every policy to everybody.

"Some Liberals out here should concentrate on the marketing bill rather than more remote issues such as foreign affairs.

TRIP ENDS TUESDAY

But Mr. Trudeau said there was "not a great exchange of ideas" on the Alberta trip which is to end Tuesday morning.

Mr. Trudeau took a helicopter ride Sunday to Blairmore, a coal town in the Crowsnest Pass in the Rocky Mountains where he treated about 3,000 residents to his softball pitching prowess —against a local girls' team.

After walking the first batter and yielding a double from the second—and popping out himself—he was demoted to second base, letting the local MP, Allen Sulatyck of the Rocky Mountain constituency, take the mound for the second and final inning.

The prime minister, his staff and local politicians won 9-2.

Hundreds of handshakes and a supper later, Mr. Trudeau boarded the helicopter to Calgary.

Earlier Saturday, Mr. Trudeau rode in a rain-drenched trail ride in Medicine Hat, the constituency of Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson, who accompanied the prime minister throughout the trip.

After a hand-shaking stop at the fence of the Lethbridge airport, he flew on to stand Off and Waterton Lakes National Park where he spent the night.

At Blairmore, he met Leah Trudeau, 17, who said she is a fourth cousin of the prime finister.

Her forefathers had come west generations ago. She did not speak French.

STANFIELD

Land Question Dominates Tour

By JIM POLING

WHITEHORSE Y.T. (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield left the north today convinced the federal government must "get cracking" to settle aboriginal land rights.

The question of settling with the Indian and Eskimo people was one dominant feature of the Progressive Conservative leader's five-day swing through the Northwest Territories and the Yukon.

He was told several times by native groups that they must have an economic base to become independent of the white man. Most of the natives he spoke with said this money must come in the form of a cash settlement and a share of mineral royalties as payment for aboriginal land rights.

Mr. Stanfield promised the Yukon Progressive Conservative Association Saturday night he will "unceasingly badger" the Liberal government to start looking for a solution to the problem.

He said several times during the tour that the solution to a settlement will not be easy to find and will take considerable discussion between the native people and the government.

RIGHTS AN ISSUE

"This (a start on the problem) would go a long way toward smoothing the road ahead for northern resource development," he told the association's annual meeting. "It would go a long way toward making up for the sad record of pathological paternalism that has been the set attitude of succeeding generations of Liberal governments."

Earlier, he told a news conference that his northern tour, which included Hay River, Rae, Yellowknife and Inuvik in the N.W.T., has led him to believe that settlement of native land rights is a more basic issue in native development than he had imagined.

Another primary topic during the tour was development of northern communities and natural resources.

Mr. Stanfield told the news conference that the Trudeau administration has not been consulting the people of the territories enough and that both the N.W.T. and the Yukon should be given a greater degree of self-government by Ottawa.

Also, the federal government was not putting enough research and money into northern development.

Federal ministers talking about an oil pipeline down the Mackenzie Valley don't have the "foggiest" idea about costs, or risks involved because there have been no government studies on an Arctic pipeline, he said.

Second Envoy Killed

By The Associated Press

Marcel Duprat, the Belgian ambassador killed Saturday during the attempt to overthrow King Hassan II of Morocco, is the second foreign diplomat killed in the last 18 months because he got caught in the political crossfire of the nation to which he was assigned.

Count Karl von Spreti, West German ambassador to Guatemala, was kidnapped March 31, 1970, and found slain six days later after the government refused leftist terrorists' demands to release 17 prisoners.

Duprat would have been 52 on Sunday. He was shot in the chest when rebel officers and army cadets burst into Hassan's palace. He was reported to have died in the arms of French Ambassador Claude Lebel.

He is survived by his wife and seven children.

MOROCCO'S KING HASSAN II

Series of Crises

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — The attempt by army generals to overthrow King Hassan II of Morocco is one of a series of crises that have punctuated his 10-year reign.

There have been a border war with Algeria, angry disputes with more radical Arab regimes and domestic conflicts that forced the King in 1965 to dissolve the National Assembly.

His virtual one-man rule since that time made his regime the target of continuous criticism from the political left. Nearly 200 leftists are on trial in Marrakesh, accused of plotting Hassan's overthrow.

Morocco has been criticized by other Arab nations for remaining on the periphery of their conflict with Israel. The Moroccans have voiced hostility to Israel and backing for the Palestinian Arab cause but have made little in the way of practical contribution.

In the 1967 war, Morocco sent 3,000 troops to support the Arab armies, but a few years ago Hassan angered some of the Arabs by expressing scorn for the exaggerated claims of the Palestinian guerrillas raiding in Israel.

The attempted revolution in Rabat appears to fit into a pattern of military uprisings against conservative monarchies launched by the overthrow of King Farouk of Egypt in 1952.

Iraq was next, in 1958, and the military rebels murdered King Faisal II. Officers in Yemen deposed the ruling Imam in 1962.

In 1969, a clique of young officers overthrew King Idris of Libya and a military regime also took over Sudan.

GENERAL Mohamed Medbouh, leader of the coup against King Hassan II of Morocco, was killed during the brief rebellion. He was head of Hassan's personal military staff.

Open Bidding System To Set Gold Prices

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Public trading in gold futures, payable in gold coins minted before the Gold Reserve Act of 1934, will be initiated July 20 by the West Coast Commodity Exchange Inc.

"Open bidding procedure will determine gold prices for the first time in the 300-year history of commodity exchanges in this country and abroad," David Callahan, president of West Coast Commodity Exchange, said Sunday.

The exchange said it will be the world's first open market for public trading in gold. The firm also deals in silver, copper, cocoa and sugar.

The exchange announcement said that "pending repeal or amendment of the Gold Reserve Act of 1934," which forbids U.S. citizens to own private gold buillion stocks, payment of futures contracts would be made in British gold coins minted before 1934.

"Legal ownership of pre-1934 gold coins is specifically authorized by the Gold Reserve Act," the exchange added.

The exchange will join the U.S. government and an exclusive consortium of London banks in determining the worth of gold. The firm expects its market to attract investors from around the world and "strengthen the dollar, reverse the drain on U.S. gold reserves and aid in easing the current world currency crisis."

The British coins, of which more than 500 million were produced prior to 1934, will be "the first of several international gold coins to be acceptable for equivalent delivery under the gold contract," the exchange said.

"In the past, gold prices have been established only in London, by a group of five private companies — the London Gold Market — that meet twice daily for the purpose of fixing the price of gold," the announcement said.

Gold currently is priced under a "two-tier system with the U.S. treasury pegging the price of monetary gold at $35 an ounce, and the price of non-monetary gold floating at higher prices, up to $42, under the guidance of the London consortium. The London group has been the sole international source of gold pricing.

Let's Talk Real Estate by Jack Mears

During the past few weeks we have been remodelling a fine old home on Dallas Road. Built in the first decade of the 20th Century, it still stands square to the ocean. Basement and three storeys.

What a wealth of living it must have seen and what a wealth of living still remains or should when we have finished.

The last two weeks have been hectic with electricians, carpenters, plumbers, painters, cabinet makers and flooring people, all causing what appeared to be organized confusion. Another two weeks and it will probably be finished.

In the meantime, if you are passing and feel like dropping in, the address is 1460. It has some fine old panelling, which will of course be preserved, and other interesting features.

Smelter Shutdowns Push Zinc Prices Up

NEW YORK (AP) — A combination of smelter phase-outs and strikes has been credited with pressure on zinc prices.

Phase-outs of two zinc smelters coupled with a strike at the Great Falls, Mont., zinc complexes of Anaconda Co. has removed about 284,000 tons from the country's 1.1-million-ton productive capacity since May, says American Metal Market, daily newspaper of the metals industry.

As a result, the supply of zinc has tightened, and discounts of about ⅛ cent a pound on special high-grade metal — the prime raw material for die-cast alloys — has disappeared. One seller is officially quoting 16.50 cents delivered for special high-grade metal but is limiting sales to regular customers. Other producers are quoting 17 cents delivered.

Independent zinc alloyers, who account for the major portion of zinc die cast alloy production, say that special high-grade metal is no longer available at a discount. Consequently, they have increased the price of No. 3 zinc die-cast alloy by ½ cent a pound, to 19.50 cents, compared with a dual-priced market of 18.50-19.00 cents currently quoted by producers.

MAJOR INDUSTRY

Zinc die-cast alloy is used in die castings by the automotive and appliance industries. In 1970, total consumption of slab zinc for zinc-base alloys amount to 46,666 tons out of a total slab-zinc usage of 1,164,622 tons and represents the major use for zinc.

The first week of strikes in the domestic copper mining and processing industry resulted in an estimated loss of about 36,000 tons of copper, assuming full utilization of rated refined production capacity at the start of 1970. The strike entered its second week last Thursday.

Refined copper stocks in the free world at the end of May totalled 423,425 tons. A one-month shutdown in the U.S. industry would cause a loss of more than 145,000 tons.

Major metal prices:

Copper — 52¾-53 cents a pound, delivered; foreign 54.02 cents, nominal, New York.

Lead — 14-14½ cents a pound, New York; 13.80-14.30 cents, St. Louis.

Zinc — 16 cents a pound.

Aluminum — 29 cents a pound, unalloyed ingots, delivered.

Antimony — 59 cents a pound, bulk, 99.5 per cent, carlots, producer's plant.

$12M Gas Plant Approved

EDMONTON (CP) — The Energy Resources conservation Board has approved construction of a $12 million plant for handling petroleum gas at near-by Fort Sascatchewan.

John Zeede, production superintendent for Chevron Standard Ltd. said construction of the facility should start by fall. The plant will be used for fractionating and liquid petroleum gas storage.

The plant will be supplied by pipeline from The Kaybob South Gas Field, 130 miles northwest of Edmonton, with 25,000 barrels a day of raw liquefied petroleum gases.

Partners in the venture with Chevron are Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Ltd., Canadian Superior Oil Ltd. and Gulf Oil of Canada Ltd.

Canada Gets Space Job

LOS ANGELES (AP) — North American Rockwell Corp. said Saturday it has contracted with a Toronto firm for the construction of a space-age divining rod.

Spar Aerospace was awarded a contract to build the antenna system for a lunar sounder, which will probe the lunar surface trying to find water below ground on the moon, a spokesman for North American said.

The electronic device will be carried on Apollo 17, the last of the Apollo missions to the moon.

The spokesman said the contract was in the neighborhood of $200,000.

Oil Production Up in Alberta

CALGARY (CP) — Crude oil production in Alberta averaged 953,247 barrels a day during the week ended July 5, the Alberta Energy Resources Conservation Board said in a report Saturday.

Production in the previous week averaged 817,526 barrels a day. Daily production in July was expected to average 1,054,629 barrels compared with 865,327 barrels in June, 1970.

JOBS IN DANGER

Trouble for Penn Central

WASHINGTON — If nothing else, a year of bankruptcy has taught the Penn Central one lesson: Getting out is not as easy as getting in.

The railroad could be only months away from another full-blown crisis — a crisis leading to likely congressional intervention and possible government subsidies. The carrier simply might run out of money. That could happen after a prolonged steel, in the late fall after another round of wage increases, or in the early winter when both the weather and the railroad's income turn unpredictable.

★ ★ ★

Federal Judge John J. Fullam, who is overseeing the bankruptcy proceedings, could also force the crisis by simply declaring that the railroad is not viable and, therefore, must be "liquidated"—a feat which is difficult to visualize for the multi-billion Penn Central. Or Fullam might make good on a promise to prohibit the railroads from paying any more wage increases until unions relax work rules, a move that could precipitate a strike.

could push the Penn Central to ominously in Penn Central's future, and, according to many industry observers, there is a good chance that one of them could push the Penn Central to the brink.

At the heart of the Penn Central's current problems is section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act, which, when written, was supposed to be an antidote for any financial poison that could ever infect a railroad. Under section 77, any railroad going bankrupt — that is, not being able to pay its bills — could suspend payment on a variety of debts (including long-term loans and taxes). This expedient was supposed to allow railroads to continue operating by meeting current operating expenses from current revenues. Meanwhile, the debt would be scaled down to fit the railroad's ability to pay. By declaring bankruptcy, the Penn Central estimates it will save about $64 million in taxes and debt payment this year.

Unfortunately, the relief hasn't been enough. Without a federally-guaranteed loan of $100 million (of which $75 million has already been borrowed), Penn Central would have exhausted its cash. When its unpaid debts are counted, the Penn Central recorded a $126.1 million deficit for the first five months of 1971; the projected full 1971 deficit is $240 million and although this figure does not reflect actual cash drain, it does indicate just how far the railroad is from returning to a normally, profitable operation.

The apparent hopelessness of this situation may explain why the railroad's four trustees — appointed by the federal court overseeing the bankruptcy — may actually yearn for a major crisis. They have publicly proclaimed that the sine-qua non for righting the Penn Central is a sweeping overhaul of union work rules: A reduction of the basic crew for freight trains from four to three.

That change, the trustees say, could eliminate nearly 10,000 workers from the railroad (the current work force is 90,833, and, by the end of the year, it's expected to be about 85,000), and, ultimately result in $135 million in savings annually.

The trustees might like the plan but many other industry observers believe that prospects of implementing it are poor. Any change on the Penn Central would almost inevitably spread to the rest of the industry. The United Transportation Union, which represents most of the affected workers, hazards no guess about how many jobs would ultimately be eliminated. But, in 1970, there were approximately 165,000 train and engine workers. A fourth of that amounts to about 40,000.

The UTU, naturally, wants nothing of the Penn Central's visions.

If the economy stages a spectacular revival, the Penn Central might escape another crisis. If not, someone — probably Congress — will have to invent a new way for extracting the largest railroad from the nation's biggest bankruptcy.

BANK RATE BOOST SAID INEVITABLE

NEW YORK (AP) — United States banks boosted their prime lending rate to six per cent from 5½ per cent last week.

The prime rate is the interest banks charge on loans to their best corporate customers.

The move began last month when a handful of banks announced increases in their prime rates. The reluctance that banks had shown for more than a month to raise their prime rate disappeared rapidly once Manufacturers Hanover Trust, the fourth largest U.S. bank in terms of assests, boosted its rate to six per cent.

Bank of America, the nation's largest, said the move was "inevitable in light of increasing loan demand and upward forces in the money markets."

Bankers had been saying for weeks that a boost was necessary because the sharply-rising rates in the money market increased the bank's own cost of funds. But observers noted they were hesitant to act because of fear of political repercussions.

Chemical Bank in New York, the sixth largest in the U.S., said it had no plans now to increase the rate on loans to consumers.

Bank of America did couple its increase in the prime rate with increases in the rate paid on savings accounts and the rates charged on home mortgages.

The bank increased to 4½ per cent from four per cent the interest rate it pays on regular passbook savings and lifted to 7¾ per cent from 7¼ per cent the rate it charges on home loans.

Pressure Leak Killed Cosmonauts, Soviets Find

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government announced today that a pressure leak killed the three Soyuz 11 cosmonauts half an hour before their landing June 30 and indicated human error rather than a fault in their spaceship was responsible.

"An inspection of the descent vehicle, which made a soft landing, showed that there are no failures in its structure," said the report by the investigating commission. It said it was making a further analysis "to establish a number of probable causes of the seal failure."

One Soviet journalist reported two days after the disaster that the men died because they did not seal the landing craft's hatch properly. He said it jarred open slightly during the turbulence of the re-entry into the earth's atmosphere.

The cosmonauts—Georgy Dobrovolsky, Valdislav Volkov and Viktor Patsayev—spent 23 days aboard the Salute space laboratory before returning to earth.

ASHES ENTOMBED

On July 2, their ashes were entombed in the Kremlin wall, the traditional burial place of Soviet heroes.

The commission's announcement, reported by the official news agency Tass, said:

"On the ship's descent trajectory, 30 minutes before landing, there occurred a rapid drop of pressure within the descent vehicle, which led to the sudden deaths of the cosmonauts.

"This is confirmed by the medical and pathological-anatomic examination.

"The drop of pressure resulted from a loss of the ship's sealing."

By ruling out structural failure, the commission's report implied that the cosmonauts had erred in some way. In an article published while the spacemen were aboard the orbiting Salute lab, veteran cosmonaut Vladimir Shatalov warned that prolonged exposure to weightlessness sometimes caused "a false feeling of complacency."

"The psycho-physiological capabilities of the cosmonauts' organisms drops as the flight nears completion," he said. "Thus it is very important for them to automatically perform the operations necessary for piloting the ship, for descent and landing."

HEADLESS VALLEY TRIP STALLED

FORT NELSON, B.C. (CP)—The British expedition into the Headless Valley was stalled Sunday with outboard motor troubles at Nahanni Butte, N. W. T.

Steve Villers of Northern Air Service Co. Ltd. said it was hoped that replacement engine parts could be flown into the Britons today at Nahanni Butte, where there is an airstrip at the junction of the Liard and South Nahanni rivers.

Two of the 40-horsepower motors powering the three rubber boats seem to have broken down he said.

The expedition, headed by Captain Sir Ranulph Twistleton-Wykeham-Fiennes, consists of seven British soldiers, photographers and a film crew from the BBC.

The little flotilla moved downstream along the Fort Nelson and Liard rivers without help from the motors because the expedition wanted to conserve fuel.

However, the remainder of the trip—along the South Nahanni as far as Virginia Falls, about 150 miles away—is upstream in treacherous, fast-flowing waters.

Villers said that, apart from the engine breakdowns, the travellers appeared to be in good shape. They reached Nahanni Butte on Saturday.

Sir Ranulph's wife, Lady Virginia, has remained at Fort Nelson to maintain radio contact with the expedition. Weather in the area where the Britons are travelling has been clear and warm.

Meany Would Impose Wage, Price Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany says if he were in President Nixon's shoes he would impose wage and price controls in the fight against inflation.

"I don't see any other way that this situation is going to get under control," Meany said Sunday on NBC's Meet the Press.

Meany said his own 13.5-million-member labor organization is "not advocating controls," but would not oppose them if they were imposed evenly.

"If he makes a decision that the international situation is such, or the domestic situation is such that he needs to impose controls . . . we will go along," Meany said.

"We will accept wage and price controls provided they are shared equally to cover all forms of income and . . . provided the sacrifice is equal to everybody concerned."

Meany said the United States has an "inflationary psychology."

"We have people raising prices when there is just no reason."

"According to the book, when you cause more unemployment, when you tighten up on the money supply and you keep business from expanding and thereby cause more and more people to become unemployed, prices should come down according to the rules."

But, Meany said, prices have gone up, by 4.2 per cent in 1968, 5.4 per cent in 1969 and 5.9 per cent in 1970.

In this situation it would seem that the answer, the answer from the president's point of view, would be controls. "I don't see any other answer."

Allende Name Needed For Copper Takeover

SANTIAGO (AP) — President Salvador Allende is expected to sign soon the constitutional amendment to complete nationalization of Chile's copper industry despite his complaint that it gives the U.S. companies too many breaks.

Meeting in joint session Sunday night, 158 of the 200 senators and deputies in Congress unanimously approved the amendment without debate.

The government bought part of the Chilean holdings of the three U.S. companies — Anaconda, Kennecott and Cerro—during the administration of President Eduardo Frei, and completion of the nationalization is a cornerstone of Allende's program to "open the doors to socialism in Chile."

Estimates of the investment of the three companies in Chile's five biggest mines range from $300 million to $800 million. There is no estimate of how much they have profited, but the five mines last year produced 85,000 tons of metal worth more than $1 billion. Copper is Chile's most important resource and produces 80 per cent of the country's foreign exchange.

Allende in a speech Sunday in Rancagua, 55 miles south of Santiago, accused the U.S. companies of allowing the mines to get in an "alarming state."

He said recent surveys by French and Russian mining experts confirmed this. He also said the studies demonstrated that the companies did not use efficient management techniques in operating the mines.

Teacher's Dismissal 'Unrelated' to Trial

DUNCAN — The reasons for dismissal of Duncan teacher Louis Trapler are "completely unrelated" to his recent trial on a charge of assaulting a student.

Cowichan school board chairman David Haywood made the statement today when asked why Trapler has not been reinstated with the school district following his acquittal Friday of a charge of assault causing bodily harm.

The charge arose out of an incident Jan. 26 in which Trapler allegedly struck 13-year-old student Joseph Cooke for addressing him with an obscenity.

SEEKS OLD JOB

"There is no relevance between the action taken by the school board and this other matter," Haywood said. He said the decision to go to court against Trapler was taken by Cooke's parents only.

"The process within the school board is completely unrelated to civil or criminal proceedings. We weren't judging him for reinstatement on the basis of the charge he was on trial for."

Trapler has been unable to find a teaching job since his January suspension but has indicated he would like his old job back again.

"I would be very happy to be reinstated in my teaching job," he said Sunday. He has three school-age children attending school in Duncan in the fall.

Trapler has spent five years in Duncan as a teacher. He taught grades 8, 9 and 10 at Mount Prevost junior secondary.

Two inquiries have been conducted into Trapler's case with the result that on May 5, the cabinet announced it had decided to uphold his suspension.

Anti-Strike Union Formed at Hospitals

VANCOUVER (CP) — A new union, pledged never to strike and to abide by binding arbitration, has sprung up in British Columbia hospitals.

Incorporated as the Health Sciences Association of B.C., the union aims to represent all para-medical workers in bargaining with the B.C. Hospitals Association.

★

Despite the hospitals' and other unions' strong opposition to further splintering of the hospital workers, the Labor Relations Board has just certified the HSA at St. Paul's in Vancouver and Lions Gate in North Vancouver.

"And very shortly, we'll apply for more hospitals," lawyer Terry Wolfe, union counsel and spokesman, said.

He said the board certified the association as agent for some 225 physiotherapists, medical record librarians, dieticians, medical social workers, hospital pharmacists, occupational therapists, remedial gymnasts, radiologists and medical technologists.

Most of these never had contracts, Wolfe said, but now the HSA will be seeking collective agreements which should give them better pay and job security.

He said the membership potential is "in the thousands" and that the Psychiatric Nurses Association is considering a merger with the association.

"It's also significant, I think, that we have a constitution which specifically prohibits strike action and accepts the principle of binding arbitration," Wolfe said.

★

"In that sense, we are opposed to the B.C. Federation of Labor, but we believe it is simply foolish to talk of strike or respecting other unions' picket lines when patients' lives are at stake."

The 10,000-member B.C. Hospital Employees Union opposed certification of the association.

Trio Tries to Create New French Course

If French has never been your thing, maybe a program being created by three University of Victoria students will help.

Ralf Sarkonak, winner of this year's Governor-General's medal for the top graduating student in arts or science, Frank Waetli and Maryle Connor are working under the Opportunities for Youth program to design a second language diploma program, to be offered in September by Uvic's division of continuing education.

Assisted by Dr. O. M. Abrioux and directed by Dr. L. E. Devlin, the students are conducting a survey and interviewing former students to help shape a course "geared to the needs and requirements of the community."

The students are attempting to find out what French students want out of a French course and what motivates them to enrol.

They've sent a letter of information to all former students and have composed a questionnaire for personal interviews.

"They will interview more than 300 former evening students, and will talk to local businesses," Devlin said. "We'd like to get an idea of what the business community needs from its employees."

Sarkonak, Waelti and Miss Connor will examine instructional techniques and course forms and times, particularly appropriate for adults wishing to learn French as a second language.

The diploma program was approved in principle by the University's senate in April and is the first program of its type to be offered in B.C. It will be open to any resident in Greater Victoria.

Hitch-a-Bus Ends First Run

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Dale's hitch-a-bus service has passed its trial run with flying colors.

The 36-year-old Dale left Toronto July 1 in a 41-seat bus — waywardly unscheduled — and began picking up hitch-hikers on the road headed west.

"I had it full the first day and about 36 people came the full distance to Vancouver," he said.

"When they got on, I told them the first day's travel was free and if they wanted to continue after that, they had to share in the expenses of operation.

". . . The kids were only too delighted to have a ride at that kind of money. They told me the hitch-hiking is bloody awful right now."

Dale, who had travel agency experience overseas, says he is ready to hit the road again as soon as an engine replacement can be arranged.

"I'll do it as long as there are hitch-hikers on the road who are looking for rides," he said.

New Building Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — Plans to build a 36-storey office building at an estimated cost of more than $23 million in downtown Vancouver were announced here by the Bank of Nova Scotia, Famous Players Ltd. and Henry Birks and Sons Ltd. A joint statement said construction will begin next year and is expected to be completed in 1974. The building, to be the tallest office tower in the city, will have more than 600,000 square feet of floor space.

Rocks Waste Good Start To Lose 10th

By STEWART LANG

New Westminster Salmonbellies increased their Western Lacrosse Association lead to nine points Sunday by handing Victoria Shamrocks their 10th consecutive loss before 1,466 fans at Memorial Arena.

Shamrocks, 2-1 leaders after the opening period, were outshot 48-35 overall as the defending Canadian champions chalked up a 10-6 victory.

Victoria was frequently caught on breakaways with their defencemen too deep in enemy territory and the only bright spot in Victoria's game was a solid performance from veteran goaltender Doug Thompson.

Thompson parried 38 shots overall, including 20 in the second period where the home side was outgunned, 26-11. Les Norman, in the New Westminster net, made 29 stops.

FACEOFF LOSERS

Shamrocks also came out losers in the faceoff department, 19-16.

After playing-coach Paul Parnell had given Salmonbellies a 1-0 lead with the first of his two goals at 3:41, Shamrocks won the first period with goals by Ranjit Dillon at 8:27 and Don McNeill at 16:21.

By the time Dillon notched his second goal at 10:38 of the second period, the Irish were down, 5-2. His third goal of the game came at 18:37 and left Victoria trailing 7-4 going into the final 20 minutes.

McNeill's second goal, at 7:53 of the third frame, appeared to liven up the Shamrocks but the solid New Westminster defence refused to buckle and their offence gradually subsided.

BRYANT INJURED

Muzz Bryant caused the fans a litle concern after scoring Victoria's final goal at 17:12. His shot was taken while in the process of falling toward the net and while the ball was eluding the grasp of Norman, Bryant collided heavily with the post.

His thigh was heavily bruised and he had to be carried from the floor on a stretcher.

Wayne Goss led the New Westminster attack with three goals and three assists while another two-goal production came from Dave Matheson. Single goals were chipped in by Steve d'Easum, Larry Henry and Mac Tyler.

Victoria gets a little bit of a break against their next opponents — Brantford Warriors of the Ontario Association.

Brantford will be playing its fourth game in six days while tackling Shamrocks at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Memorial Arena.

PAUSE THAT REFRESHES

Gulps of water help refresh Tom Morris (right) of Victoria and Vancouver's Max Grace after they had earned top honors in Canadian senior bicycle road racing championship Saturday at Ottawa. Grace retained his national crown and Morris tied for second place with Hank Koning of Calgary, 18 seconds behind leader. (See story on this page.)

Trevino Divides Purse To Help 'Kids Like Me'

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Lee Trevino, picking up more money and titles than he ever expected in a single month, donated nearly $5,000 to British orphans Saturday soon after capturing the British Open golf championship.

Trevino won the U.S. Open in a play-off against Jack Nicklaus, then collared the Canadian Open in a sudden-death affair against Art Wall within the last four weeks.

"Earlier this week I told George James, who runs the casino in Southport, that I wanted to do something for the kids like me who had a difficult start in life," Trevino said.

"I was prepared to play exhibition shots for the fans in order to raise funds for the Southport orphanage. But this is not necessary now. I'm giving $4,880 to the orphanage out of the $13,200 I won here at Royal Birkdale."

Trevino was raised by his grandfather, a Dallas gravedigger. He scratched for pennies as a child, never finished high school and worked as a $35-a-week assistant on a desert driving range before hitting it big on the rich American pro golf tour.

"When I win a championship of this stature, I have the feeling that the man upstairs is looking after me and I want to give something back," said the Mexican-American extrovert.

"To be established as a world class player you have to win one of the big ones staged outside the United States. I think from now on that I must be regarded as world class."

Trevino's donation to the orphanage marked the fourth time he has gone into his pocket to help the less fortunate.

He won the 1968 Hawaiian Open, and set aside $10,000 from his purse for a trust fund for the children of the late Ted Makelena, a Hawaiian professional who was killed in a surfing accident.

The following year he donated his entire purse, $2,000, from his individual victory in the World Cup to a caddy-scholarship fund in Singapore.

Just a month ago he allotted $5,000 from his first place prize in the Memphis open to St. Judge's Hospital, the charitable beneficiary of that tournament.

Before coming to the British Open he had already won more than $195,000 and was clearly en route to overtaking Billy Casper's $205,000 earnings in 1969.

Warriors Square Western Record

Brantford Warriors of the Ontario Lacrosse Association evened their record at 1-1 midway through an inter-locking series with Western Association clubs by counting a 16-9 victory over Burrards in Vancouver on Sunday.

Warriors, who outscored Vancouver 7-1 in the second period en route to the victory, dropped their WLA opener 13-9 against defending Mann Cup champion New Westminster Salmonbellies on Saturday.

The easterners rest today before visiting Coquitlam Adanacs on Tuesday night and Victoria Shamrocks in Memorial Arena at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Warriors led 7-4 after the first period against Vancouver and then took complete command in the second, utilizing a fast-breaking style to advantage against the more methodical Burrards.

On Saturday, it was New Westminster that took control early in the nationally-televised game, leading 4-2 after the first period and 8-5 after the second.

FORD FASTER BUT LOSES IN TITLE BID

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuter) — Percy Hayles of Jamaica pounded out a unanimous 15-round decision over challenger Al Ford of Edmonton Saturday night to retain his Commonwealth lightweight boxing title.

Ford, the faster of the pair, carried the fight to Hayles for much of the match, scoring with left jabs. But the champion was the stronger puncher and landed many blows to the body.

There was little action for the first four rounds, but then the pace quickened until both men slowed again towards the end.

Castaways Capture Six-a-Side Honors

Dave Clarke and Captain David Shaw came up with some top-notch batting Sunday as Castaways collected their first cricket trophy in five years by winning the Albion Cricket Club's six-a-side tournament at Beacon Hill Park.

In the final match, Incogs batted first and ran up a score of 60 runs behind the big hitting of Geoff Rooper and Blue Davis. Clarke and Shaw then combined for 62 runs, both scoring 31 not out.

Other members of the winning team were Alan Rees, David Auld, Ashley, Hall and Nick Walton.

In the semi-finals, Castaways defeated Oak Bay and Incogs eliminated Albions, who had won the J. R. Mainwaring Cup for the past two years.

Top batter in the tourney was Tim Bale, who scored 62, not out, for Incogs against Castaways "B". This included 32 in one over.

Best bowling was by Richard Wilson, who toppled two wickets for four runs with the Juniors in their first-round win over Albion "B".

HOT PANTS APPROVED BY ROYAL AND ANCIENT

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — The Royal and Ancient Golf Club, once regarded as the stuffy old granddad of the sport, took on a swinging new image Friday. The club, founded in 1754, gave its formal stamp of approval to girls in hot pants and men with bare chests.

"We're living in the days of the permissive society," said Charles Lawrie, chairman of the championship committee which runs the British Open, first played exactly 111 years ago.

"We're happy to see the youngsters packing the golf course. We don't want to change their fashions. We're just pleased that they want to watch the great players."

Optimists Aiming At Another Title

Saanich Evening Optimists can collect their third straight Lower Island 15-year-olds Babe Ruth baseball title with a victory tonight over Cosmopilitan at Reynolds Road Park.

Saanich advanced through the double-loss elimination tourney with a 5-0 victory over Cosmopolitan on Saturday and a 6-3 win over Victoria on Sunday.

Cosmopolitans bounced back through the losers' bracket by eliminating Central Saanich 13-2 Saturday night and ousting Victoria 2-0 on Sunday.

Wayne Krimmer struck out nine batters and issued four walks while pitching the Saanich victory over Victoria and Kevin Campbell retired 12 and allowed four walks in the Cosmopolitan win over Victoria.

Richard Nemeth threw a no-hitter Saturday to pace the Cosmo's triumph while Bob Cool fashioned a two-hitter for Saanich the same day.

Winner of the tourney advances to the B.C. final at Queen's Park in New Westminster.

Game time tonight is 6:30.

Pat Ferris Wins Trophy Bike Race

Pat Ferris captured the Jim Taylor Trophy during the 30-mile Victoria Wheelers bicycle club road race in Happy Valley on Sunday.

Ferris crossed the finish line inches ahead of George Allen and both were timed in at one hour, 17 minutes and 54 seconds.

Tom Tuthill was third in 1:29.28.

Tom Morris Ties for Second

OTTAWA (CP) — Vancouver's 26-year-old Max Grace has won the Canadian senior cycling championship for the second straight year.

Grace finished the 110-mile course 10 seconds over 4½ hours — an average speed of 25½ miles an hour.

He finished 18 seconds ahead of Tom Morris of Victoria and Hank Koning of Calgary, who passed the finish line in a dead heat. Fourth place went to John Gornick of Chambord, Que., while Roger Summer of Vancouver was fifth.

Rounding out the top ten were Yves Landry of Quebec, Geno Cadorin of Guelph, Ontario; Gilles Durant of Montreal; Eric Tuenschel of Toronto and Lindsay Gault of Winnipeg.

Koning, Cadoring, Durand and Mark Blouin of Montreal will be members of Canada's Pam-Am team in Cali, Colombia.

Seventy-eight started the race from Parliament Hill but minor mishaps, hilly terrain and hot weather knocked all but 26 cyclists out of the race.

Andre Simard of Alma, Que., won the 55-mile junior men's race by half a wheel-width over Karl Fawthorpe of Victoria. Both were clocked in at 2:08.18.

Defending champion Robert Van den Eynde of Longueuil, Que., placed third.

Forty-two of the 62 riders that started the race crossed the finish line.

Johnson Smashes 4 Homers in Row

Ties Major League Mark As Phillies Trip Expos

By The Associated Press

Deron Johnson, the slugging Philadelphia first baseman, clouted home runs to right centre and left fields in his first three appearances Sunday and drove in five runs, powering the Phillies to an 11-5 victory over Montreal Expos.

Coupled with the homer he hit in his last at-bat Saturday night, it gave Johnson four homers in a row, tying a major league record held by 16 other players. The last player to belt four consecutive homers was Oakland Athletics' Mike Epstein, who did it June 15-16.

The last National Leaguer to do it was New York Mets' Art Shamsky, who did it with Cincinnati Reds from Aug. 12-14, 1966. The three homers in one game were the first by a right-handed hitting Philadelphia player at home since Del Ennis did it on July 23, 1955.

REDS WIN TWO

Elsewhere in the National League Sunday, Cincinnati swept a doubleheader from floundering New York Mets, 7-2 and 5-3; Chicago Cubs and San Diego Padres split, the Cubs winning the opener 2-0 and the Padres taking the nightcap 7-5; Los Angeles Dodgers trounced San Francisco Giants 11-3; St. Louis Cardinals trimmed Houston Astros 7-3, and Atlanta Braves at Pittsburgh Pirates was rained out.

Johnson's first homer followed a single by Tim McCarver in the opening inning, a hit off the left-centre field scoreboard. The second came in the third after another single by McCarver and cleared the fence in right. And the third triggered a seven-run uprising in the sixth and left the park in dead centre field.

SEASON TOTAL 21

It was the first time Johnson ever had hit three homers in a game. They increased his total for the season to 21 and his career total to 171.

In his next two at-bats, Johnson struck out.

Cincinnati's two victories extended the Mets' losing streak to six games and gave them 11 setbacks in their last 12 games. They also dropped New York 10 games behind first-place Pittsburgh in the East.

The Reds took the opener as Gary Nolan pitched a six-hitter and capped a six-run fifth inning with a two-run single. In the second game, Tony Perez drove in all five Cincinnati runs, the last three with his second homer of the contest and 14th of the season, a three-run blast off Tom Seaver in the eighth.

The Dodgers' victory over San Francisco ended their six-game losing streak and moved them within six games of the first-place Giants in the West.

DOBSON WINS 10TH

In the American League the Baltimore Orioles are making certain that if their pitching staff happens to collapse they will have a good margin to work on.

However, that doesn't seem likely to happen. Pat Dobson won his 10th o fthe season and his seventh in a row Sunday as the Orioles trounced Cleveland 7-1. Victory enabled Dobson to join the Oriole double-figure pitchers—Mike Cueller has won 13, Dave McNally 13, and Jim Palmer 12. Orioles lead by 5½ games.

In other games, New York Yankees defeated Boston Red Sox Sunday, 3-2, for a three-game series sweep, Washington Senators nipped Detroit Tigers 4-3, Oakland Athletics split with California, winning the opener 3-2 and losing the nightcap 6-3, Kansas City Royals lost two to Minnesota 6-5, and 7-1, Chicago White Sox and Milwaukee Brewers split a pair of 1-0 decisions.

Tony C. Retires, 'Can't See Ball'

BOSTON (AP) — Tony Conigliaro, one of baseball's most feared sluggers until this season, abruptly announced his retirement at the age of 26 Saturday, claiming failing eyesight and other ailments.

"This is the end of Tony C.," Conigliaro said after leaving the California Angels and flying to Boston and an airport meeting with his family. "I've learned that health is more important than money."

Conigliaro went hitless in eight times at bat and was ejected in the 19th inning for arguing with the umpires in the Angeles' 1-0, 20-inning loss at Oakland Friday night.

He then called a 5 a.m. news conference to announce his retirement, saying "I have lost my sight and am on the edge of losing my mind." He boarded a flight for Boston three hours later.

"I just can't see the ball," said Conigliaro, who suffered a serious eye injury when hit by a pitch while with the Boston Red Sox in 1967. "I have no depth perception at all. I have a blind spot."

"At this time, I'd say there's no chance I'll ever return to baseball as a player," the young outfielder said during an airport interview. "There's no way I'll return this year and it's very doubtful that I'd try to come back next year."

Mexican Driver Dies in Crash

NUERNBERG, Germany (AP) — "A sad loss for racing and a sad loss for Mexico."

That was the reaction of British racing driver Graham Hill, two-time world champion, upon hearing of the death of Pedro Rodriguez Sunday in a crash during a European inter-series race at the Norisring.

Rodriguez, 30, died in Nuernberg Municipal Hospital two hours after the Ferrari he was driving blew a front tire, crashed into a wall and burst into a sheet of flames.

Rodriguez almost quit racing nine years ago when his brother Ricardo, also a prominent Formula I driver, was killed at the age of 20 in a crash during practice for the Mexican Grand Prix. But the lure of the track proved too great.

His first Grand Prix victory came in 1968, in South Africa. He has been the No. 1 BRM Formula I team driver since 1968, and was third in world driving championship standings this year.

"He was a conscientious, hard-working driver," said Carlos Braniff, an official of the Mexican Grand Prix organizing committee. "For the past five or six years he was slowly but surely getting into the realm of the great drivers."

Hill echoed Braniff's sentiments. "He was one of the world's top drivers," the former Indianapolis 500 champion said. "He was getting faster and faster as he gained maturity."

Pedro Rodriguez, who fully backed both his sons in the sport which eventually led to their death, called Sunday's tragedy a "terrible blow."

Despite his brother's death, Pedro could not break away from the sport. "Motor racing," he once said, "is something that comes out of you. You have something—something in the blood—and it comes out. Nobody can teach you how to drive. You learn it."

WOMAN JOCK WINS DERBY

WASSENSAR, The Netherlands (Reuter) — Ina Schwarzkaechel, 28, became Sunday the first woman jockey in the world to ride a derby winner, steering three-year-old Cleopatra to victory in the Derby of the Thoroughbreds here.

An attractive blonde, Ina became The Netherland's first professional woman jockey in 1966.

Tillicums Win

Marilyn Tobacco hit a home run Sunday to pace Tillicum Athletic Club to a 13-0 victory over Westendale Constructionettes in a Victoria Senior Women's Softball League game at Beacon Hill Park.

Vic West Bowlers Complete Area List

Two quartets from the Victoria West club completed the list of area representatives going to the British Columbia lawn bowling playdowns beginning July 22 in Vancouver with home-green victories at the weekend.

Victoria West's Hugh Renfrew, Bill Shimp, Bob Baird and Doug Bole advanced with an 18-16 win over the defending provincial champions from Victoria on Sunday. The defeated rink consisted of Lionel Nichols, Chuck Davies, Fred Sallis and Tom McKeachie. Ernie Stott, Paul Jenkins, Claude Dolstra and Ernie Wakefield won the other berth with a 20-18 victory over the Burnside foursome of Alex Donald, Sid Smethurst, Mike Belton and Fred Hall.

Winners of other Vancouver Island zone berths in previous competitions were John Green of Oak Bay and Percy Hawes of Burnside in singles as well as Colin Fleck and John McMillan of Burnside and Jim McGregor and John Wright of Victoria West in doubles.

Shawnigan Crews Unlucky To Win Only One Trophy

BEDFORD, England (CP) — Crews from Shawnigan Lake school in British Columbia have taken one final and lost out in two others in a rowing competition billed as the first major regatta on the British schedule following the annual classic at Henley-on-Thames.

One account of the Bedford regatta, appearing in the London Sunday Telegraph, said the Canadian schoolboys "can count themselves unlucky to have carried off only one trophy" after the races here Saturday.

Shawnigan Lake beat out the Wycliffe crew to win the final of the novice fours by three lengths in a time of four minutes 22 seconds, about average for this category of finals at Bedford.

The Canadian school encountered its worst bout of hard luck in the junior fours.

In this event, it lost out to the Thames Club by two feet in a time of 4:10.

An early clash occurred between the competing boats and might have led to a restart in the race but it was allowed to continue.

Observers said Shawnigan should have appealed immediately after the race but the Canadians did not do so until they had left their boat, which meant the appeal was not allowed.

In a third final, a junior eights crew from Shawnigan Lake was leading University College school when, at the last minute, the British boat put on a burst of speed.

This flustered the Canadians whose boat lurched badly and lost out by two-thirds of a length.

TOP ONTARIO JOCKEY . . . . . SUSPENDED AGAIN

Sandy Seeks Other Stewards

TORONTO (CP) — Sandy Hawley is quitting the Ontario thoroughbred circuit to try his riding luck elsewhere.

"I'm going away for a while," the 22-year-old jockey from Oshawa, Ont., said today. He leads the Ontario riders with 136 wins this season.

Hawley, who led North American jockeys in 1970 with 452 victories, learned Saturday that he had been given a five-day suspension for what the track stewards termed careless riding with Tiger Terry in the third race last Friday.

It was the fourth five-day suspension for Hawley this year, and is scheduled to begin Wednesday and conclude with the ending of the Woodbine racetrack summer meeting next Sunday.

Hawley was reluctant to discuss his feelings toward the judges.

"Perhaps I'll try New York, but wherever I go I'll learn to keep my head up or correct whatever they think I'm doing wrong here."

Apart from the fifth race, Hawley didn't do much wrong on Sunday. A crowd of 13,640 watched him ride five winners, missing a sixth with Sly Mongoose.

On Saturday, Hawley star-red again, this time capturing the $48,450 Maturity Stakes with Mary of Scotland in the 1¼-mile test on the turf course.

Vancouver Girl Named Top Swimmer in Meet

EDMONTON (CP) — Ten Canadian and five British records fell at the four-day Canadian national swimming championships that ended Sunday.

All the records were achieved by only five individual swimmers and relay teams from one swimming club, Vancouver Dolphins.

At close of competition, Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont., and Bob Kasting of Lethbridge, Alta., were named female and male swimmers of the year, based on their results during the last 12 months. The two were not top performers at the meet although Miss Coughlan gained four gold medals and set one Canadian record.

Kasting was the top performer in last year's national competition and the points were carried forward to help him to the 1971 award.

Leslie Cliff of Vancouver, who had 33 points in this year's meet from four firsts, four seconds and one third, was named top swimmer of the meet. She also set a Canadian record.

TOP MALE SWIMMER

The top male swimmer was Graham McLintock of San Diego, Calif., a Canadian citizen. He had 17 points from two firsts, two seconds and a third.

The Vancouver Dolphins won the aggregate title by a wide margin over the Vancouver Amateur Swim Club, although compilation of the points-total was delayed.

Ray Terrell of Britain was the top non-Canadian with five wins, including four British records.

In Sunday's competition, Terrell broke the English and British records in the 1,500-metre freestyle, winning in 17 minutes, 9.5 seconds to better Alan Kimber's previous mark of 17:13.2.

Miss Coughlan won the 800-meter freestyle in a Canadian record time of 9.25.8. She held the previous mark of 9:30.8.

Miss Cliff broke the Canadian record in the women's 200-meter breaststroke Sunday although she finished second to Dorothy Harrison, the British record holder. Her time was 2:51.6, breaking the record of 2:52.1 held previously by Jane Wright of Oakville, Ont. Miss Harrison won in 2:50.7.

SWEEP RELAYS

Vancouver Dolphins won their seventh and eighth relay events of the meet, completing a sweep of all eight events entered.

The women's team of Donna Marie Gurr, Rose Marie Pepe, Miss Cliff and Wendy Cook won the 400-meter medley relay in 4:42.9. They bettered their own previous Canadian record of 4:43.3.

The Dolphins men's 400-metre Medley team of Jim MacDonald, Billy Mahoney, Ian MacKenzie and Bruce Robertson tied their own Canadian record of 4:07.2 in winning their event.

Other records were set earlier in the meet by Terrell in the 200-meter freestyle and 200- and 400-meter individual medley and Mike Richard of Britain set a record in the 200-meter backstroke.

Most of the records went to the Dolphins who set new times in seven relay events.

Eichelberger Earns Top Milwaukee Prize

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dave Eichelberger outnerved two unheralded players in a hot finish with a closing three-under-par 71 for a one-stroke victory in the $125,000 Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament Sunday.

With a three-way tie looming in the battle for the $25,000 top money after Australian Bob Shaw and Ralph Johnston finished with a 72-hole total of 271, Eichelberger birdied the 17th hole and closed with a par. He wound up with 270, 14 under par.

Johnston blew a three-foot birdie putt on the 18th which could have sent the match at Tripoli Golf Club's par-71 course into a sudden-death playoff.

Johnston closed with a 67 and Shaw, who started the final round four strokes off the pace, shot a 66 to share second place and earn $11,575 each.

The final round over the windswept course, was a see-saw scrap with at least a three-way tie for first looming.

But Eichelberger broke the tension in the final two-some with his birdie on the par-five 476-yard 17th hole by dropping his approach to within three feet and easily sinking the putt.

About 45 minutes before the end, it appeared that even Bruce Crampton of Australia might also figure in a four-way sudden-death playoff as he went to the clubhouse 12 under par with a closing 65. Crampton won $5,850 with his fourth-place standing.

Rod Funseth, who had held the third round lead by a stroke Saturday, faded to a 72 for fifth place and $5,125.

Five players wound up four strokes behind and were tied for sixth. They included Dean Refram, who was tied with Eichelberger for second after 54 holes, Lou Graham, Roy Pace, Paul Moran and veteran Lionel Hebert, who scored his second successive 69.

Pigtailed Jane Tops U.S. Match

HORSHAM, Pa. (AP) — Pigtailed Jane Blalock overcame Kathy Whitworth's two-stroke lead and charged to a five-under-par 68 Sunday to win the $25,000 George Washington women's golf tournament.

The 25-year-old Miss Blalock rolled in six birdies and had only one over-par hole as she shot a 33-35—68 for a winning 54-hole total of 11-under-par 208.

It was her first tour victory of 1971 and her second since turning professional two years ago. Prize money was $3,750.

The 31-year-old Miss Whitworth, leading all-time money winner on the women's tour, folded under a steady drizzle, shooting a three-over-par 38-38—76 for a total of 214.

She slipped to third place behind the women's U.S. Open champion, JoAnne Carner, who carded a final round 69 and a 54-hole count of 210, two strokes behind Miss Blalock.

He Never Looked Back

MONT TREMBLANT, Que. (CP) — David McConnell drove his Lotus 69B to victory in a 40-lap race for Formula B cars at Le Circuit Sunday to take the lead in the Player's Challenge Series for Canadian drivers.

The Montreal driver was ahead from start to finish over the 2.65-mile track and wound up four seconds in front of second-place Brian Robertson of Ottawa driving a Brabham BT35.

Third place went to Derek Johnson of Montreal at the wheel of a March.

McConnell, who set the fastest lap with a time of 1:40.6, earned 30 points with his win to move into the lead after two races in the six-race series.

Favorites Advance In City Tennis Meet

Top seeds came through with wins Sunday in the second day of play of the Victoria City Open tennis championships.

Roger Skillings, top-seeded in the men's singles competition, advanced with a 6-2, 6-2, victory over J. Nichol while top-ranked Sally Wood remained alive defeating J. Shaw, 6-0, 6-2.

Ernie Cockayne, second-seeded and the defending men's champion outpointed Dave Tooby, 6-1, 6-4.

In opening-round matches Saturday, Ivor Goodmanson and Martin Taylor won singles matches, teamed up for a victory in the men's doubles and partnered Nancy Hill and Wendy Cuppage, respectively, for wins in the mixed doubles event.

Competition continues tonight at the Racquet Club of Victoria and Oak Bay Tennis Club courts.

Movers Step Up Into Top Berth

Greaves Movers took over first place in the Victoria Senior Amateur League on Sunday by trimming the formerly leading Farmer Construction 5-3 and 2-0 in a doubleheader at Royal Athletic Park.

In other games Sunday, Gorge Hotel downed Al's Home Service 4-2 in a 12-inning contest that was continued from June 1 before Al's turned around and bounced Gorge 3-1 in a regulation-length tussle.

John Yankoski had two hits for three trips to the plate and scored two runs, including the winner, in the first game for Greaves. In the second encounter, Greaves scored an unearned run in the fourth inning to provide the winning margin.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Sam Ball, 6-foot-4, 240-pound tackle for the National Football League-champion Baltimore Colts, has announced his retirement from professional grid action because of four knee injuries.

Locals Helped Hold Tigers by the Tail

By ERNIE FEDORUK

The internationals and professionals did their thing, but some soccer followers found additional pleasure in the heroics of the homebrews Saturday when Victoria Royals played to a 1-1 draw with Sing Tao Tigers of Hong Kong.

The Royal Athletic Park offering was delightful entertainment for 1,294 fans — Royals' largest crowd of the season.

The result preserved Sing Tao's unbeaten tour record, and did nothing to detract from Royals' steadily-soaring stature as a crowd-pleasing side.

Tigers now have won three games and tied two on their North American tour. Both draws came against Western Canada Soccer League opposition, Vancouver Spartans also drawing 1-1 with the Hong Kong professionals.

Both goals were scored in the first half.

Halfback Chan Hung Ping pushed the tourists into a 1-0 lead with a blazing drive that gave goalie Iam McFaul no chance. Centre forward Ash Valdal, set up neatly by Bob Bolitho, equalized three minutes before the intermission.

Royals were bolstered by a pair of visiting internationals, and both performed strongly. McFaul, regular keeper with Newcastle United and a Northern Ireland choice, made a number of smart saves, but none better than a pair against Chan Hung Ping and another against Cheung Chi Wai.

Leeds United and England centre half Jack Charlton, Victoria's other "guest," also played strongly, both on defence and on attack.

Charlton paid tribute to the prowess of the Asians when he said "it's been a long time since I've been forced to go at a pace like we went tonight."

It was an extremely fast pace, and Sing Tao lived up to all advance notices. Speedy and agile, the Tigers went all the way with the short-passing, control game.

Thanks to McFaul, Charlton and playing-coach Brian Hughes, Royals were able to hold their own. Without those three, it might have been a different story.

Still, the "homebrews" came out strongly. Halfback Brian Robinson, fullback Howie Anderson, Valdal and Bob Bolitho — all graduates of district minor ranks — played steadily and, indeed, seemed quite at home with and against all the visiting professionals.

Royals step back into their own league for the next game. Spartans visit Royal Athletic Park on Wednesday, starting at 7:15 p.m.

Russell Holds Lead

KELOWNA (AP) — Johnny Russell of Vancouver exploded to a 75 Saturday, but managed to hang on to win his fifth Ogopogo open golf championship by four strokes over Doug Bailey of Kelowna.

The veteran Willingdon Cup team member's three-over-par round, combined with two rounds of 68, gave him a 54-hole total of 211, one stroke off the open record.

Bailey, 24, moved within two strokes of the leader on the 10th hole, but had to settle for a 74 and a 215 total.

Dave Barr, 19, of Kelowna also had a two-over-par 74 and finished in a third-place tie at 216 with Bert Ticehurst of 72 Saturday, low score for the day.

Mitch Welters of Vancouver, a 10-handicapper, won the tournament's low net with a 205.

Young Stars Prove Talent By Setting 16 B.C. Records

By DOUG PEDEN

"Youth development" was the theme and young athletes demonstrated at Centennial Stadium Friday and Saturday that they could combine the ingredients of opportunity and top-flight competition and cook up a batch of records.

This was the 24th annual Y-Times invitational track and field meet, altered in format this year by dropping events for older performers and concentrating on opening the gates of opportunity for youngsters in the peewee (11 and 12 years), bantam (13 and 14) and midget (15 and 16) divisions.

More than 500 young people from the Pacific Northwest accepted the challenge of competition in a meet exclusively for under-17 prospects and they proved their ability to make the best of their chances by smashing a total of 16 British Columbia age-class records.

Another provincial standard was equalled and one of the new marks surpassed the Canadian record.

Setting the national mark were four midget boys from Vancouver Optimist Striders who zipped through the 1,600-metre relay in three minutes, 31.9 seconds.

Most impressive of the record-setting efforts was the one by Nanaimo's Phil Olsen, who added almost 21 feet to the former bantam boys' javelin standard when he tossed the spear 161 feet, 11½ inches in Friday's portion of the meet. It was announced erroneously Saturday that Olsen's mighty heave was in the discus event.

Mike Bakse, a tall and powerful young man competing for the Grays Harbor Greyhounds from Washington, took care of the bantam boys' discus record Saturday with a throw of 145 feet, 9¼ inches. Bakse also collected a shotput record with a heave of 42 feet, 8½ inches.

Another Greyhound, Eric Bissell, established a midget boys' discus record of 137 feet, 1¾ inches and his Grays Harbor clubmate, Mickey Ryan, leaped 14 feet 10 inches in the long jump to topple a peewee boys' mark.

Distance Mark Cut by 40.9 Seconds

Boys from Kerrisdale cracked three other standards in the peewee division.

Rob Lonergan turned in a tremendous effort in the 3,000-metre run when he slashed 40.9 seconds off the former record with a time of 10:32.8.

Ted Kenny boosted the javelin record to 92 feet, five inches, and Kenton Ebel trimmed the 400-metre mark to 63.1 seconds.

Peewee girls established two new records. Lisa Harms of the Seattle Eastside club entended the long jump mark by two and one-half inches with a leap of 15 feet, 10½ inches and the Richmond Track Club quartet scooted through the 400-metre relay in 55.7 seconds, cutting three-tenths from the old record.

SWIFTEST BANTAM

Mark de Salvo was the swiftest of the bantam boys. The youngster from the Seattle Meadowbrook club twice broke the 100-metre mark and reduced it to 23.2 seconds as he won the final. Mark also equalled the provincial mark in the 100 metres as he sprinted to the tape in 11.9 seconds.

De Salvo also shared another record as Meadowbrook lopped six-tenths of a second off the bantam boys' 400-metre relay standard with a timing of 47.7.

Meadowbrook captured the boys' aggregate title with a total of 148 points and Eastside collected the girls' aggregate crown with a harvest of 123 points.

OUTSTANDING ATHLETE

Ted Roberts of the Alberni Valley club was a spectacular performer and was selected as the outstanding male athlete. Roberts, competing in the bantam division, added three and one-half inches to the provincial long jump record with a leap of 19 feet, five inches.

Roberts also won the triple jump, and had second-place finishes in the high jump, 100 metres and 200 metres.

Ann Martin, a bantam with the Richmond Track Club, and Jean Sparling, a midget star with Vancouver Olympic Club, were co-winners of the award for the meet's outstanding female athlete.

Organizers of the meet, sponsored by the Victoria YM-YWCA and the Daily Times, believe that cool weather, which took the bounce out of the all-weather track, prevented the youngsters from setting more records in track contests.

Despite some rain in the morning, officials kept Saturday's program running with remarkable precision and they may have set some sort of a record for age-class meets when they had events running ahead of schedule through a good part of the day.

Draw by B.C. Helps Ontario Survive Jolt

Despite a stunning loss to Alberta in the final match of the inter-provincial cricket tournament Saturday, Ontario captured the Hiram Walker Trophy and Canadian championship on the basis of a solid performance in the week-long event.

And a little help from defending-champion Quebec was appreciated by Ontario.

While Alberta was collecting its lone win of the tourney by 20 runs at University School, Quebec held British Columbia to a draw at Beacon Hill Park in Saturday's windup matches.

B.C. could have tied for the title by winning its match.

In the other final match, Manitoba finished strongly to defeat Saskatchewan by 73 runs at Windsor Park.

Ontario spin bowlers gave Alberta some early trouble but the Prairie squad counter-attacked with strong batting led by Sefton Wallace (21, not out) to finish with 90 runs.

Ontario found 91 a difficult target to reach and after losing early wickets, were all out at 70.

THEY KNEW IT

British Columbia players heard of Ontario's collapse and realized that a share of the title was within reach.

Zig Hathorn hit 77 runs and B.C. declared at 180, for nine wickets.

Fast bowlers Allan Carter and Alec Porter, both of Victoria struck an early blow for B.C. and Quebec was soon three wickets down for eight runs. Carter toppled two wickets for 19 runs while Porter finished with one for 15.

Dave Lawless and Noel Harris, however, spoiled the plot by coming together with some strong batting and stayed at the wicket until time ran out with the score at 86 for four. Lawless was 37, not out, and Harris 22, not out. Thus B.C. had to be content with one point from a draw to finish third, one point behind Manitoba and two behind Ontario.

Vic Walker of Ontario won the trophy as leading run-scorer with a total of 211 runs in five innings.

Slow-bowler Marshall de Souza of Quebec was the leading wicket-taker by toppling 22 while Ontario's Ron Aldridge had the best individual bowling analysis. He took seven wickets for 42 runs against B.C. on Wednesday.

FANS BATTLE PLAYERS IN MATCH AT TORONTO

TORONTO (CP) — An exhibition soccer game between Dinamo Zagreb of Yugoslavia and the Greek National team ended with 27 minutes left to play following a riot between Dinamo players and fans.

With the score tied 1-1, referee Terry Bell abandoned the game when the Dinamo team refused to resume play.

Police took more than 10 minutes to clear the field of irate spectators among the 15,000 who converged on the Zagreb goal area after Dinamo goalkeeper Douthegovic started slugging several of the Greek team players.

The trouble started with Doutbegovic was called for fouling Domagos of Dimitros. Referee Bell awarded a penalty kick and the Zagreb goalie argued the point.

With payers of both teams milling about, Doubtegovic suddenly charged among the Greek players and began striking at them with his fists.

Pearce, Sluggers Wrap Up Pennant

Bate Construction got good mileage out of pitcher Brian Pearce and the home run hitters for a three-game weekend sweep that nailed down the Major Men's Softball League pennant.

Bates belted Seaboard 8-0 Saturday and then marked up a 4-3 decision over the second-place club on Sunday. In between, Bates also downed Strathcona Hotel 6-1.

Seaboard edged Strath 3-2 in another Sabbath contest as the league played catch-up on postponed games.

Pearce stretched his record to 5-0 by winning two games. He also came in as a pinch-hitter and scored what proved to be the winning run for Barry Jackson in a 4-3 decision over Seaboard.

Bates banged out 29 hits in the three games, including five home runs. Harvey Stevenson and George Banks each collected two round-trippers while Ken Bate accounted for the other.

Century's Hopes Chilled by Sooke

Sooke Merchants put a chill on Century Inn's hopes for undisputed possession of second place while Colwood Inn and Labatts swapped victories in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League Sunday.

Sooke, sparked by Norm Goudie's three-run homer in the first inning, tripped Century 6-5 to prevent the Innkeepers from breaking out of a second-place tie with the idle Bell's Men's Wear.

Larry Neil's two-run single in the fifth inning gave Sooke its victory.

One-hit pitching by Bob Palm gave Labatts a 3-2 decision but Colwood rebounded for a 4-1 victory in the second half of the Heywood Avenue Park double-header.

Ron Grant spoiled Palm's no-hit bid with a run-producing double in the second.

Labs managed only three hits off loser Mike Rye, but bunched two of them with two errors for a winning, three-run rally in the sixth inning.

Jack Lundquist's three-hit pitching enabled Colwood Inn to square accounts in the second game.

Pressure Putt Okay

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Terry Kendall, a 23-year-old professional from Wellington, N.Z., sank a six-foot pressure putt on the 18th green here Sunday to win the $5,500 Atlantic Open golf championship.

One stroke behind at 203 was Bruce Fleisher of Port St. Lucie, Fla., who finished final round with a one-under-par 69. Gary Pitchford, a Canadian who plays out of Lucayan in the Bahamas, finished third at 208.

120 Arrested At S.A. Game

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — At least 120 persons were arrested in wild clashes with police Saturday at the touring South African Springboks Rugby Union game here with New South Wales.

Thousands of demonstrators packed the outer area of the Sydney cricket stadium and kept up steady, loud chants in the noisiest anti-apartheid protest so far on the South African tour.

Smoke bombs and flares were fired over the heads of the police and twice demonstrators broke on to the field during the match, which the Springboks won 25-3.

But play was interrupted only momentarily as police quickly arrested the invaders and swept away their smoke bombs.

27-Pounder Jigged

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP) — Joe Belanger of Flin Flon used a two-ounce red and white jig to catch a 27-pound nine-ounce lake trout, the biggest lake trout at the 21st annual Flin Flon Trout Festival.

"I still can't believe it," said Belanger, after tucking the $1,000 first-prize cheque into his pocket. Two other Flin Flon fishermen, Jim Lambkin and Bill Urechke, were second and third.

System Criticized

EDMONTON (CP) — R. M. Hardy, dean of engineering at the University of Alberta, says the committee system has made the administration of universities cumbersome and frustrating.

For example, said the dean who is retiring Aug. 1, the committee that selected his successor, Dr. George Ford, took nine months "to come up with the decision that was the most obvious."

The 64-year-old dean also said in an interview that he believes the day may soon come when high schools will gear their teaching to the average student, and let the universities take care of the upgrading of the education of the 10 per cent of the high school students who get to university.

80,000 See Show

MOOSE JAW (CP) — More than 80,000 people lined the tarmac at the Canadian Forces base Sunday to watch the Saskatchewan Homecoming 71 airshow.

Billed as the "biggest in North America," the show featured all types and styles of aircrafts from the awkward-looking Buffalo to the newest st[illegible] reconnaissance fighter aircraft, the CF5.

The show is part of homecoming celebrations, a tourist promotion inviting former Saskatchewan residents to return to visit this year.

Smash Kills 3

EDMONTON (CP) — Police have identified three persons killed Saturday in a car-truck crash as Joyce Ann Briggs, 19, of Vegreville and Diane Laboucane, 17, and Ronald William McCarroll, 22, both of Edmonton.

Police said the car, in which seven persons were riding, and the truck were east-bound into the city when they collided near the entrance to a service station near the western city limits.

The truck driver was not injured.

Lightning Death

NORTH BATTLEFORD (CP) — Joran Duchscherer, 49, was killed Sunday when he was struck by lightning on a golf course at North Battleford.

No Injuries In Jet Crash

CALGARY (CP) — The pilot and seven passengers of a private jet escaped injury Sunday when it crashed while landing at Calgary International Airport.

Piloted by J. W. McKenzie of Vernon, B.C., the aircraft had touched down successfully when the undercarriage retracted and dropped the aircraft on its belly.

Damage was estimated at $50,000.

Mishaps Kill Three in B.C.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least three persons died in accidents in British Columbia during the weekend — and the toll could go as high as five.

Two died in traffic accidents and a youngster was drowned. In addition, two men are missing and presumed drowned in Slocan Lake, about 270 miles east of Vancouver.

Twenty-two-year-old Michael Gregory Peak and Charles Madison Reed, 23, were members of a mountain-climbing expedition of four persons in a canoe which overturned Sunday on the lake.

A youngster from Alberta drowned Sunday while swimming at Revelstoke. He has not been identified.

Nineteen-year-old Dennis Rickard of New Westminster suffered fatal injuries Friday when his motorcycle apparently went out of control and slid into the path of an oncoming car.

Twenty-four-year-old John Allan Smith of Prince George and Williams Lake died early Sunday when his car left a highway about 20 miles north of Quesnel in the Cariboo.

Bergman Says He May Quit in Two Years

STOCKHOLM (Reuter) — Swedish movie director Ingmar Bergman, acknowledged for the last two decades as one of the medium's masters, is thinking of retiring.

"I plan to go on, if God is willing and my pants hold, for another couple of years, to make four or five films and then retire . . . and perhaps devote myself to experimenting for my own personal pleasure," he announced in a locally-produced documentary about his life and work.

The 53-year-old director, who has just completed his first English-language film, said he went on making movies because he enjoyed it. But he has been devoting an increasing amount of time to the theatre.

Describing himself as a relatively inhibited, shy and timid person, he thought his desire to make movies was connected with a need for contact with other people.

Bergman said probably the main reason he continued making films was because the cinema was "a fantastic medium with which to touch other human beings, to reach them, to either annoy them or make them happy; to make them sad or to get them to think; to get them started emotionally."

Appropriately, his latest movie is entitled The Touch. As well as two members of Bergman's own troupe of actors, Max Von Sydow and Bibi Anderson, it stars American Elliot Gould, whose performances in Getting Straight and M.A.S.H. have brought him a reputation as one of the finest young film actors to emerge in recent years.

Bergman described The Touch as an everyday story about a middle-class housewife, married to a senior physician, who lives in an extremely sheltered, small-town environment. Into her life walks a rootless person, an archeologist played by Gould, and her world is turned upside down.

THE WEATHER

Skies cleared in most of British Columbia during the night and lows were generally in the mid forties. However, the central interior remained mostly cloudy.

The upper disturbance which has been responsible for the cloudy cool weather in B.C. now shows signs of drifting south westward over the Pacific. Behind it a slow drying trend is expected in the province with gradually improving weather conditions in all areas.

Victoria: Today and Tuesday — sunny except for early morning cloudiness both days. Brisk westerly winds at times. Highs both days 65 to 70. Lows tonight near 50.

West Coast: Today and Tuesday — mostly sunny and a little warmer. Highs today in the upper sixties and Tuesday near 70. Lows tonight about 50.

$1.7 Billion In Aid Gone

NEW YORK (AP) — The federal General Accounting Office reports it has been unable to determine how $1.7 billion in U.S. funds authorized for the pacification program in South Vietnam was spent or committed during a three-year period ending last July 30, the New York Times said Saturday.

The newspaper said GAO auditors, who made their survey in Vietnam, stated in a report that they could find specific obligations for only $339.2 million of the total $2.1 billion authorized for the pacification program for fiscal years 1968, 1969 and 1970.

The 160-page report has not been made public, the Times added, but was distributed July 1 to Secretary of Defence Melvin Laird and several congressional committees.

In Washington, Roy J. Bullscaff, administrator for the House Foreign Affairs Committee, confirmed Saturday that the committee had a copy of the GAO report. He said the report was classified at the White House's request, however, and could not be released.

Rain Curtails Stock Offering

A pair of 50-lap auto races became a single 60-lapper Saturday because of rain at Western Speedway.

Rain which had been threatening to douse 2,109 racing fans all evening finally began to fall just before the twin features of the open stock car program.

So the features became a "feature" after the rain let up and Ken Mangels of Campbell River was declared the winner after some late confusion.

The mix-up occured after Brian Nelson, leading from the 27th to 57th laps, bowed out with mechanical difficulties and lap recorders went looking for the runner-up. Despite stopping the race on the wrong lap, recorders carefully checked the figures and confirmed Mangels the winner with Rod Caddell second.

HALL INJURED

Two accidents marred the fast heat. Herb hall of Campbell River lost control and bounced into Larry christie of Campbell River and Bill Potts of Nanaimo, putting all three vehicles out of contention. Hall was taken to hospital where stitches were required to seal a cut on his knee.

On the final lap, Larry Pollard lost control coming out of the number-one turn and took out half the billboard on the backstretch. Pollard, who had been leading the pack, was uninjured despite having two pieces of lumber bounce off his helmet.

Results:

Main event — 1. Kent Mangels, Campbell River; 2. Rod Caddell; 3. Jack McCauley, Campbell River.

Fast heat — 1. Rod Caddell; 2. Ralph Whiley, Campbell River; 3. Jack Gold, Nanaimo; 4. Kent Mangels, Campbell River.

First heat — 1. Ron Fleet; 2. Tony Johnson; 3. Earl Pollard; 4. Rob Layfield.

"A" trophy dash — 1. Ralph Whiley, Campbell River; 2. Larry Christie, Campbell River; 3. Kent Mangels, Campbell River; 4. George Stuart, Campbell River.

"B" trophy dash — 1. Orton Ker; 2. Earl Pollard; 3. Rob Layfield; 4. Rosy Syr, Campbell River.

Island Quartet Selected

Four players from Vancouver Island have been selected to the Canadian women's basketball team which will compete in the Pan-American Games in Cali, Colombia, July 26.

Mary Coutts of Victoria, Angie Radanovich of Nanaimo, Wendy Grant of Campbell River and Heather Witzel of Courtenay were among those named to the 12-member team.

Four of the remaining eight players also are from British Columbia —Pauline Gensick of Nakusp, Betty Ross of Vancouver, Joanne Sargent of Canoe and Kathy Williams of West Vancouver.

Rounding out the team are Marg Curry of Swift Current, Sask.; Joyce Douthwright of Gunningsville, N.B.; Leslie Hamerton of Winnipeg and Pat Tatham of Hamilton.

Darlene Currie of Vancouver was named the coach.

Mrs. Coutts and Miss Radanovich both play for Victoria Maplettes.

Mrs. Coutts, named Victoria's female athlete-of-the-year in 1968, has been included on the Canadian team since 1966 and represented Canada at the 1967 Pan-Am Games as well as the world championship in Brazil this year.

Brothers Retain Tag-Team Title

Stephen Little Bear and Duncan McTavish won the final fall by disqualification Saturday night, giving them the match but enabling the Skull Brothers to retain their Canadian tag-team championship in the feature bout of a professional wrestling card at Memorial Arena.

Gene Kiniski defeated Dean Higuchi, Freddy Baron downed Wolfman Gorky and Nick Pacciano outgrappled Rick Renaldo in other bouts.

Midget Crown To View Royal

NANAIMO — View Royal of the Colwood and District Softball Association captured the Vancouver Island midget boys' championship Saturday with 10-1 and 10-5 victories over Nanaimo.

The Island champs now meet the Mainland representatives for the provincial crown in another best-of-three-series next weekend.

Late Goals Save Vancouver's Day

VANCOUVER — Harry McTaggart's penalty goal on the last play of the match gave Vancouver Oldtimers a 3-3 draw with Victoria Oldtimers on Saturday at Adanac Park.

George Paul, Ian Harris and Ted Smith counted for Victoria, which led 2-0 at half-time. Andy Keevner and John Pye, who scored four minutes from the final whistle, also scored for Vancouver.

Bakers, Hunters Ring Up Triumphs

Victoria McDonald's Bread enjoyed a romp in Junior "B" circles but city intermediate lacrosse squads could do no better than split weekend engagements on the mainland.

Sparked by the five-goal, six-assist performance of Jim Lynch, the junior Bakers trounced South Vancouver Legion 23-3 Sunday.

Glen Neuman, Darryl Hooker and Mike Walsh each added three goals while Bob Crook, Gerry Kustaski and Norm Baker Jr. each counted a pair. Dave Thompson, Tom Laussasseur and Randy Sylvester hit for singles.

The intermediate Bakers were upset 17-11 by North Vancouver while Saanich E. J. Hunter edged Vancouver Mohawks 15-13.

Jeevan Dillon, Don Ferguson and Rob Clifford each scored twice against North Van.

Don Green (4), Mike Wilson (3) and Jim McCreesh (3) powered the Saanich intermediates, who also got two goals from Leigh Hagen and singles from Matt Mannix, Frank Faust and Dave Lowden.

Three goals by Jim Walshall sparked McDonalds to a 10-7 win over Nanaimo City in senior "B" play last Thursday. Owen Richman, Jindy Johl and Murray Murault counted two apiece for Victoria.

SWEDISH STYLE

A Sex Education For Our Minister

The hope that this province might eventually catch up with much of the rest of the civilized world in educating children to cope intelligently with the most vital function of their adult lives would appear to have died, not with a bang but a whimper. Oh, Lord! Oh, Social Credit!

While it's true that local school boards may make their own decisions on programs of sex education, it's surely a stunning triumph for Neanderthal thinking that Donald Brothers, the provincial minister of education, has dissociated the government from a planned province-wide course for elementary schools.

A fast poll of teachers and school board trustees, most of them still somewhat dazed by the minister's peremptory scrapping of the sex education section in a new course under the general title Human Life Science, finds them all but unanimous in the opinion that it is a decision Brothers made for political expediency.

Unless the Bennett government is running scared to the point of outright panic I find this hard to swallow. The teachers I've talked to are convinced that, at the outside, there are no more than two parents in every hundred who oppose the idea of an enlightened program of sex education in our schools. More often than not the objection of this insignificant minority is rooted in rigid religious concepts, parents whose children doubtless are most in need of precisely that kind of instruction.

I think a more reasonable explanation — and no idle boast — is that Brothers possesses one of the finest 19th Century minds in these parts, a distinction he nailed down not merely with the cancellation of this well-planned course, but by noises of outrage that Oak Bay High should be considering studies in political science that would include—horrors! —the reading of the works of Karl Marx, causing God knows what revolutionary ferment to start bubbling in the high-rent district.

Like his fellow Social Credit member, the adorable Agnes Kripps, who solemnly proposed in the legislature last year that the word "sex" be officially replaced by the word "bolt" (standing discreetly for "biology on life today") one suspects that the minister of education is afflicted with the well-known ostrich complex. Just don't look — it may all go away, whatever it is: unemployment, poverty, corporate banditry, youth, sex, truth.

★ ★ ★

Nineteen years of Social Credit decision-making undoubtedly has had an anaesthetic effect on the public's capacity for reaction. In this case, sure enough, only those very close to the school system have made even a token complaint. The great body of parents who, presumably, would welcome such a course haven't so much as written a Constant Reader letter-to-the-editor.

That being the case, I see only one possible hope for us to begin catching up with more worldly parts, which means just about everywhere. What I am proposing is the sex education of Donald Brothers.

I propose that a special fund be established — to which I will gladly contribute—to send Donald to Sweden for exactly one month for the purpose of observing first-hand how, from the very first grade, students are taught the realities of sex relationships, how it has changed for the better a nation's attitudes in just one generation, how an eminently respectable, even somewhat strait-laced people, found their way to a new and honest morality through their children.

Sweden is the ideal model — as it is in labor legislation and public housing, though we mustn't expect too much in the way of Social Credit inspiration in those fields — simply because it was the first nation to accept the responsibility of the state in preparing its children for adulthood. It accepted it reluctantly, as we would, as the alternative to parental education, but it accepted it bravely, as we should, in the knowledge that parents can't or won't do the job.

It was an experimental program 15 years in the works, a program that caused a continuing rage of controversy, conflicting theories and implacable resistance from the churches. But in the years since 1956 when the courses became compulsory in every public school that hostility has all but totally disappeared. The nation today rightly prides itself on its pioneering role and gladly shows off its accomplishments to every visitor. When one of the architects of its sex education program visited Canada not long ago he put it right on the line. "We're 50 years ahead of you."

★ ★ ★

I believe that Brothers would accept that, might even become an advocate, if he were to go and see for himself. At the same time I'll concede that the experience might well provide him with some justification for his own cop-out on the grounds of parental objections or, more accurately, inertia.

The first fundamental lesson to be learned in Sweden is that only the relentless pressure of informed public opinion can bring it about. Sex education did not originate through the wisdom, courage or far-sightedness of Swedish legislators. It originated in the insistence of the people who put them into office.

The real trail-blazers were the educators, themselves, and for the most pragmatic of reasons. So many pregnant young girls were dropping out of the school system in those days before The Pill that the teachers demanded a program of sex courses simply as a means of protecting a child's right to have an education.

A majority of parents supported their stand and a significant number of students, themselves, banded together in militant, policy-making student councils, added their weight. Trade unions joined the crusade, to such an extent that they still provide the bulk of the financing for the National Association of Sex Education, a non-government body that plays an important part in sex education outside of the school system.

In retrospect, however, most Swedish educators give the real credit to the women of Sweden. Long before there was a liberation movement the wives and mothers of Sweden had launched the good fight for equality. The right of sexual freedom, of emancipation from a tyranny of ignorance, now a fait accompli in all of Scandinavia, was their single-minded aim. It began with the recognition that a full knowledge of the sexual facts of life for their sons and daughters was Square One.

Big dugout canoe rests in security of Inner Harbor

Leisurely Canoe Trip —Clear to Hawaii

A 43-year-old West Vancouver adventurer will set sail from the Inner Harbor Tuesday on what he hopes will be a 45-day solo voyage to the Hawaiian Islands in a dugout canoe.

For George Tocher the trip is more than an adventure.

He hopes to prove the theory, held by many historians, that Pacific Northwest Haida Indians travelled to Hawaii, the Easter Islands and even New Zealand in their canoes.

It's taken him 2½ years to complete his 50-foot canoe, which is from a design by the Kwakioti band.

She's made of red cedar, painstakingly whittled into shape from a tree seven feet in diameter.

•

Tocher calls her Orenda, an Iroquois word meaning in harmony with nature. "And this I'll have to be on this voyage."

He first learned the art of whittling canoes when he helped Indians with their boats during his years as a faller with a logging company.

Orenda differs from the Haida canoes which Tocher says had two hulls. She has one hull and an outrigger, filled with styrofoam for bouyancy.

There is over 45 feet of rope in each of her lashings and Tocher is under no illusions about their ability to stand up in rough weather.

"I'll probably have to redo them but I met some rough weather in Howe Sound, of all places, and the canoe rode it well."

•

Today he was loading his craft with canned goods and topping his water supply — 40 gallons contained in one-gallon strawberry syrup cans and bleach bottles.

"Some of the water tastes like strawberries but I hope the bleach ones are okay!"

One modern innovation on the unique craft is a self-steering vane, put together for Tocher by Vancouver marine architect Stan Huntingford and mechanic Bill Lee.

The craft is powered by a 16-foot-square mainsail, and a 25-horsepower outboard motor.

When he's not steering with the vane he'll use a 17-foot sweep which took him three days to make, shaped out of yellow cedar with a cherry wood handle.

George Tocher Has Theory to Prove

Wallace Hits Hospital Delay

Dr. Scott Wallace, Social Credit MLA for Oak Bay, said today he sees "no reason whatever" for any further delays in expansion of St. Joseph's Hospital.

Wallace, who sat in on a meeting last Wednesday which sought a compromise solution to lengthy delays in expanding the hospital, said it would be much cheaper to develop St. Joseph's than to build an entirely new hospital in the suburbs.

The fate of the expansion of St. Joseph's depends on Health Minister Ralph Loffmark's approval of arrangements made last week by representatives of the hospital and the city and the regional hospital board.

Loffmark, who returned to Victoria today after spending several days in the Interior, couldn't be reached for comment. His office said he was tied up with meetings.

The city's hopes of extending Belleville Street through the proposed hospital property owned by the Sisters of St. Ann has been a key problem in the issue of expanding St. Joseph's.

City council Thursday unilaterally amended an earlier agreement with the province on the extension question by requiring that technical studies should be the eventual basis for deciding whether to extend the road.

Air Race Display Closed by Thefts

Thefts from three planes in the London-Victoria air race was one reason the public didn't get a really close look at the machines at Saturday's "open house", a race official said today.

Digger Dagg, provincial liaison officer for the race, was replying to complaints that people who drove out to Victoria International Airport to see the aircraft had to look at them from behind a snow fence.

"You cannot leave the public roaming around out there without security or crews to keep an eye on things," Dagg said.

Stolen items included wing-tip generators from one plane and control locks from another. Dagg couldn't remember what was missing from the third plane.

He said visitors were allowed into the fenced-off compound from roughly 10 to 11 a.m. while crews were on hand to keep an eye on things and answer questions.

By 11, however, the crews had to leave to attend All-Sooke Day, so visitors were asked to leave. RCMP officers were on hand to gently shoo out the hangers-on, Dagg said.

About 35 of the 52 race planes were on display.

Mrs. Elizabeth Price, 2822 Craigowan, said she was able to talk to one of the pilots at the fence and that he lifted her child over the fence to sit in his plane.

She said it was "rather maddening" that other people didn't get in.

"I was sure disgusted. If that's B.C.'s centennial, then forget it."

The three top winners of the race saluted the city and the provincial government in a fly-past over the Legislative Buildings at noon Sunday as they departed Victoria.

Officials had hoped more planes would have taken part in the "thankyou" for the reception received in Victoria after the race, but most crews departed individually before-hand because of work commitments.

Meatcutters Accept Two-Year Contract

Meatcutters in Victoria and Vancouver voted overwhelmingly Sunday in favor of a new two-year contract with the major supermarkets.

The agreement, affecting about 120 employees in Victoria and 650 in Vancouver, provides wage increases of $20 a week this year and $20 a week next year for journeymen meatcutters, assistant head meatcutters and head meatcutters. Head meatcutters will get an additional $4 a week this year and $2 next year and assistant head meatcutters will get an additional $2 this year.

Meat and delicatessen clerks will get an additional $16 a week this year and $16 next year.

The old rates of pay were $182 a week for journeymen meatcutters, $192 for head meatcutters, $185 and $186 for assistant head meatcutters and $142 a week for clerks.

Meat department employees also gained a reduction of one hour, to 38 hours, in the average work week which George Johnston, representative of the Amalgamated Meatcutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, described as "the major achievement."

Full-time employees now will accumulate two hours each week and when they reach eight hours they have a day off with pay, Johnston said.

Part-time clerks who would not qualify for this will receive an additional 10 cents an hour this year and another 10 cents an hour next year, he said.

In other areas of the settlement, Johnston said the employer will pay the total cost of the dental plan which now will include orthodontistry, extending coverage to a female employee's husband as well as her children who were previously covered, additional contributions to the employer-paid pension plan, unpaid maternity leave of 11 weeks prior to birth and six weeks after, splitting health and welfare premiums 70-30 between employer and employee instead of 50-50 and severance pay.

Birds Dead From Spray?

Deaths of large numbers of swallows around lower Vancouver Island may have been caused by use of a highly-toxic mosquito pesticide, autopsies revealed today.

Rory Finnegan, a biologist with the Fish and Wildlife Branch, performed the autopsies this morning.

He said use of the substance "Baytex," a mosquito controller, could have killed the birds, large numbers of which have been reported dead on Salt Spring Island, South Pender Island, Central Saanich and the Saxe Point area of Esquimalt.

Finnegan cited two other possibilities of reasons for the deaths: an abnormal level of chlorinated hydrocarbons which would cause a mother to not pay enough attention to her young, and bacterial infection through parasites.

TRACE POSSIBLE

The autopsies were performed on two young nestlings which Finnegan said were both quite fat and showed no obvious signs of cause of death.

One bird was infested with a warble fly maggot which "wouldn't have done it any good, but would not have been fatal," Finnegan said.

He said use of Baytex could be traced through the department of agriculture, which keeps records on users, and that it might have been someone trying to get rid of mosquitoes.

Another possible cause of the deaths, he said, was the weather and a shortage of flying insects.

18-HOUR FEEDING

"Certain weather conditions do not produce enough insects," he said.

The swallows migrate to B.C. all the way from South America especially for the long hours of sunlight and the supply of insects, and if these conditions do not exist, "they may as well stay down in South America."

"The young have to be fed for 18 hours a day," he added, so the amount of insects available is important.

He said samples were being sent to different laboratories to determine pesticide levels in the dead birds and exact levels of chlorinated hydrocarbons, and a check was being made with the agriculture department about the Baytex.

A Central Saanich woman has reported more dead swallows. Mrs. Marilyn Ross, 2351 Styan Road, said a mother bird and her five nestlings were healthy Saturday, but were dead by Sunday.

Finnegan said other types of birds had been reported dead as well. Seven pigeon guillemots, a type of sea bird which feeds on fish and shrimp, were found on the Chain Islands off Oak Bay. All were dead for no apparent reasons.

One had been found sitting dead on its nest, he said, and the six others were around logs in the area.

PANIC

Finnegan said the birds deaths "may have been a natural phenomenon, which happens occasionally in the bird world. Populations get too high, and they fall."

"It's all very unfortunate, and very sad, but it happens."

TO APPLY FOR LANDED IMMIGRANT STATUS

More Ups, Downs for Hannagan

Roger Hannagan's girls have scattered, but the pugilistic pilot is determined to stay in the Victoria area as a Canadian.

Hannagan's navigator, Francine Johnson, was en route home to Montreal this afternoon via commercial airline.

She left Quebec City with the 22-year-old pilot last Sunday after he was disqualified from the London-Victoria air race following a fist-swinging dispute with his regular co-pilot.

Hannagan's girl, Toots Johnson, is waiting to be picked up by him in Seattle on Tuesday.

The 6-foot-6 aviator, with tape holding on the malfunctioning door which started the row with his co-pilot, will carry on from Seattle to return the plane to its owner in Portland Tuesday.

But before he leaves Victoria, Hannagan will apply for landed immigrant status at the immigration office and as soon as he tidies up his affairs in Portland, he'll be back here pounding the pavement in search of a job in commercial aviation.

•

There are indications that a welcoming committee will be on hand when Hannagan and Toots touch down in Oregon.

Portland television newsmen report a barrage of calls asking when the pilot will be landing, and say they will be there to record the event.

Hannagan said the co-pilot with whom he had his now-famous fisticuffs in Scotland, osteopath Dr. Lawrence Dennis, has said he "wants to wash his hands of the whole episode."

For Hannagan, the long saga ends when he turns over the plane to its owner, a Portland physician, Tuesday.

In a rare show of sentiment Friday, Hannagan stood in front of his fellow competitors in the race and apologized, tears in his eyes, his voice breaking.

"I didn't mean to steal the show from all of you," Hannagan said. "If I've offended anyone, I'm sorry."

He was replying to an attack moments earlier at a press conference by Alberta competitor H. W. Aycock. After assailing the press for "poor coverage" of the race, Aycock launched into personal criticism of Hannagan.

•

Here's a man who pulls a fool's stunt in Scotland ... then he comes over here (to Canada) and picks up some girl in Quebec City and everyone thinks he's a hero."

Although Aycock later shook hands and said he harbored no ill will, Hannagan was visibly hurt by the attack.

He explained that he had spent six months modifying his aircraft and otherwise preparing for the race, and was not about to discontinue because of "an argument."

Then, in a move that surprised even race organizers, Air Marshall Clair Annis, president of the Air Race Corporation, praised Hannagan for getting publicity and making the world aware of the race.

Hannagan also was defended by Lillooet pilot Ken Akers, who said he had flown much of the race near Hannagan and found him to be "a friendly person and a good pilot. I think he was just caught in bad circumstances.

"It could have been any one of us. In a case like that, you just have to make the best of it. He did finish the race. He's a damn good pilot."

BOTULISM SCARE IN CANADA

New 'Hazardous Foods' Law Expected After Recall Delay

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Special to the Times

FAMILY SECTION

OTTAWA — The Bon Vivant soup recall in Canada last week will likely result in new, tougher federal regulations for the food distributing and manufacturing industry, to ensure speedier removal of suspected hazardous foods from retail shelves.

The toughest such regulation being seriously considered by federal health officials in the wave of the Bon Vivant incident would be a requirement that food manufacturers and distributors remove suspected food products within a specified number of hours from all retail outlets on request by the government, or face legal action. The health officials are quite concerned about the length of time it has taken to have Bon Vivant soups and sauces removed from grocery and gourmet shelves in Canada. The products, also packed under the Hickory Farms of Ohio, Ancora and Reese Finer foods labels, is suspected to contain a dangerous food poisoning bacteria and toxin.

One man is known to have died from botulism from a Bon Vivant product in the United States. But no such cases have been reported to date in Canada.

Dr. A. B. Morrison, director general of the Food and Drug Directorate (FDD) admitted last week in an interview that the Canadian recall, while better than the American recall, has been slower than desired and less than adequate.

In the nation's capital, headquarters for the FDD, Bon Vivant products were found on store shelves as late as Wednesday by federal inspectors. The products had been ordered removed from retail stores and returned to the Montreal distributor the previous Friday. The FDD says it still is not certain all the products have been recalled and in some Canadian cities the search continues.

Health officials place much of blame for the health-endangering tardiness in recall on the lack of adequate records possessed by food distributors.

Adequate records, the FDD believes, would allow company and government representatives to go directly to retail and wholesale outlets where the products were known to have been delivered. This has not been possible.

This would reduce the recall time to precious hours instead of days or even weeks. Time is particularly important in cases involving a suspected or known direct hazard to health, as in the Bon Vivant case.

And health officials point to the more successful recall record in the drug area, where drug manufacturers and distributors are required by law to maintain detailed records of production, sales and product destinations.

Dr. Morrison said, "The Bon Vivant recall has just not been as good as it should be" and that "improvements" will have to be made.

He said that a special investigation has been launched with the food directorate to determine what specific "improvements" will be required.

One likely improvement would be an increase in the number of food inspectors across the country. Most major cities in the Bon Vivant case have been limited to teams of a handful of inspectors, who were expected to check all likely retail outlets. Many cities had only one inspector assigned to the recall; other cities had none.

Dr. Morrison said he did not know the exact number of inspectors on the Bon Vivant case either nationally or locally.

He stressed that the FDD must be prepared to adequately handle such emergencies, no matter how infrequently they occur.

Families Dance Together

Families interested in getting into shape in their leisure hours should look up up Solomon Walter, a newcomer to the city who's keen on getting Mom, Dad and the kiddies all out on the dance floor together.

Walter, who will be opening up a new dance studio on Fort St. Tuesday, can teach you just about any type of dancing you're interested in learning — from traditional ballroom and the Viennese waltz right through to ethnic specialties.

Walter's own specialty is Israeli dancing, although he's also very knowledgeable about other styles — including British, Central European, and even African.

Although Walter will be offering classes for beginners, intermediates and seniors, he hopes to make a go of classes for the whole family.

"I don't believe in letting anyone sit down," he said. "If parents come with their children, I get them dancing, too."

Big game hunting gets into the blood. There's the thrill of spotting an animal, the excitement of the chase and, finally, skill in bringing the animal down cleanly.

That's the way Thomas R. Gettelman rationalizes an interest that in the past seven years has taken him to Africa, Norway, Alaska, South America, India and into the mountain regions of this province.

Trophies that fill a room specially built for them at the back of the family home on Norfolk Road are evidence not only of his interest but his skill with rifle and gun.

Gettelman's first safari, back in 1964, came almost by accident. He was living in Milwaukee where the family brewing business "active over four generations" had recently been sold and he and a brother had gone into a malting firm.

Three friends were planning a big game hunt in Africa. They wanted to make it a foursome and "almost in a kidding way asked if I'd go along," Gettelman remembers. "I'd done quite a bit of bird hunting in Wisconsin, but no big game. However, much to their surprise, I said I'd take them up."

The four men spent 23 days hunting in what was then Bechuanaland (now Botswana), where they found weldebeest, sable antelope, the greater kudo, red hartebeest, impala, cape buffalo and springbok. They also went after tiger fish on the Zambesi River, "striped and with big teeth . . . not the best eating but good sport . . . although not as good as our own coast salmon."

Gettelman bagged an elephant and he claims that it was the most spine-tingling event of his seven years in big game hunting.

"We spotted a small herd. The guide and the native tracker singled out an old fellow. I aimed for his ear but he didn't go down. Two of the herd bolstered him up on either side and started leading him back into the bush. The others turned and rushed toward the sound of the shot.

"It's well known that elephants do not see well, that they rely on hearing and smell. So we stood perfectly still — hard to do with that tonnage rushing toward us.

Thomas R. Gettelman

Just at the crucial moment they swerved and headed off at a tangent and we started to breathe again. After it was all over we tracked down the wounded animal and found it dead."

A pair of long ivory tusks mounted at the entrance to the trophy room and a hard, stringy elephant tail on the wall are souvenirs of that event.

The following year the same foursome went off to Norway looking for polar bear. "We found them on a little island up in the barren north of that country." Next came Alaska for moose and cariboo, then, in 1969, Gettelman and one of the others went to India for tiger.

"I didn't get one," the quiet spoken man said. "He zagged when he should have zigged and I missed. At the same time I had the thrill of seeing and tracking him."

Another year it was into the interior of British Columbia for cougar, the Cassiars for billy goat and stone steep, and about the same time to Paraguay for jaguar. "The only jaguar we saw had four wheels and steering gear."

Why did this big game hunter finally settle in Victoria? Well, as he puts it, "the time came for semi-retirement at least, and opportunity to do many other things I had always wanted to do."

Another safari? Thomas Gettelman looks over at a corner of the trophy room where his rifles and guns are racked. Then he shakes his head. One of the old-time foursome is now quite ill in Milwaukee. The others have lost interest.

"There may never be another," he says.

But there's a speculative look in his eyes that leads you to believe he is hoping that statement will not be true.

JESUS FREAK MURRAY FENWICK

COMMUNAL CHRISTIAN HOUSE ON MANCHESTER ST. BEING RENOVATED

Booze, Drugs, Sex Not Enough 'Freaks' Turn On With Christ

By HELEN MELNYK

It wasn't so long ago that John Lennon boasted that the "Beatles are more popular than Jesus Christ."

Now that the Beatles have split up, many young people are turning on with eJsus.

Booze, drugs, sex — these young people, commonly known as Jesus freaks, say they've been there. Now they've found what they've been looking for — Christ.

Jesus freaks talk of their lives in terms of "before and after being saved."

The "before life" of Len Bentham, 23, of the local chapter of th eJesus People movement was totally empty."

"I was turning on acid, grass — you-name-it — heavily for five years, said Len. "I had some unusual experiences but I found nothing in it. I wandered around Europe for a while, but there was nothing there. I tried mediation — nothing in that.

Len's "after life" dates back a month when he went to a communion service one evening with a friend.

"I started crying and then I spoke in tongues for two hours afterwards," he said. Len defined "speaking in tongues" as a God-given language.

Len refers to that evening as the day he was "saved", meaning that he experienced Christ and accepted Him as his saviour.

"Christ is the ultimate reality," says Len, "you have to be insane to deny it."

How does he know?

"I KNOW! In prayer I feel a vibrating ecstasy — it's a really pure thing. This may sound very nebulous, but it's beyond words."

Len, an artist, also describes his work in terms of before and after.

"Before my art work was all about me and in praise of myself. All my hang-ups went into it. Now all my art is in praise of God. I did my best art piece after I was saved."

Len was sitting on the floor of an empty old house on Manchester St. He "praised God" frequently. He laughed a lot, too.

So did the others. There were abotu seven of them. wielding hammers and paint brushes and humming hymns in preparation for occupancy. Oblivious to all the activity, two canines lay in the middle of the room inert, except for thumping their tails whenever anyone jumped over them.

House Full

Asked how she got involved with the Jesus People, Bev Hall, 27, of California, made jociferous sounds of amusement.

"I went away from home for a while, leaving a guy to look after the dogs. When I came back, the house was full of Christians," she said.

"There were Bibles all over the house. Every time I sat on a chair, I'd end up on a Bible. I was an atheist then, so it really made me mad."

One evening when Bev was feeling depressed, a friend asked her to go to a revival meeting. "I didn't want to be left alone, so I agreed to go.

"The meetings were being held in a tent in the middle of town. I hoped no one I knew would come by."

Bev said she was so impressed by the meeting that she kept on going, even though at first "it was definitely against my will."

"Everything hasn't become rosy since I've been saved," she said. "But now I've got inner strength to work from.

"Before I thought I had to be totally self-reliant; that I was the last court of appeals. I was struggling with all these things I couldn't handle. God can handle anything.

"Essentially I don't exist without God. There's this little malfunctioning shell called Bev running around.

"Before I was almost in a vacuum as far as personal relationships were concerned. Suddenly I found myself with 60 brothers and sisters. We can always maintain friendship without having to work and work at it, like you normally do outside. Your love for them and their love for you is all a love of God."

Shepherding the little flock is Kenneth Brinton, a 21-year-old youth minister. He outlined plans for the house that is now being renovated. It's going to be a "disciplined" Christian communal home for seven to 10 boys, 16 to 23 years.

Ken defined discipline as a balance between freedom of expression and authority.

"We're going to learn to live and work together for God and to relate to each other as brothers and sisters of Christ."

The boys will meet their food and rent bills by taking jobs, he said.

Ken elucidated the beliefs of the Jesus People.

"People can find a little bit of God in Buddhism, Baha'-Ism, in anything they want to, but to completely realize Him, you must go through Jesus. You're saved by the grace of God, not by good works."

This life is the only chance we get to find or to deny God's glory, stated Ken.

"If you deny Jesus, then you're spiritually dead in this life. You're living a life in Satan and will be in hell for all eternity.

Personal Thing

"God made us with free-will," he emphasized. "We're not just a bunch of robots."

Ken described his relationship with Christ as personal and paternal.

"He really lets you know if you've blown it. But He pats you on the back, too."

He criticized organized churches where "you can set a watch by everything that happens in the service." The repetition of the same hymns and prayers at the same time every Sunday is about as inspiring as "brushing your teeth," he added.

Ken said his people will take their faith to the streets of Victoria.

"Jesus said to spread the good news."

YOUTH MINISTER KENNETH BRINTON

DEAR ABBY...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are both in our early forties and we have always had what I considered to be a good marriage. My husband has been a controlled diabetic for some time, but now he has high blood pressure. He recently told me that his doctor has informed him that he cannot have marital relations with me any more as the excitement might further damage his health. Can this be true?

Don't suggest I ask his doctor because his doctor is his golfing buddy and he would never make a liar out of my husband even if he was one.—Wondering in N.J.

DEAR WONDERING: Yes, it's possible that your husband's doctor told him what he told you. But if you suspect your husband of trying to avoid marital relations with you by giving you a phony medical report, you have more trouble than a sick husband — you have a sick marriage.

DEAR ABBY: That letter from MISERABLE IN MAINE — the girl who was engaged to a disabled veteran — hit close to home with me.

I walked down the aisle to marry a man who was waiting for me in a wheelchair. It was a beautiful wedding, and I felt like the luckiest girl in the world to be marrying such a wonderful man.

We've been married for four years and we couldn't be happier. Our son is three and our daughter is two, and we go on picnics, fishing trips and camping vacations together. My husband is an excellent swimmer, and although he can't water ski, he drives our boat very well. Our kids don't feel cheated because their father is handicapped. They get more attention than most of their friends whose father are able-bodied.

Your answer was perfect. "If you really love him nobody will be able to talk you out of marrying him!"

That's exactly what I would have told her. — Happy in Arkansas.

DEAR HAPPY: Would you believe you have company in Canada, Ireland and Italy as well?

DEAR ABBY: This if for the babe who says pumping gas is only a sideline — those nice men in the service stations are really there to give directions to people who get lost:

Is that so? I have helped hundreds of lost drivers get back on the right road. About half the folks who pull up here want everything but what we are selling. We call them "I. W. W.'s" (Information, Wind and Water.) You sure have to fight to make a buck in this business! — Lou in Cannon Falls.

DEAR LOU: You forget those fellow travellers who want the key to your rest-room.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Status, Education Concern Women

EDMONTON (CP) — Waving reports at governments rather than bras at politicians is the way the International Federation of Business and Professional Women prefers to air its views.

Much of the debate at last week's congress of the IFBPW has been on issues championed by the women's liberation movement — only the method has been changed.

The 1,400 delegates to the congress — the average age is closer to 50 than 20 as in women's lib — have presented reports that show the group is interested in forcing governments to look into matters dealing with the status of women and into education and training of women.

Elena Mederos De Gonzales, UNICEF consultant at the United Nations headquarters in New York, told delegates education and training is the key to development, both for women and for the betterment of the world.

"Education is a means of promoting understanding in the cause of world peace," she said. "The difference between the status of women in the developed countries and the status of women in the developing countries, is a challenge which must be met."

The federation has a role of leadership, she told delegates, urging them to "do as much as you can for education and training in all parts of the world."

The close relationship between the federation and the UN also was stressed in the reports of UN representatives. The federation has permanent observers at both Geneva and New York and has non-government organizations status as well as being represented on several committees.

"The advancement of women, through the work of various UN bodies and programs, continues to be the chief responsibility of your representative," said Esther Hymer, one of the federation's UN representatives, in her report.

"Full utilization of the potential of women, new opportunities for training, attainment of social and economic rights, community development, economic growth, increased trade, higher levels of living, and a decent environment in which to live and work has been added to our usual concerns."

The federation was founded 40 years ago and now represents 250,000 women in 49 countries. Decisions made at the congress are referred back to the member federations for implementation within their countries as far as possible.

During last week's sessions, delegates discussed resolutions pertaining to the UN and its committees, urging scholarship funds be established by the federations, encouraging involvement of women at policy planning levels and as members of work teams, setting up targets for women's achievements by 1980 in their own countries and advising national governments of names of highly-qualified women who should be appointed.

ALL-SOOKE ACTION

Shiver me timbers! All-Sooke Day was marred by rain Saturday for the first time in the 36-year history of the affair. Sprinkles didn't dampen spirits, however, and in the end only the dust was kept down.

Action was plentiful as shown, top left, when Mervin Lentz of Crestwell, Oregon, powered his way to the saw bucking title with a time of 8.9 seconds.

Getting spruced up with a shave from his keen-edged axe is best all-around logger Ron Hartill of Sooke (top centre) who won a first and a number of seconds.

SHILO

TOP TOT AT SOOKE

Little Shilo Johnson of Victoria may only be 13 months old, but he knows all about show biz.

He had to impress Dr. Jack Patterson, the judge, with enough charm to crawl off with the Times Cup as best baby at All Sooke Day.

And that's just what he did.

"I'm his agent," said grandmother Mrs. Eleanor Johnson beaming proudly after the presentation. The tot's parents are Janet and Robert Johnson of 1738 Ross.

Best Sooke baby was Karen Pitre, 8-month-old daughter of Diane and Ross Pitre. She may well be starting a tradition in the family because 23 years ago her mother won the Times Cup at the festivities as best baby.

Best baby under 5½ months was Kenneth Hillicke of Sooke.

Newcombe Wins Swiss Crown

GSTADD, Switzerland (AP) — John Newcombe, Australia's three-time Wimbledon winner, defeated Tom Okker of Holland 6,2, 5-7, 1-6, 7-5, 6-3 Sunday to win the men's title of the Swiss international tennis championships.

In the fifth set, Okker broke Newcombe's service to take a 3-2 lead, but the Australian came back to win the next four games.

It was Okker's fourth consecutive loss in the Gstaad final.

HOME GARDEN

Take a Tip From Shopping Centres

By HILDA BEASTALL

Do you, as a gardener, study the massed plantings you see in and around shopping centres? If not you miss living examples which could be helpful in achieving better effects in plants you already are growing there.

Hilda

While you see occasional errors of choice in public plantings, these are becoming fewer as experience is being gained.

Less commonly seen shrubs make their appearance and this is useful to the gardener who perhaps never makes a trip to nurseries.

The other day I saw for the first time in a shopping centre planting a shrub named Viburnum opulus nanum, which is in fact a dwarf form of the common Snow-ball bush.

This shrub was no more than a foot high but measured a good four feet across. The remarkable thing about this dwarf viburnum is the complete lack of flowering in nearly 15 years we have had one at our own place. Nor do nursery catalogs mention flowers.

Three of these shrubs grown in a group will slowly cover a triangular space of eight to ten feet. While not evergreen, the new leaves are pretty enough with their bright green lobed outlines in spring and early summer, soon assuming bronzy tinges.

For weeks in late summer and fall, the colors are russet and old rose, until finally the leaves drop and reveal a mass of crimson stems which retain this color all winter.

Another mass planting seen around a six foot Scots-pine (Pinus sylvestris) were a dozen one-foot high lavender shrubs in full bloom. We know that as the tree roots extend smaller plants will find difficulty in surviving, but their purpose will have been fulfilled.

The grey foliage of the lavenders all winter, spring and fall, with the summer months of purple flowers make the spot gay and help to prevent surface drying of the soil, for lavender are not greedy of moisture.

A retaining bank between a main road and a huge parking lot at another shopping centre was planted about eight years ago to prostrate forms of evergreen cotoneasters.

These have grown enormously, are covered with little flowers in early summer, berries for several months, then brightly tinted leaves until resuming normal coloring for winter.

Another parking lot has used masses of dwarf and medium growing berberises.

These spiny shrubs are effective in preventing pedestrians cutting through the planted strips, yet provide color of foliage or flowers through the whole year.

There is no doubt that a mass of one kind of plant has a greater effect than a single sptcimen when we think of the smaller kinds of shrubs.

Initial cost will likely be less, and maintenance is less, too; both worth more than a passing thought.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Anatole France, the 1921 winner of the Nobel prize in literature, once remarked: "The law, in its majestic equality, forbids the rich, as well as the poor, to sleep under bridges, to beg in the streets, and to steal bread." His sardonic implication was that, from a realistic viewpoint, the presumed legal equality of the rich and the poor is a joke.

At the bridge table, however, while capability determines one's destiny in the long run, there are times when there is no justice even for the rich. In my analogy, the holders of the good cards are the rich, and the holders of the bad cards are the poor.

Today's deal is an example of the rich being denied justice. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2♠	Pass	3♣	Pass
3♠	Pass	3 NT	Pass
6♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of ♣.

Had West opened either a spade, a heart, or a diamond, declarer would have waltzed in with his contract. He would have won the opening lead, drawn trumps, and then cashed the diamond ace. On the king of diamonds, he subsequently would have discarded his losing heart.

But West made the killing lead of a low club. Declarer had no choice except to finesse the queen — if he won the trick with the ace, his sole entry to dummy would be removed, and he would be unable to cash the diamond king.

If, after winning the trick with his club king, East had returned either a spade, a heart, or a diamond, declarer would have fulfilled his contract, for the club ace would be preserved as an entry for the cashing of the diamond king after the ace of diamonds had been played. But East played back a club, West's jack being taken by the board's ace. The diamond king had just become uncashable.

Hoping that the six outstanding clubs were divided 3-3 (but feeling in his heart that they weren't), declarer next led the high ten of clubs, to discard thereon his losing heart. Unhappily for him, East ruffed this lead. Declarer overruffed, of couse, but eventually he lost a heart trick, to incur a one-trick set.

Thus, on this deal, the only advantage of being "rich" was that South was able to collect 100 honors, to offset a one trick vulnerable set. My condolences are hereby extended to South.

By J A H HUNTER

It was one of those hot humid afternoons, and Susan could hardly keep her eyes open as she typed. "What's the time, Tom?" she asked. "My watch says three, but it stopped."

The old man thought a moment. "You figure it out yourself," he told her. "It's just four times as many minutes after three as it's minutes before Five O'Clock."

No peeking at your own watch now! What was the time?

Tonight's Top Television Shows

DIANNE HEATHERINGTON. 7:30 p.m., Channel 2. Guest singer tonight is Russ Thornberry. He sings Roseline and Miss January. Dianne sings Sharlina and joins in with her back-up group, The Merry-Go-Round, or You've Made Me So Very Happy.

BEWITCHED. 7:30 p.m., Channel 6. Poor beleaguered Darrin has more troubles than enough . . . and he suspects one of his in-laws is to blame for it all. He's near a nervous collapse as the bad luck streak continues.

COMEDY THEATRE. 8 p.m., Channel 5 (rerun). "The Blue-Eyed Horse," co-starring Ernest Borgnine and Joan Blondell. A light comedy which casts Ernest Borgnine as Melvin Feebie, an exasperated husband who can't seem to keep his wife from playing the horses. She keeps losing, too. Then Ernie discovers he has magical powers. He wishes out loud that he could turn his wife — played by Miss Blondell — into a horse, and he gets his wish. Paul Lynde adds to the frivolity.

IT WAS A VERY GOOD YEAR. 8:30 p.m., Channel 4. The year in the spotlight is 1947, marking a milestone in sports history when Jackie Robinson became the first black man to be signed to a major league baseball contract. Topics of conversation included the nation's post-war recession, flying saucers and the first nationwide telephone strike. Mel Torme helps the viewers recall those days.

REALITIES. 9 p.m., Channel 9 (rerun). Tocqueville's America. The prophetic warnings of a young French aristocrat and writer, Alexis de Tocqueville, uncannily return in a haunting aura as they are reviewed by a distinguished panel. The program originally was aired more than a year ago and included the observations of the late Senator Everett Dirksen, and former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, as well as Sen. Hugh Scott and Sen. Vance Hartke. Tocqueville was at once struck with admiration for the American way, and concern for its consequences. Well worth seeing again.

WORLD PREMIERE MOVIE. 9 p.m., Channel 5 (rerun). "City Beneath the Sea." Another of writer Irwin Allen's futuristic designs about life in another world. This one is a city called Pacifica, located 12,000 feet below the surface of the Pacific Ocean and inhabited by 2,000 residents, including marine scientists, navy personnel, aquanauts and their families. Stuart Whitman portrays a retired admiral ordered by the president (Richard Basehart) to transport the country's nuclear and gold supply to Pacifica. But the undersea community's residents bitterly oppose the project. Rosemary Forsyth and Robert Wagner are co-starred.

MONDAY NIGHT MOVIE. 9 p.m., Channel 4. "Weekend at Dunkirk," starring Jean-Paul Belmondo and Catherine Spaak. Four French soldiers, uncertain about their fate during the bombardment and entrapment at Dunkirk, try to plot their future anyway, hopeful that the British evacuation will save them. But even in war, for a Frenchman there is toujour l'amour and Belmondo meets and falls in love with Miss Spaak as bombs fall all around them.

BLACK ROGERS DOUBLE T

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Miss Marie Welsh of Des Moines, Iowa, just sent me several folders telling about a type of education for the deaf that interests me much — called the "total communication program." I have often heard discussed the problem of whether a deaf child should be taught to communicate only with his fingers or only by learning to read lips.

★ ★ ★

David M. Denton, superintendent of the Maryland School for the Deaf, and other experts in teaching deaf youngsters, feel that a deaf child should learn to use all forms of communication available to develop language competence. This includes "child-devised gestures, speech, formal signs, finger spelling, speechreading, reading and writing. Every deaf child also should be provided the opportunity to learn to use any remnant of residual hearing he may have by employing the best possible electronic equipment for amplifying sound."

I see, from the pamphlets and articles I have on my desk, that there are several schools in which the total communication approach is stressed. Dr. Richard G. Brill, superintendent of the California School for the Deaf, in Riverside, says that in his school they have been teaching classes of children from ages 3 to 5, and have been teaching them signs, and the finger spelling as well as speechreading and word recognition from the manuscript form.

"We find some 3-year-olds have developed as many as 300 usuable concepts manually, while the typical number for a child using exclusively oral means is likely to be about 200 in the same period of time . . . It seems logical then, to use every channel and every vehicle possible to get all this mass of information and language into the child, so that the teacher will have the opportunity to draw it out again in different forms and in the educative process teach the child to think. This means saturation with total communication."

Dr. Brill also points out that a child 4 years old who can hear has perhaps 2,000-3,000 words in his vocabulary, and he can use them in sentences to express many ideas, but the typical deaf child of the same age who must depend entirely on oral communication has only a few words at his command, and rarely can he use these words with much variety or effectiveness. As Dr. Brill says, "Communication is not speech or speechreading alone. It is not vocabulary building or word recognition alone. Communication is the person's ability to use his language for expressing ideas, needs, and feelings."

One of the most attractive homes I've had the pleasure to show. Rock out-cropping and shrubs offer privacy from the street, native trees for seclusion at the rear. One wall of the entertainment size living room is entirely glass to take advantage of the view. The 3-bedrm home has full basement for further development. Extensive use of quality carpet. Truly good value at only $28,700. High Quadra. Ruth Lukaitis, 388-4271, 477-5306.

ELIMINATE THE EXPENSE OF A SECOND CAR
You won't need one if you buy this dandy bungalow in the popular Estevan District of Oak Bay. Cosy, broadloomed living room with open fireplace, separate dining room, compact, fully modern kitchen with lovely mahogany cabinets, access to large sundeck facing the back garden. 2 Bdrms on the main floor plus extra accommodation in the full basement. Large fenced back garden with assorted fruit trees. On the bus line, steps to Estevan shopping centre, 2 blocks to beach and close to schools. The location is terrific and the prudent investigator will realize this home is a "real buy" for $24,500.

$44,000
A perfect family home designed by Fred Rowe for those who seek all the comforts, plus a secluded location. The large entrance, through halls and wide staircase are carpeted in garnet broadloom. The gracious living room with bayed window and sliding glass door has an impressive fireplace and lends itself to easy furniture arrangement. The separate dining room is guest size. The beamed kitchen, interesting in design, has super conveniences and adjoins a family room with excellent dining area — a dutch door leads to a secluded flag stone patio. A utility room, and master bedroom, with bathroom en suite, completes the main floor. Upstairs are three bedrooms (one panelled) and a five-piece bathroom. Double carport, green house, storage shed, etc. An avenue of walnut trees give an excellent yield. The entire home has character and charm and is nestled in ½ acre of beautiful property. Shown by appointment only. Please call:

$98 BILLION COST OF VIET NAM WAR

WASHINGTON (AP) — The war in South Vietnam is estimated to have cost $98 billion—$490 for every American man, woman and child—and Senator J. W. Fulbright said Saturday the human and material costs may be "seriously undermining democracy in the United States."

The report put the total budgeted cost of the war at about $120 billion, or $600 per capita. The difference represents spending that probably would have occurred anyhow.

U.S. GENERAL LOSES COMMAND

SAIGON (AP) — Maj.-Gen. James L. Baldwin has been relieved of command of the Americal Division, and military sources suggested today that it was because of the attack on Fire Base Mary Ann in which 33 Americans were killed and 76 were wounded.

An official statement said Baldwin is "being reassigned by the department of the army," and a spokesman for the U.S. command refused to comment further.

However, other military sources said there were "unusual circumstances" surrounding Baldwin's replacement and suggested that it was the outcome of the investigation into the disastrous attack March 28 by North Vietnamese sappers on Fire Base Mary Ann, a battalion headquarters base of the Americal Division's 196th Infantry Brigade 25 miles west of Chu Lai.

The toll was the highest of any such attack on a U.S. base in the war. Some officers and men claimed that the base's defences were lax and the troops were not prepared for an attack. The Americans were about to turn over the base to the South Vietnamese.

Maj.-Gen. Frederick J. Kroesen, who had been assistant chief of staff for operations at the U.S. command in Saigon, took command of the division in Chu Lai Friday, while Baldwin was in the United States on leave.

Rummage Sale Nets $186 For Refugees

Pakistan refugees will get $186 worth of food, medical supplies and blankets, from a basement rummage sale at 1060 Burdett on Saturday.

Kathleen Ruff, president of Voice of Women which sponsored the sale, said the sale gave people a chance to clear up the junk in their basements as well as help the needy.

The response was good, she said.

"A tall-ho driver who was passing by, pulled in. He bought a couple of oil paintings while a wagonful of his customers sat and waited. Those tourists must have thought that Victoria is a really weird place."

German Topples Distaff Record

STUTTGART, Germany (AP) — Hildegard Janze-Falck of West Germany set a world record for the women's 800 metres Sunday with a time of one minute 58.3 seconds in the German track and field championships.

Vera Nikalic of Yugoslavia had held the record at 2:00.5 and Ann Parker of Great Britain had a listed mark of 2:01.1.

LONDON — Lord Snowdon was involved in a wine-throwing incident after he was refused permission to dance with a countess at a party he was attending with Princess Margaret, witnesses said Sunday. People who were at the Mayfair party, at which food millionaire Jack Heinz and his wife were hosts, said Peter Cazalet, 64-year-old trainer of the Queen's horses, was dancing with the Countess of Westmoreland, a 42-year-old beauty. Lord Snowden moved to cut in and Cazalet snapped: "This is not America." Snowden then threw a glass of wine over Cazalet's shirt front but the dance went on.

CAGLIARI, Sardinia — Livio Melis, 32-year-old Cagliari clothing shop owner, testified in court that his wife made him wear a home-made chastity belt every time he left the house. After his testimony the court found him not guilty of charges filed by his wife that he beat her continually and treated her with disrespect.

DAUGHTER DAWN, BILLIE AND WIFE
. . . leaving La Tuna federal prison

EL PASO — Billie Sol Estes left federal prison early today, parolled after serving six years of a 15-year term. He had been convicted of mail fraud charges after his non-existent West Texas fertilizer tank empire collapsed in a national scandal nine years ago. Adhering to his plan for no fanfare, the former big dealer quickly stepped into the back seat of a waiting car, then led reporters on a high-speed chase through El Paso, losing them. Estes, 46, said he will live with his wife and family in Abilene and work on a farm owned by a brother, John Estes.

SYDNEY, Australia — Sidewalks in the suburban Bankstown shopping centre here no longer will be swept. Instead, they'll be washed and perfumed. "We want something with a pleasant, refreshing fragrance," Bankstown health inspector H. C. Hunt told reporters today. His department is considering such perfumes as honronia, rosewater and pine to add to water used in the daily sidewalk rinse.

SPRINGHILL, N.S. — An audience estimated by civic officials at up to 20,000 listened Saturday night as Canada's top female vocalist Anne Murray performed at an outdoor concert here. It was the final day of a four-day "old home week" in this Cumberland mining community honoring the Springhill-born singer who won a gold record for selling one million copies of Snowbird.

TILLSONBURG, Ont. — George Sarson broke the world record for the number of parachute jumps made in 24 hours, making 210 jumps from midnight Friday night to 11 p.m. Saturday and bettering the old record of 200 set by Steve Sutton of Toronto.

Mayor Pushes Tax Relief For Elderly

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis has written all Social Credit members of the legislature asking them to consider some form of tax relief for elderly house owners.

He said discussions with other municipal officials, "suggest" increasing property taxes are proving a hardship for older homeowners in many parts of B.C.

"Some form of tax increase deferral is but one area which merits consideration. A supplementary homeowner grant for those over 65 years of age is another. Safeguards with respect to eligibility and length of time during which a home must be owned and occupied by a senior citizen could be established with relative ease.

"I am taking the liberty of forwarding this letter to each government member of the provincial legislature, respectfully requesting that he or she carefully consider the question and review it with municipal representatives in his own community.

"This form of tax relief can be granted only through provincial legislation. I remain most hopeful that the 1972 legislative session will be remembered as the one which finally recognized the problem and acted to correct it," Curtis said.

BBC to Show Gray Film

A film on B.C. by Victoria film-maker Wilf Gray will be shown in color by the British Broadcasting Corp. July 18.

The Last Frontier, a one-hour production, includes some natural and human history of this province, as well as a look at how people live today.

The film is to be shown as part of the BBC 2 series The World Around Us.

Cable Firm Gets Okay

Davin Enterprises Ltd., has been granted a licence renewal to Sept. 30 of next year for its Saanich cable television system, it was announced today in Ottawa.

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission said a dispute among Davin shareholders is affecting management of the system. The commission expected the dispute would be resolved so that the system would be capably managed.

In Victoria, Davin co-owners Dave Paterson and Vince Mielen said today arrangements have been made for Tele-Tech Services Ltd., of which Mielen is part-owner, to purchase Paterson's shares. Approval would be sought for this from the CRTC, they said.

Mielen said the system now serves about 300 houses in Saanich, west of Patricia Bay Highway and roughly north of Judah. He said plans envisage adding 1,000 subscribers in six months.

Joker's Note Forces Jet To Land

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — In what an airline spokesman called "a horrible practical joke," a TWA jetliner bound for Washington with 135 passengers was forced into making an emergency landing Sunday by a hijack note threatening to blow up the plane.

"The whole thing was a complete hoax," said the spokesman for Trans World Airlines after Shannon police and security men found no explosives or weapons in a search of the Boeing 707 and its passengers.

The note was discovered in a toilet compartment just after the plane left London with two U.S. marshals riding as guards. The message said "desperate men" aboard would blow up the plane unless they were flown to Algiers, Cairo and Hanoi.

The pilot, Capt. Roland Smith, decided to land at Shannon for a search. The big jet circled the airport for an hour dumping fuel while ambulances and fire units stood by on the ground.

The airliner eventually took off for Washington but an elderly couple refused to continue the trip.

Police arrested no one and said they had no indication who left the note.

Aussie Retains Tennis Title

NEWPORT, Wales (AP) — Ken Rosewall of Australia defeated Roger Taylor of England 6-1, 9-8 Saturday to win $3,600 and retain the men's singles title in the Green Shield tennis championships.

Virginia Wade of Britain won the women's title Friday.

MARCH FUNDS LAGGING

In the two months since the Miles for Millions march $55,581 has been collected, acting chairman Bob Ballam said tolay.

Ballam said it's estimated about $80,000 was pledged and that most of the money will be in by the end of the summer.

He said the fact school is out means children who took part in the march aren't being reminded by teachers to get their money in.

Proceeds can be mailed or delivered to the Miles for Millions office in the student Union Building at the University of Victoria, or deposited at any chartered bank in Victoria. Some banks may not now be accepting pledge money, Ballam said.

Provinces Told To Increase Tax

Higher Exemptions Mean Less Money

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson told the provinces today they will have to raise their personal income tax rates in order to stay where they now are in the race for the taxpayer's dollar.

Under the new tax plan he proposed in his June 18 budget, larger personal exemptions and lower tax rates will be introduced by the federal government.

Narrows Over-All Tax Base

This considerably narrows the over-all tax base, and the 28per-cent provincial tax that most provinces now charge will give them less money. Some provinces now charge more than 28 per cent, running up to 39 per cent in Manitoba.

Mr. Benson told a closed-door federal-provincial conference that in order to obtain the same share of income tax revenues, the 28-per-cent figure will have to be raised to 30 per cent. The top rate will have to go up to 42 per cent.

Mr. Benson said that while these higher rates will have to be written into provincial tax law to make it harmonize with the new federal income tax structure, they won't mean that taxpayers will have to pay out more or less in dollars.

Guarantee Same Revenues

In fact, he promised the provinces that if they bring their tax laws into harmony with the new federal plan, he will guarantee that they will receive the same revenues in 1972, 1973 and 1974 as they would receive if the old federal law was continued.

Manitoba immediately asked for a longer guarantee than three years. It said it stood to lose $50 million in five years.

Finance Minister Raymond Garneau of Quebec told the conference, moreover, that his advisers calculate the new rates would still yield the provinces "appreciably lower revenue." He said he would like to compare notes with Ottawa experts on their calculations.

Quebec is a special case, since it has opted out of most federal-provincial shared cost programs and administers its own provincial income tax. Mr. Benson welcomed an earlier statement by Mr. Garneau that the two might get together and harmonize their tax plans.

A. O. Aalborg, provincial treasurer of Alberta, released at the conference a letter to Mr. Benson objecting to the federal plan to tax capital gains. It was inconsistent, he said, with Canada's need to have more Canadians invest in Canadian development.

Ontario Also Voices Objection

Darcy McKeough, provincial treasurer of Ontario, said his experts haven't had time yet to digest the whole of the new tax plan, but he said the incentives for small business "is not as generous as we had hoped and believed."

Mr. McKeough, near the top of the speakers list for the opening session of the two-day conference, led other provincial finance ministers in criticizing as premature the federal government's withdrawal of the estate tax next Jan. 1.

British Columbia is being represented at the conference by Gerald Bryson, deputy finance minister. Premier Bennett last week declined to release details of British Columbia's presentation to the conference.

'Withdraw Tax Gradually'

At least two provincial leaders—NDP Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan, and NDP Finance Minister Saul Cherniak of Manitoba—said they would object to Mr. Benson's withdrawal of the federal estate and gift tax next Jan. 1. They want the tax withdrawn gradually, over a period of years, since they get 75 per cent of the revenues from it in their provinces.

He listed the following new rates which would have to be applied by each province just to get the same revenues, with the existing rates in percentages of the federal tax for comparison:

Newfoundland 35.5-33; Nova Scotia 30-28; Prince Edward Island 35.5-33; New Brunswick 41-38; Ontario 30-28; Manitoba 42,339; Saskatchewan 36.5-34; Alberta 35.5-33; British Columbia 30-28.

18-YEAR-OLDS GET VOTE IN ONTARIO

TORONTO (CP)—Eighteen-year-olds will be able to vote in the next Ontario provincial and municipal elections, Premier William Davis announced today.

The reduction of the "age of accountability" to 18 from 21 also will give the young people the right to hold elective office and to sit on juries, the right to consume alcoholic beverages and the right to undertake legal and financial contracts.

British Soldier Slain

BELFAST (CP)—Gunmen fired a volley of shots from a speeding car today as Northern Ireland's Orangemen celebrated 50 years of Protestant rule. A British soldier fell dead, three bullets in the back.

The soldier was on sentry duty in the Roman Catholic Falls Road area.

During the night, 10 bombs exploded in Northern Ireland by the Orangemen defying threats of terrorism began marching at daybreak in celebration of their ancestors' victory over the Catholics 281 years ago. The parades passed quietly.

Twenty thousand troops and police kept an iron security guard on the massive Orange Order festivities after a night of bombs and shooting in which nine civilians were wounded.

Security chiefs said parades in Belfast and other centres were perhaps slightly larger than last year, with an estimated total of 400 bands and more than 100,000 marchers on the routes.

Outgoing marches from town centres to fields and parks passed quietly. Troops took a rest before coming back to full alert in the event, when the Orangemen and their families headed home from a day of speech-making, drinking, picnics and children's sports.

The bombs began going off shortly after midnight Sunday night while thousands of Protestants were dancing around bonfires to celebrate the anniversary.

Four blasts shattered windows along Royal Avenue, Belfast's main street. The Protestants celebrating "the glorious 12th" in other parts of the capital ran for shelter and British troops moved in with armored cars.

Another bomb damaged a Belfast power station.

Seven persons were wounded by the blasts but police said their injuries were light. Six suspects were arrested.

BLAME IRA

Two more bombs damaged an empty Protestant hall and a power station in Irvinestown, 80 miles away. Two exploded in Pomeroy to the west and another went off in Newry near the border with the Irish Republic to the south.

Police and the British Army said the blasts were set by the outlawed Irish Republican Army, trying to provoke violence during the traditional celebration today. It marks the defeat of Catholic King James II by Protestant King William in the Battle of the Boyne in 1690.

Firing Squad Kills Moroccan Rebels

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — The leaders of the attempt to overthrow King Hassan II were executed by firing squad at dawn today, Moroccan sources reported.

They said three generals and other officers were shot after giving authorities details of their plot.

The government withheld an announcement of the executions but a communique was expected later in the day.

It was not known whether the dozen or so senior officers said to have been involved in the plot all were executed.

King Hassan told a news conference Sunday that the officers who led the bloody military coup would all be dead by sundown tonight. The 42-year-old monarch named eight principal plotters including four generals and three colonels.

Hassan said Gen. Mohamed Medboun, the head of his personal military staff, and three other generals named Mustapha, Bougrine and Hambou used 1,400 ignorant, drug-crazed cadets in an abortive attempt to liquidate him and the entire leadership of his regime.

Medbouh was accidentally killed by his own men during the attack at the king's summer palace on the Atlantic, 15 miles south of Rabat.

At least 30 of the guests at the king's 42nd birthday party were killed, including the country's only field marshal, three generals, the minister of tourism, the president of the Supreme Court, Belgian Ambassador Marcel Duprat, and other officers and officials.

About 150 rebels died in a seven-hour battle for the Rabat radio station. The insurgents seized the radio, announced the king's death and proclaimed a revolutionary republic. But forces loyal to the king finally overcame the rebellion.

The four rebel generals named by the king were not known to have any leftist affiliations. Medbouh became Hassan's closest military adviser in 1963, when he betrayed a plot in which he said he pretended to take part.

BLUMSCHEIN SHARES AIR RACE PRIZE

The winner of the London to Victoria Centennial air race, Joe Blumschein of Germany, will donate $5,000 of his $60,000 winnings to be distributed "at the discretion" of Premier Bennett and Prime Minister Trudeau.

"No matter how prosperous a nation is, there are always still people who need help," he said Saturday night after receiving two trophies and cheques totalling $60,000.

Heroin Crisis Not Doctors Fault: MD

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark displayed a "lack of knowledge" about how doctors practise medicine when he attacked them for their reluctance to treat heroin addicts, Dr. W. G. McClure said today.

McClure, registrar of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in B.C., was commenting on weekend criticism by Loffmark of doctors "who refuse to treat heroin addicts."

Loffmark said doctors "are not doing their public duty" and that "they don't like to have them (addicts) around their offices."

The minister was responding to an earlier complaint by McClure that the provincial government has been doing nothing to meet a growing heroin addiction crisis in B.C.

McClure said today he doesn't want to get into a running public battle with Loffmark but said the minister "betrays a lack of knowledge about how doctors practise."

"The point I have tried to make is that these people can't be treated like an ordinary patient," McClure said. Many doctors who have tried treating addicts on their own have had "nothing but grief," including difficulities with narcotics control agencies when addicts exploit a number of doctors to get heavy drug prescriptions.

PROPER SUPPORT

Until a central registry is established with proper support programs on a provincial basis, doctors will be frustrated in efforts to treat addicts, McClure said.

Dr. Scott Wallace, Social Credit MLA for Oak Bay, said the necessity of seeing an addict every day would "completely disorganize" a general practitioner's practise.

In addition, he said, treatment of addicts is a highly-skilled process involving counselling and other specialized forms of treatment for which most doctors have not been trained.

The special purpose clinic approach is needed in treating addicts, Wallace said.

WALKOUT FACES AIRLINE

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada faces a possible shutdown in the near future if its mechanics and ground personnel vote tonight for a study session.

George Daley, vice-president of the Montreal local of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, said today it is "almost certain" that members will vote for a study session.

The starting time and duration of such a walkout would be decided at the meeting beginning at 8 p.m., he said.

Similar meetings were to be held tonight in Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Meanwhile, Air Canada said it would continue normal operations as long as possible.

Victoria airport will not be affected at this stage, a spokesman said.

Debate Resumes

QUEBEC (CP) — The national assembly was to resume debate today on the government's James Bay development legislation and Premier Robert Bourassa has vowed to continue legislature sitting until the bill is adopted.

BAD WEATHER TO END (MAYBE)

The weather pattern which has brought unsummery cloud and cool temperatures to Victoria has broken, giving grounds for cautious optimism, the weatherman said today.

"The situation is easing, but there's still an awful lot of dirty weather over B.C. and I'm a little leery about the whole thing," said Allan McQuarrie of the dominion weather office.

A huge low-pressure trough stretching in an east-west line over southern Vancouver Island has split, carrying rain storms east to the Prairies and west over the Pacific.

Despite this first break in the stubborn over-all pattern, more cloud is expected Tuesday and Wednesday. It was expected to be clear tonight.

Pay Cuts Forced On M-B's Top 60

VANCOUVER (CP) — The top 60 executives of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., Canada's largest forestry company, have taken pay cuts of up to 10 per cent for the balance of 1971, Chairman J. V. Clyne said Sunday night.

"I cut everybody over $50,000 by 10 per cent and everybody in the $35,000 to $50,000 bracket by five per cent, effective July 1, to the end of the year," Mr. Clyne said in an interview, "and that includes my pay.

"It was important morally that this be done. I felt that when the shareholders were having their dividends cut that the management should do the same in the way of salaries.

"I don't want to give the impression that we are scared about the future because that isn't so. We are succeeding in holding our own. We have always run a tight ship; we don't have any superficiality."

In addition, the Vancouver-based company has eliminated its central engineering department of 25 persons, although the net layoffs from this move are not expected to be more than four.

FACING PROBLEMS

The pay cuts at MacMillan Bloedel are just part of a general tightening among the management and salaried staffs of British Columbia's major forest firms as they face continuing market problems for their products and declining profits.

Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd., with chronic financial problems over a number of years, has reduced its salaried personnel by 15 per cent in all operations during the last four weeks. An estimate of the number of people involved was not available Sunday night.

At least two other companies have allowed attrition to reduce administrative staff. Several other firms said that while there had been no pay of staff cuts that "things are very tight."

At Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., there were a small number of staff cuts in the spring but company officials could not say how many. In many cases, it meant that planned and even authorized additions to staffs, both hourly and salaried, were not made.

Richard C. Nelson, Crown Zellerbach executive vice-president, said the company had "taken a good hard look and we eliminated some positions—we were able to do a great deal of this by attrition."

A spokesman for B.C., Forest Products Ltd. said administrative jobs had been reduced by 20 through attrition. It is understood there have been no staff or pay cuts at Canadian Forest Products Ltd.

NEWS BRIEFS

Charges Faced

ANCHORAGE — Mike Haffenden of Vancouver, skipper of the 30-foot fishing vessel "All Star" today faced charges of violating American territorial waters. The craft was seized Friday while fishing near Coronation Island.

Body Recovered

NELSON B.C. (CP) — Divers recovered the body today of one of two residents of a commune who drowned Sunday in Slocan Lake in southeastern British Columbia. A team of divers found the body of Michael Gregory Peck, 24, in about 30 feet of water about 10 feet from shore. (See earlier story Page 3.)

Passenger Killed

HAVANA (Reuter) — A passenger was killed and three persons — including the two hijackers — were injured when a grenade exploded during an attempt to hijack a Cuban airliner, Cuba radio reported today.

Quake Hits Turkey

ANKARA (AP) — Several persons were injured and buildings were destroyed when an earthquake struck southeast Turkey late Sunday night, officials reported here today.

MORE PEOPLE AND LESS FOOD

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — The world population will double by the year 2004 at the present rate of growth yet food production has already declined on a per capita basis, the United Nations reported Sunday.

The population total for mid-1969 was put at 3,561 billion. This represented a two-per-cent growth rate which would take the figure to seven billion by the end of this century.

WILSON GETS SUPPORT IN OPPOSING ECM BID

Times News Serives

LONDON — Opposition Leader Harold Wilson now has a majority in his "shadow cabinet" opposed to Britain entering the Common Market on the present terms, political commentators reported during the weekend.

The development has been brought about by a change of opinion by two leading members, said David Wood, political correspondent of The Times. They are Denis Healey, shadow foreign secretary, and Anthony Crosland, shadow minister for the environment.

Healey based his change of view on Wilson's allegation that the government's 20,000-word white paper suppressed the total cost of entry, particularly in regard to food, The Times said.

Crosland was seen as supporting Wilson's insistence on the importance of keeping the Labor party united.

Healey disclosed in a television interview Sunday night that he has swung a long way since the white paper was published last Wednesday.

An another market development, Prime Minister Heath said he does not believe that British entry will drive Canada deeper into the United States orbit.

He told reporters the impression he got from talks with Prime Minister Trudeau is that Ottawa will seek widest international relations with China, Soviet Union and others.

SWEDISH STYLE

A Sex Education For Our Minister

The hope that this province might eventually catch up with much of the rest of the civilized world in educating children to cope intelligently with the most vital function of their adult lives would appear to have died, not with a bang but a whimper. Oh, Lord! Oh, Social Credit!

While it's true that local school boards may make their own decisions on programs of sex education, it's surely a stunning triumph for Neanderthal thinking that Donald Brothers, the provincial minister of education, has dissociated the government from a planned province-wide course for elementary schools.

A fast poll of teachers and school board trustees, most of them still somewhat dazed by the minister's peremptory scrapping of the sex education section in a new course under the general title Human Life Science, finds them all but unanimous in the opinion that it is a decision Brothers made for political expediency.

Unless the Bennett government is running scared to the point of outright panic I find this hard to swallow. The teachers I've talked to are convinced that, at the outside, there are no more than two parents in every hundred who oppose the idea of an enlightened program of sex education in our schools. More often than not the objection of this insignificant minority is rooted in rigid religious concepts, parents whose children doubtless are most in need of precisely that kind of instruction.

I think a more reasonable explanation — and no idle boast — is that Brothers possesses one of the finest 19th Century minds in these parts, a distinction he nailed down not merely with the cancellation of this well-planned course, but by noises of outrage that Oak Bay High should be considering studies in political science that would include—horrors! —the reading of the works of Karl Marx, causing God knows what revolutionary ferment to start bubbling in the high-rent district.

Like his fellow Social Credit member, the adorable Agnes Kripps, who solemnly proposed in the legislature last year that the word "sex" be officially replaced by the word "Bolt" (standing discreetly for "biology on life today") one suspects that the minister of education is afflicted with the well-known ostrich complex. Just don't look — it may all go away, whatever it is: unemployment, poverty, corporate banditry, youth, sex, truth.

★ ★ ★

Nineteen years of Social Credit decision-making undoubtedly has had an anaesthetic effect on the public's capacity for reaction. In this case, sure enough, only those very close to the school system have made even a token complaint. The great body of parents who, presumably, would welcome such a course haven't so much as written a Constant Reader letter-to-the-editor.

That being the case, I see only one possible hope for us to begin catching up with more worldly parts, which means just about everywhere. What I am proposing is the sex education of Donald Brothers.

I propose that a special fund be established — to which I will gladly contribute—to send Donald to Sweden for exactly one month for the purpose of observing first-hand how, from the very first grade, students are taught the realities of sex relationships, how it has changed for the better a nation's attitudes in just one generation, how an eminently respectable, even somewhat strait-laced people, found their way to a new and honest morality through their children.

Sweden is the ideal model — as it is in labor legislation and public housing, though we mustn't expect too much in the way of Social Credit inspiration in those fields — simply because it was the first nation to accept the responsibility of the state in preparing its children for adulthood. It accepted it reluctantly, as we would, as the alternative to parental education, but it accepted it bravely, as we should, in the knowledge that parents can't or won't do the job.

It was an experimental program 15 years in the works, a program that caused a continuing rage of controversy, conflicting theories and implacable resistance from the churches. But in the years since 1956 when the courses became compulsory in every public school that hostility has all but totally disappeared. The nation today rightly prides itself on its pioneeding role and gladly shows off its accomplishments to every visitor. When one of the architects of its sex education program visited Canada not long ago he put it right on the line. "We're 50 years ahead of you."

★ ★ ★

I believe that Brothers would accept that, might even become an advocate, if he were to go and see for himself. At the same time I'll concede that the experience might well provide him with some justification for his own cop-out on the grounds of parental objections or, more accurately, inertia.

The first fundamental lesson to be learned in Sweden is that only the relentless pressure of informed public opinion can bring it about. Sex education did not originate through the wisdom, courage or far-sightedness of Swedish legislators. It originated in the insistence of the people who put them into office.

The real trail-blazers were the educators, themselves, and for the most pragmatic of reasons. So many pregnant young girls were dropping out of the school system in those days before The Pill that the teachers demanded a program of sex courses simply as a means of protecting a child's right to have an education.

A majority of parents supported their stand and a significant number of students, themselves, banded together in militant, policy-making student councils, added their weight. Trade unions joined the crusade, to such an extent that they still provide the bulk of the financing for the National Association of Sex Education, a non-government body that plays an important part in sex education outside of the school system.

In retrospect, however, most Swedish educators give the real credit to the women of Sweden. Long before there was a liberation movement the wives and mothers of Sweden had launched the good fight for equality. The right of sexual freedom, of emancipation from a tyranny of ignorance, now a fait accompli in all of Scandinavia, was their single-minded aim. It began with the recognition that a full knowledge of the sexual facts of life for their sons and daughters was Square One.

Big dugout canoe rests in security of Inner Harbor

Leisurely Canoe Trip —Clear to Hawaii

A 43-year-old West Vancouver adventurer will set sail from the Inner Harbor Tuesday on what he hopes will be a 45-day solo voyage to the Hawaiian Islands in a dugout canoe.

For George Tocher the trip is more than an adventure.

He hopes to prove the theory, held by many historians, that Pacific Northwest Haida Indians travelled to Hawaii, the Easter Islands and even New Zealand in their canoes

It's taken him 2½ years to complete his 50-foot canoe, which is from a design by the Kwakioti band.

She's made of red cedar, painstakingly whittled into shape from a tree seven feet in diameter.

•

Tocher calls her Orenda, an Iroquois word meaning in harmony with nature. "And this I'll have to be on this voyage."

He first learned the art of whittling canoes when he helped Indians with their boats during his years as a faller with a logging company.

Orenda differs from the Haida canoes which Tocher says had two hulls. She has one hull and an outrigger, filled with styrofoam for bouyancy.

There is over 45 feet of rope in each of her lashings and Tocher is under no illusions about their ability to stand up in rough weather.

"I'll probably have to redo them but I met some rough weather in Howe Sound, of all places, and the canoe rode it well."

•

Today he was loading his craft with canned goods and topping his water supply — 40 gallons contained in one-gallon strawberry syrup cans and bleach bottles.

"Some of the water tastes like strawberries but I hope the bleach ones are okay!"

One modern innovation on the unique craft is a self-steering vane, put together for Tocher by Vancouver marine architect Stan Huntingford and mechanic Bill Lee.

The craft is powered by a 16-foot-square mainsail, and a 25-horsepower outboard motor.

When he's not steering with the vane he'll use a 17-foot sweep which took him three days to make, shaped out of yellow cedar with a cherry wood handle

Wallace Hits Hospital Delay

Dr. Scott Wallace, Social Credit MLA for Oak Bay, said today he sees "no reason whatever" for any further delays in expansion of St. Joseph's Hospital.

Wallace, who sat in on a meeting last Wednesday which sought a compromise solution to lengthy delays in expanding the hospital, said it would be much cheaper to develop St. Joseph's than to build an entirely new hospital in the suburbs.

The fate of the expansion of St. Joseph's depends on Health Minister Ralph Loffmark's approval of arrangements made last week by representatives of the hospital and the city and the regional hospital board.

Loffmark, who returned to Victoria today after spending several days in the Interior, couldn't be reached for comment. His office said he was tied up with meetings.

The city's hopes of extending Belleville Street through the proposed hospital property owned by the Sisters of St. Ann has been a key problem in the issue of expanding St. Joseph's.

City council Thursday unilaterally amended an earlier agreement with the province on the extension question by requiring that technical studies should be the eventual basis for deciding whether to extend the road.

Air Race Display Closed by Thefts

Thefts from three planes in the London-Victoria air race was one reason the public didn't get a really close look at the machines at Saturday's "open house", a race official said today.

Digger Dagg, provincial liaison officer for the race, was replying to complaints that people who drove out to Victoria International Airport to see the aircraft had to look at them from behind a snow fence.

"You cannot leave the public roaming around out there without security of crews to keep an eye on things," Dagg said.

Stolen items included wing-tip generators from one plane and control locks from another. Dagg couldn't remember what was missing from the third plane.

He said visitors were allowed into the fenced-off compound from roughly 10 to 11 a.m. while crews were on hand to keep an eye on things and answer questions.

By 11, however, the crews had to leave to attend All-Sooke Day, so visitors were asked to leave. RCMP officers were on hand to gently shoo out the hangers-on, Dagg said.

About 35 of the 52 race planes were on display.

Mrs. Elizabeth Price, 2822 Craigowan, said she was able to talk to one of the pilots at the fence and that he lifted her child over the fence to sit in his plane.

She said it was "rather maddening" that other people didn't get in.

"I was sure disgusted. If that's B.C.'s centennial, then forget it."

The three top winners of the race saluted the city and the provincial government in a fly-past over the Legislative Buildings at noon Sunday as they departed Victoria.

Officials had hoped more planes would have taken part in the "thankyou" for the reception received in Victoria after the race, but most crews departed individually before-hand because of work commitments.

Meatcutters Accept Two-Year Contract

Meatcutters in Victoria and Vancouver voted overwhelmingly Sunday in favor of a new two-year contract with the major supermarkets.

The agreement, affecting about 120 employees in Victoria and 650 in Vancouver, provides wage increases of $20 a week this year and $20 a week next year for journeymen meatcutters, assistant head meatcutters and head meatcutters. Head meatcutters will get an additional $4 a week this year and $2 next year and assistant head meatcutters will get an additional $2 this year.

Meat and delicatessen clerks will get an additional $16 a week this year and $16 next year.

The old rates of pay were $182 a week for journeymen meatcutters, $192 for head meatcutters, $185 and $186 for assistant head meatcutters and $142 a week for clerks.

Meat department employees also gained a reduction of one hour, to 38 hours, in the average work week which George Johnston, representative of the Amalgamated Meatcutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, described as "the major achievement."

Full-time employees now will accumulate two hours each week and when they reach eight hours they have a day off with pay, Johnston said.

Part-time clerks who would not qualify for this will receive an additional 10 cents an hour this year and another 10 cents an hour next year, he said.

In other areas of the settlement, Johnston said the employer will pay the total cost of the dental plan which now will include orthodentistry, extending coverage to a female employee's husband as well as her children who were previously covered, additional contributions to the employer-paid pension plan, unpaid maternity leave of 11 weeks prior to birth and six weeks after, splitting health and welfare premiums 70-30 between employer and employee instead of 50-50 and severance pay.

Birds Dead From Spray?

Deaths of large numbers of swallows around lower Vancouver Island may have been caused by use of a highly-toxic mosquito pesticide, autopsies revealed today.

Rory Finnegan, a biologist with the Fish and Wildlife Branch, performed the autopsies this morning.

He said use of the substance "Baytex," a mosquito controller, could have killed the birds, large numbers of which have been reported dead on Salt Spring Island, South Pender Island, Central Saanich and the Saxe Point area of Esquimalt.

Finnegan cited two other possibilities of reasons for the deaths: an abnormal level of chlorinated hydrocarbons which would cause a mother to not pay enough attention to her young, and bacterial infection through parasites.

TRACE POSSIBLE

The autopsies were performed on two young nestlings which Finnegan said were both quite fat and showed no obvious signs of cause of death.

One bird was infested with a warble fly maggot which "wouldn't have done it any good, but would not have been fatal," Finnegan said.

He said use of Baytex could be traced through the department of agriculture, which keeps records on users, and that it might have been someone trying to get rid of mosquitoes.

Another possible cause of the deaths, he said, was the weather and a shortage of flying insects.

18-HOUR FEEDING

"Certain weather conditions do not produce enough insects," he said.

The swallows migrate to B.C. all the way from South America especially for the long hours of sunlight and the supply of insects, and if these conditions do not exist, "they may as well stay down in South America."

"The young have to be fed for 18 yours a day," he added, so the amount of insects available is important.

He said samples were being sent to different laboratories to determine pesticide levels in the dead birds and exact levels of chlorinated hydrocarbons, and a check was being made with the agriculture department about the Baytex.

A Central Saanich woman has reported more dead swallows. Mrs. Marilyn Ross, 2351 Styan Road, said a mother bird and her five nestlings were healthy Saturday, but were dead by Sunday.

Finnegan said other types of birds had been reported dead as well. Seven pigeon guillemots, a type of sea bird which feeds on fish and shrimp, were found on the Chain Islands off Oak Bay. All were dead for no apparent reasons.

One had been found sitting dead on its nest, he said, and the six others were around logs in the area.

PANIC

Finnegan said the birds deaths "may have been a natural phenomenon, which happens occasionally in the bird world. Populations get too high, and they fall."

"It's all very unfortunate, and very sad, but it happens."

TO APPLY FOR LANDED IMMIGRANT STATUS

More Ups, Downs for Hannagan

Roger Hannagan's girls have scattered, but the pugilistic pilot is determined to stay in the Victoria area as a Canadian.

Hannagan's navigator, Francine Johnson, was en route home to Montreal this afternoon via commercial airline.

She left Quebec City with the 22-year-old pilot last Sunday after he was disqualified from the London-Victoria air race following a fist-swinging dispute with his regular co-pilot.

Hannagan's girl, Toots Johnson, is waiting to be picked up by him in Seattle on Tuesday.

The 6-foot-6 aviator, with tape holding on the malfunctioning door which started the row with his co-pilot, will carry on from Seattle to return the plane to its owner in Portland Tuesday.

But before he leaves Victoria, Hannagan will apply for landed immigrant status at the immigration office and as soon as he tidies up his affairs in Portland, he'll be back here pounding the pavement in search of a job in commercial aviation.

•

There are indications that a welcoming committee will be on hand when Hannagan and Toots touch down in Oregon.

Portland television newsmen report a barrage of calls asking when the pilot will be landing, and say they will be there to record the event.

Hannagan said the co-pilot with whom he had his now-famous fisticuffs in Scotland, osteopath Dr. Lawrence Dennis, has said he "wants to wash his hands of the whole episode."

For Hannagan, the long saga ends when he turns over the plane to its owner, a Portland physician, Tuesday.

In a rare show of sentiment Friday, Hannagan stood in front of his fellow competitors in the race and apologized, tears in his eyes, his voice breaking.

"I didn't mean to steal the show from all of you," Hannagan said. "If I've offended anyone, I'm sorry."

He was replying to an attack moments earlier at a press conference by Alberta competitor H. W. Aycock. After assailing the press for "poor coverage" of the race, Aycock launched into personal criticism of Hannagan.

•

Here's a man who pulls a fool's stunt in Scotland ... then he comes over here (to Canada) and picks up some girl in Quebec City and everyone thinks he's a hero."

Although Aycock later shook hands and said he harbored no ill will, Hannagan was visibly hurt by the attack.

He explained that he had spent six months modifying his aircraft and otherwise preparing for the race, and was not about to discontinue because of "an argument."

Then, in a move that surprised even race organizers, Air Marshall Clair Annis, president of the Air Race Corporation, praised Hannagan for getting publicity and making the world aware of the race.

Hannagan also was defended by Lillooet pilot Ken Akers, who said he had flown much of the race near Hannagan and found him to be "a friendly person and a good pilot. I think he was just caught in bad circumstances.

"It could have been any one of us. In a case like that, you just have to make the best of it. He did finish the race. He's a damn good pilot."

SHILO

ALL-SOOKE ACTION

Shiver me timbers! All-Sooke Day was marred by rain Saturday for the first time in the 36-year history of the affair. Sprinkles didn't dampen spirits, however, and in the end only the dust was kept down.

Action was plentiful as shown, top left, when Mervin Lentz of Crestwell, Oregon, powered his way to the saw bucking title with a time of 8.9 seconds.

Getting spruced up with a shave from his keen-edged axe is best all-around logger Ron Hartill of Sooke (top centre) who won a first and a number of seconds.

TOP TOT AT SOOKE

Little Shilo Johnson of Victoria may only be 13 months old, but he knows all about show biz.

He had to impress Dr. Jack Patterson, the judge, with enough charm to crawl off with the Times Cup as best baby at All Sooke Day.

And that's just what he did. "I'm his agent," said grandmother Mrs. Eleanor Johnson beaming proudly after the presentation. The tot's parents are Janet and Robert Johnson of 1738 Ross.

Best Sooke baby was Karen Pitre, 8-month-old daughter of Diane and Ross Pitre. She may well be starting a tradition in the family because 23 years ago her mother won the Times Cup at the festivities as best baby.

Best baby under 5½ months was Kenneth Hillicke of Sooke.

Newcombe Wins Swiss Crown

GSTADD, Switzerland (AP) — John Newcombe, Australia's three-time Wimbledon winner, defeated Tom Okker of Holland 6,2, 5-7, 1-6, 7-5, 6-3 Sunday to win the men's title of the Swiss international tennis championships.

In the fifth set, Okker broke Newcombe's service to take a 3-2 lead, but the Australian came back to win the next four games.

It was Okker's fourth consecutive loss in the Gstaad final.

British Soldier Slain

BELFAST (CP)—Gunmen fired a volley of shots from a speeding car today as Northern Ireland's Orangemen celebrated 50 years of Protestant rule. A British soldier fell dead, three bullets in the back.

The soldier was on sentry duty in the Roman Catholic Falls Road area.

During the night, 10 bombs exploded in Northern Ireland by the Orangemen defying threats of terrorism began marching at daybreak in celebration of their ancestors' victory over the Catholics 281 years ago. The parades passed quietly.

Twenty thousand troops and police kept an iron security guard on the massive Orange Order testivities after a night of bombs and shooting in which nine civilians were wounded.

Security chiefs said parades in Belfast and other centres were perhaps slightly larger than last year, with an estimated total of 400 bands and more than 100,000 marchers on the routes.

Outgoing marches from town centres to fields and parks passed quietly. Troops took a rest before coming back to full alert in the event, when the Orangemen and their families headed home from a day of speech-making, drinking, picnics and children's sports.

The bombs began going off shortly after midnight Sunday night while thousands of Protestants were dancing around bonfires to celebrate the anniversary.

Four blasts shattered windows along Royal Avenue, Belfast's main street. The Protestants celebrating "the glorious 12th" in other parts of the capital ran for shelter and British troops moved in with armored cars.

Another bomb damaged a Belfast power station.

Seven persons were wounded by the blasts but police said their injuries were light. Six suspects were arrested.

BLAME IRA

Two more bombs damaged an empty Protestant hall and a power station in Irvinestown, 80 miles away. Two exploded in Pomeroy to the west and another went off in Newry near the border with the Irish Republic to the south.

Police and the British Army said the blasts were set by the outlawed Irish Republican Army, trying to provoke violence during the traditional celebration today. It marks the defeat of Catholic King James II by Protestant King William in the Battle of the Boyne in 1690.

Provinces Told To Increase Tax

18-YEAR-OLDS GET VOTE IN ONTARIO

TORONTO (CP)—Eighteen-year-olds will be able to vote in the next Ontario provincial and municipal elections, Premier William Davis announced today.

The reduction of the "age of accountability" to 18 from 21 also will give the young people the right to hold elective office and to sit on juries, the right to consume alcoholic beverages and the right to undertake legal and financial contracts.

Higher Exemptions Mean Less Money

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson told the provinces today they will have to raise their personal income tax rates in order to stay where they now are in the race for the taxpayer's dollar.

Under the new tax plan he proposed in his June 18 budget, larger personal exemptions and lower tax rates will be introduced by the federal government.

Narrows Over-All Tax Base

This considerably narrows the over-all tax base, and the 28 per-cent provincial tax that most provinces now charge will give them less money. Some provinces now charge more than 28 per cent, running up to 39 per cent in Manitoba.

Mr. Benson told a closed-door federal-provincial conference that in order to obtain the same share of income tax revenues, the 28-per-cent figure will have to be raised to 30 per cent. The top rate will have to go up to 42 per cent.

Mr. Benson said that while these higher rates will have to be written into provincial tax law to make it harmonize with the new federal income tax structure, they won't mean that taxpayers will have to pay out more or less in dollars.

Guarantee Same Revenues

In fact, he promised the provinces that if they bring their tax laws into harmony with the new federal plan, he will guarantee that they will receive the same revenues in 1972, 1973 and 1974 as they would receive if the old federal law was continued.

Manitoba immediately asked for a longer guarantee than three years. It said it stood to lose $50 million in five years.

Finance Minister Raymond Garneau of Quebec told the conference, moreover, that his advisers calculate the new rates would still yield the provinces "appreciably lower revenue." He said he would like to compare notes with Ottawa experts on their calculations.

Quebec is a special case, since it has opted out of most federal-provincial shared cost programs and administers its own provincial income tax. Mr. Benson welcomed an earlier statement by Mr. Garneau that the two might get together and harmonize their tax plans.

A. O. Aalborg, provincial treasurer of Alberta, released at the conference a letter to Mr. Benson objecting to the federal plan to tax capital gains. It was inconsistent, he said, with Canada's need to have more Canadians invest in Canadian development.

Ontario Also Voices Objection

Darcy McKeough, provincial treasurer of Ontario, said his experts haven't had time yet to digest the whole of the new tax plan, but he said the incentives for small business "is not as generous as we had hoped and believed."

Mr. McKeough, near the top of the speakers list for the opening session of the two-day conference, led other provincial finance ministers in criticizing as premature the federal government's withdrawal of the estate tax.

British Columbia is being represented at the conference by Gerald Bryson, deputy finance minister. Premier Bennett last week declined to release details of British Columbia's presentation to the conference.

'Withdraw Tax Gradually'

At least two provincial leaders—NDP Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan, and NDP Finance Minister Saul Cherniak of Manitoba—said they would object to Mr. Benson's withdrawal of the federal estate and gift tax next Jan. 1. They want the tax withdrawn gradually, over a period of years, since they get 75 per cent of the revenues from it in their provinces.

Benson listed the following new rates which would have to be applied by each province just to get the same revenues, with the existing rates, in percentages of the federal tax for comparison:

Newfoundland 35.5-33; Nova Scotia 30-28; Prince Edward Island 33.5-33; New Brunswick 41-38; Ontario 30-28; Manitoba 42-33.9; Saskatchewan 36.5-34; Alberta 35.5-33; British Columbia 30-28.

Pay Cuts Forced On M-B's Top 60

VANCOUVER (CP) — The top 60 executives of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., Canada's largest forestry company, have taken pay cuts of up to 10 per cent for the balance of 1971, Chairman J. V. Clyne said Sunday night.

"I cut everybody over $50,000 by 10 per cent and everybody in the $35,000 to $50,000 bracket by five per cent, effective July 1, to the end of the year," Mr. Clyne said in an interview, "and that includes my pay.

"It was important morally that this be done. I felt that when the shareholders were having their dividends cut that the management should do the same in the way of salaries.

"I don't want to give the impression that we are scared about the future because that isn't so. We are succeeding in holding our own. We have always run a tight ship; we don't have any superficiality."

In addition, the Vancouver-based company has eliminated its central engineering department of 25 persons, although the net layoffs from this move are not expected to be more than four.

FACING PROBLEMS

The pay cuts at MacMillan Bloedel are just part of a general tightening among the management and salaried staffs of British Columbia's major forest firms as they face continuing market problems for their products and declining profits.

Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd., with chronic financial problems over a number of years, has reduced its salaried personnel by 15 per cent in all operations during the last four weeks. An estimate of the number of people involved was not available Sunday night.

At least two other companies have allowed attrition to reduce administrative staff. Several other firms said that while there had been no pay of staff cuts that "things are very tight."

At Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., there was a small number of staff cuts in the spring but company officials could not say how many. In many cases, it meant that planned and even authorized additions to staffs, both hourly and salaried, were not made.

Richard C. Nelson, Crown Zellerbach executive vice-president, said the company had "taken a good hard look and we eliminated some positions—we were able to do a great deal of this by attrition."

A spokesman for B.C. Forest Products Ltd. said administrative jobs had been reduced by 20 through attrition. It is understood there have been no staff or pay cuts at Canadian Forest Products Ltd.

Firing Squad Kills Moroccan Rebels

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — The leaders of the attempt to overthrow King Hassan II were executed by firing squad at dawn today, Moroccan sources reported.

They said three generals and other officers were shot after giving authorities details of their plot.

It was not known whether the dozen or so senior officers said to have been involved in the plot all were executed.

King Hassan told a news conference Sunday that the officers who led the bloody military coup would all be dead by sundown tonight. The 42-year-old monarch named eight principal plotters including four generals and three colonels.

Hassan said Gen. Mohamed Medboun, the head of his personal military staff, and three other generals named Mustapha, Bougrine and Hambou used 1,400 ignorant, drug-crazed cadets in an abortive attempt to liquidate him and the entire leadership of his regime.

Medbouh was accidentally killed by his own men during the attack at the king's summer palace on the Atlantic, 15 miles south of Rabat.

At least 30 of the guests at the king's 42nd birthday party were killed, including the country's only field marshal, three generals, the minister of tourism, the president of the Supreme Court, Belgian Ambassador Marcel Duprat, and other officers and officials.

About 150 rebels died in a seven-hour battle for the Rabat radio station. The insurgents seized the radio, announced the king's death and proclaimed a revolutionary republic. But forces loyal to the king finally overcame the rebellion.

The four rebel generals named by the king were not known to have any leftist affiliations. Medbouh became Hassan's closest military adviser in 1963, when he betrayed a plot in which he said he pretended to take part.

BLUMSCHEIN SHARES AIR RACE PRIZE

The winner of the London to Victoria Centennial air race, Joe Blumschein of Germany, will donate $5,000 of his $60,000 winnings to be distributed "at the discretion" of Premier Bennett and Prime Minister Trudeau.

"No matter how prosperous a nation is, there are always still people who need help," he said Saturday night after receiving two trophies and cheques totalling $60,000.

Heroin Crisis Not Doctors Fault: MD

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark displayed a "lack of knowledge" about how doctors practise medicine when he attacked them for their reluctance to treat heroin addicts, Dr. W. G. McClure said today.

McClure, registrar of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in B.C., was commenting on weekend criticism by Loffmark of doctors "who refuse to treat heroin addicts."

Loffmark said doctors "are not doing their public duty" and that "they don't like to have them (addicts) around their offices."

The minister was responding to an earlier complaint by McClure that the provincial government has been doing nothing to meet a growing heroin addiction crisis in B.C.

McClure said today he doesn't want to get into a running public battle with Loffmark but said the minister "betrays a lack of knowledge about how doctors practise."

"The point I have tried to make is that these people can't be treated like an ordinary patient," McClure said. Many doctors who have tried treating addicts on their own have had "nothing but grief," including difficulties with narcotics control agencies when addicts exploit a number of doctors to get heavy drug prescriptions.

PROPER SUPPORT

Until a central registry is established with proper support programs on a provincial basis, doctors will be frustrated in efforts to treat addicts, McClure said.

Dr. Scott Wallace, Social Credit MLA for Oak Bay, said the necessity of seeing an addict every day would "completely disorganize" a general practitioner's practice.

The special purpose clinic approach is needed in treating addicts, Wallace said.

WALKOUT FACES AIRLINE

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada faces a possible shutdown in the near future if its mechanics and ground personnel vote tonight for a study session.

George Daley, vice-president of the Montreal local of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, said today it is "almost certain" that members will vote for a study session.

The starting time and duration of such a walkout would be decided at the meeting beginning at 8 p.m., he said.

Similar meetings were to be held tonight in Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Meanwhile, Air Canada said it would continue normal operations as long as possible.

Victoria airport will not be affected at this stage, a spokesman said.

Debate Resumes

QUEBEC (CP) — The national assembly was to resume debate today on the government's James Bay development legislation and Premier Robert Bourassa has vowed to continue legislature sitting until the bill is adopted.

BAD WEATHER TO END (MAYBE)

The weather pattern which has brought unsummery clouds and cool temperatures to Victoria has broken, giving grounds for cautious optimism, the weatherman said today.

"The situation is easing, but there's still an awful lot of dirty weather over B.C. and I'm a little leery about the whole thing," said Allan McQuarrie of the dominion weather office.

A huge low-pressure trough stretching in an east-west line over southern Vancouver Island has split, carrying rain storms east to the Prairies and west over the Pacific.

Despite this first break in the stubborn over-all pattern, more cloud is expected Tuesday and Wednesday. It was expected to be clear tonight.

MORE PEOPLE AND LESS FOOD

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — The world population will double by the year 2004 at the present rate of growth yet food production has already declined on a per capita basis, the United Nations reported Sunday.

The population total for mid-1969 was put at 3.561 billion. This represented a two-per-cent growth rate which would take the figure to seven billion by the end of this century.

WILSON GETS SUPPORT IN OPPOSING ECM BID

Times News Services

LONDON — Opposition Leader Harold Wilson now has a majority in his "shadow cabinet" opposed to Britain entering the Common Market on the present terms, political commentators reported during the weekend.

The development has been brought about by a change of opinion by two leading members, said David Wood, political correspondent of The Times. They are Denis Healey, shadow foreign secretary, and Anthony Crosland, shadow minister for the environment.

Healey based his change of view on Wilson's allegation that the government's 20,000-word white paper suppressed the total cost of entry, particularly in regard to food, The Times said.

Crosland was seen as supporting Wilson's insistence on the importance of keeping the Labor party united.

Healey disclosed in a television interview Sunday night that he has swung a long way since the white paper was published last Wednesday.

An another market development, Prime Minister Heath said he does not believe that British entry will drive Canada deeper into the United States orbit.

He told reporters the impression he got from talks with Prime Minister Trudeau is that Ottawa will seek widest international relations with China, Soviet Union and others.

U.S. Peace Bid In Mideast Snuffed Out?

CAIRO (WP) — A single sentence by the Egyptian government spokesman Sunday may have spelled the end of the American peace initiative in the Middle East.

In a statement breaking the five-day silence on the vsilt here of Donald Bergus, chief U.S. diplomat to Egypt, and Michael Starner, state department expert on Egyptian affairs, spokesman Tahsin Bashir said. "The American officials did not bring anything new." He would not elaborate, and the U.S. diplomatic mission, contacted later, had no comment.

TWO CHOICES

The government statement can be interpreted either as confirming the earlier Egyptian attitude that the Rogers peace bid is dead, or as a strong hint to the two envoys that, if they have anything new to propose, they had better do it now. But as the state department has repeatedly emphasized, Bergus and Sterner are not carrying any new proposals.

Their mission has been to talk about procedures and to discover if Cairo could be made to give way on its demand that any interim peace agreement must contain a guarantee of eventual withdrawal by Israel from all occupied Arab territory. In the Egyptian view, if the U.S. is looking for any "give," it should address itself rather to Tel Aviv.

Egyptian officials are fond of citing a reported exchange between President Anwar Sadat and Secretary of State William P. Rogers during the latter's visit there in May. After they had discussed at length Egyptian willingness to make a peace agreement, Sadat is said to have asked Rogers, "Do you think there is anything more we can give?"

"No," Rogers is quoted as replying.

WHY THE CHANGE

Egyptians now ask why, if he then thought Egypt had made all possible concessions, Rogers is now looking for a concession on what is a fundamental principle for Egypt: Full implementation of the United Nations Security Council resolution of 1967 calling on Israel to abandon the Arab land. Egypt had already agreed to sign a peace agreement with Israel and recognize her as a sovereign state, provided there was full restitution of the seized territory, they point out.

Neither the Egyptian government nor the U.S. embassy is yet willing to say whether or not the U.S. envoys have seen President Sadat. But they must have had some high-level talks since a news blackout was imposed after their meeting Tuesday with Foreign Affairs Minister of State Mohamed Hafez Ismail. Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad is away on an East European tour.

In any case it is certain that Sunday's terse statement by the official spokesman had President Sadat's full approval.

Political observers here now feel that Rogers' quiet diplomacy has failed, and the U.S. peace bid is dead. The next steps for Cairo, it is forecast, will be to step up its campaign to isolate the U.S. on the Israeli withdrawal issue, and to get the whole matter returned to the U.N.

NDP Letter Protests Atom Tests

Saanich and the Islands New Democratic Party Constituency Association has sent a letter to President Pompidou of France protesting that country's 1971 nuclear test program.

The association decided to write the French leader after learning "with dismay" of the explosion of an atomic device in the air June 5.

Concerned with nuclear pollution and the resultant dangers to health, members asked the European country to lead the way to a ban on all such testing by all countries.

They "earnestly implored" the French government to reconsider the program. The association has also protested the U.S. underground test program in the Aleutian islands.

300,000 CHEER PIERRE ON HORSE

CALGARY (CP) — A roaring, laughing, yahooing western crowd estimated at 300,000 cheered Prime Minister Trudeau today as he ambled through downtown streets on horseback in the Stampede parade.

In a white stetson and western outfit provided by Stampede officials, the prime minister was greeted by swelling applause and friendly yells from the sidewalks, bleachers, windows and rooftops along the two-mile route to the reviewing stand. (See also Page 6.)

. . . PAY CUTS FORCED

Ltd., a spokesman said that cuts were made in research and engineering about three years ago and that further cuts in salaried staff had not been necessary in the present "tough circumstances." No cuts in salaries have been made.

Directors of MacMillan Bloedel in April cut out the normal 25-cent second-quarter dividend, the first time the company had omitted this payout.

Profits in the first quarter fell sharply to $1.4 million or seven cents per share from $7.2 million for the same period of 1970.

Mr. Clyne said he was not at liberty to reveal the company's profit position for the three months ended June 30. He said the matter of the dividend for the third quarter will be decided in about two weeks.

He said there were hopes that profits might turn up in the second half of 1971, particularly in the last quarter of the year.

"Generally speaking for the industry there is going to be an improvement for the rest of the year," he said.

"I think, looking at the lumber market and at the outlook for newsprint, that there will be better prospects for the rest of the year.

"The improvement is starting now, but it will not be the same for all companies."

OUTLOOK BAD

Mr. Clyne described the outlook for pulp sales as "lousy," and said prices have dropped 10 to 15 per cent from the level of about $160 per ton for bleached kraft pulp which had been obtained a year ago.

"In fact, the market in Europe is so sloppy it is really hard to say what the prices are."

Mr. Clyne said he thought the economic recession in North America was "bottoming out."

"It has been a recession far deeper than anyone ever thought it was going to be. We have to remember that it is going to be a gradual return to normal. My estimate is about two years."

Observers Welcome

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police forces in British Columbia are reported to have responded favorably to an offer from the B.C. Civil Liberties Association to provide impartial observers or mediators to help avert possible confrontations between transient youth and local authorities. Dave Robertson, secretary of the association, says replies have been received saying authorities will consider the services if the need arise.

SOOKE CHILDREN GOOD LOGGERS

By MAUREEN DUFFUS

The children of Sooke are easily distinguishable from visiting children on All-Sooke day.

For one thing, local children are casually at ease balancing on the practice birling log in Sooke Community Association Park.

Visiting children tumble off on the first roll.

"We've never had a broken leg yet, though" Mrs. Annie Akerman of Sooke said, just as another novice bit the dust.

AXE THROWERS

Sooke children throw axes nonchalantly, too.

Half a dozen little boys, between 7 and 12, were flipping man-sized axes at tree-slice targets in the performing ring, while a sawing competition was in progress.

"Sooke parents must have strong nervers," a mother remarked.

Non-Sooke families considered the show great spectator sport.

Four-year-old Robbie Pelton of Sidney had been waiting impatiently for days "to see the lumberjacks."

He was there with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Pelton and his young brother, Carl, "the flower child" who was more interested in dandelions on the grassy bank where the family spent most of the day.

RIGHT ON TOP

It was more than spectator sport for seven-year-old Jamie Duffus, who had the good fortune to be at the top of the ferris wheel when it broke down.

Seat-belted in the same chair with Jamie was one of the prettiest little girls at the show, Dawn-Marie Williamson, 3½ years old.

Interviewed after their adventure, the young couple said they weren't afraid.

"We talked about things like climbing all around and rescuing everybody," they said.

Dawn Marie, who was wearing a pink rain hat and pant suit straight out of junior Vogue, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Williamson, 2545 Asquith.

Down from Port Alberni were Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Webster with their two little girls in blue, Tracy, 4 and Janice, 2.

The girls didn't win any of the children's races — the handicapping system was slightly haphazard due to last minute contestants raising the numbers in some races to nearly 5. They liked watching the chokerman's races, though, especially the exciting bit when two contestants collided and one went into the pond with a splendid splash.

Kevin Winia, six, son of Mr. and Mrs. Siemon Winia of Victoria, spoke for almost all the spectators:

"I like it best when the men go up those big poles."

Adults as well as children agree that Sooke has a great thing going for it at the annual competitions.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Jay of Toronto were there with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jay of Victoria.

"I've been looking forward to this more than the Calgary Stampede," said Jay Senior.

Top all-around logger Earl Marcellus, a forestry student at the University of Washington, agreed.

"It's a really good show," he sais as he watched his fiance, Linda Burgess of Leavenworth, Washington, practice for the ladies' log rolling event.

"It's one of the top three in North America," said Marcellus, who has competed in similar shows across the continent.

As for the barbecued salmon, it got the highest of praise as usual.

Perverse Winds Hold Up Thunderbird Race Start

Forty-three boats in the Thunderbird world championships were still waiting to start the first race early this afternoon.

And the weatherman was offering little encouragement in the way of breezy forecasts.

Race officials had set a course in Haro Strait earlier in the morning, hoping to take advantage of the promised westerlies.

They didn't come and the fleet moved back to the original course off the Victoria waterfront. The wind was patchy there, southeasterlies never rising above six knots.

Out-of-town competitors were frustrated Sunday when they sailed a tune-up race which had to be shortened for lack of wind.

FIRST TUSSLE

For some of them who were unable to finish it was their first tussle with strong local tides.

But one visiting crew was able to meet the challenge.

Tony Redstone of Sydney, Australia, was second over the finish line, sailing Dave Carere's Chinook. In first place was local sailor John Malleson on Sunday, another Victoria competitor, Dave Anstey finishing third in Hussy II.

In the race, which does not count for the world series, another visitor was able to show the transom to the rest of the fleet, Harry "Tanker" Jones of Toronto skippered his Totem Too to first place around the windward mark.

Gene Boudreau, a pharmacist from Shediac, N.B., and his crew are the Canadians travelling the farthest to make the world series. With him are Reg Roy and Emile Cormier, all of whom expressed astonishment at the tides.

Boudreau said Sunday, "I've never seen anything like it. Here we were going like crazy-backwards!"

The New Brunswick crew is using Den Perry's Tahola for the races and Perry is along to round out the crew.

Boudreau says he's not hoping for much success but came here to get some competition. There are only four Thunderbirds at the Shediac Bay Yacht Club.

Both he and Roy, though, are experienced sailors, having earned their spurs in Snipe competition.

Boudreau will get his wish.

The field of 43 boats competing in this year's world series is the largest one-design fleet to ever compete in these waters.

MOMENT OF VICTORY is a dry occasion for All-Sooke Day birling champion Phil Scott, 23, of Barrington, N.S., as Jerry Phillips of Walla Walla, Wash., is dumped into the pool. (Photo by Robin Clarke)

First Rain Since 1934 Ends Dry Tradition of All-Sooke Day

By IAN HAMILTON

When Phil Scott of Barrington, N.S., does his thing it's as easy as falling off a long.

For everyone else, that is.

Opponents of the 23-year-old log birler are as clean as sportsmen anywhere because they almost always end up taking quick baths.

After an unusually long dance number on a log Saturday at All Sooke Day, Scott had just dunked Jerry Phillips of walla Walla, Wash. to win the competition yet another time when he noticed two Mr. Cleans eyeing his dry clothes.

Splash!

HOW'S IT FEEL?

"How's it feel, champ?" the loggers asked Scott after dumping him in the water.

"Hey, all your money's going rusty."

Pulling himself out of the logging pool and fishing a soggy $100 bill out of his back pocket — his prize money — he had a lot of sympathizers in the estimated crowd of 8,000.

That's because what has been described as the dry miracle of All Sooke Day came to an end, everybody else got wet for the first time since the annual event began in 1934.

It wasn't a heavy rain, however, and by the middle of the afternoon the sun had broken out to end the logging championships in clear weather.

Lawrie Wallace, deputy provincial secretary, opened the competitions in "the kind of liquid sunshine that has made this area famous for logging."

OFFICIAL SPORT

He told the crowd, which included many competitors from the London-Victoria, B.C. centennial air race, that logging sports are the official industry sport of the province.

With this in mind, numerous loggers competing in the 17 events are unhappy over the amount of publicity their sport is given in the media and the backing it receives from the logging industry.

Over 40 top-notch competitors from the U.S., Canada and Australia came to vie for trophies and prize money at Sooke, but the sport itself was on as many minds as individual glories.

"Logging companies only give the sport a pittance," said Brian Herlihy of Sooke. "And when 55 cents of every dollar earned in the province is earned by the forest industry, that's a mighty poor show."

ALL-ROUNDER

Herlihy was top all-around logger three straight years until beaten out by Earl Marcellus of Seattle for the title last year.

Marcellus, a 27-year-old University of Washington forestry student, agrees about the poor publicity and backing in Canada. He says the situation is even worse in many parts of the U.S.

Herlihy suffered two broken ribs when he fell off log at work two weeks ago but took the Canadian championship in the springboard chop. Marcellus took a third in springboard and a fourth in standing on "just one of those days."

Sooke's Ron Hartill won the best all-around logger trophy, with a first in the obstacle pole event and second in standing block, springboard chop, axe throwing and log-rolling.

Americans won two of three Canadian championship events as sanctioned by Canadian Loggers' Sports Association. Larry Downing of Castle Rock, Wash. took the chokerman's race and Bob Waibel of Sweet Home, Ore. came in first in the peavey log rolling event.

Remaining Class A winners were John Kasnik of Port Alberni, axe-throwing; Mervin Lentz of Cresswell, Ore., power saw bucking and log bucking; Scott, log birling, and Larry Downing, speed-climbing-event.

Downing, a 26-year-old from Albany, Ore., is world champion in speed-climbing, setting a record of 35 seconds flat on July 4 in Albany. Saturday he shot up the pole in a time of 41.2 seconds, still affected by a dislocated shoulder suffered during his record 100-foot climb last week.

In Class B events, Dan Herrling, 14, of Sooke won the log birling title while 12-year-old brother Paul claimed the Hartill trophy as the best young axe-thrower under 14.

Harold McKenzie of Victoria won the Class B log bucking trophy, while Al Marcellus of Seattle took a first in underhand chop and Robbie Carroll of Squamish the speed climb competition.

Two Lost After Canoe Flips

NELSON (CP) — A five-day climbing expedition to Devil's Gulch ended in tragedy Saturday for four climbers returning home by canoe across Slocan Lake. Two men, both landed immigrants from the United States, drowned when their canoe capsized. Two survivors swam to shore but one, a young girl, spent a long night frozen in fear to a narrow ledge 900 feet below highway 6 waiting for help.

The two men missing and presumed drowned by RCMP at New Denver are Michael Gregory Peak, 22, and Charles Madison Reed, 23. All four climbers were from a 10-member commune on Slocan Lake, 40 miles north of Nelson.

RCMP said the four climbers capsized their 17-foot aluminum canoe in the middle of Slocan Lake Saturday afternoon. The two survivors, Mark Maddox and an unidentified girl, swam to safety and began looking for help.

The girl went first taking a diagonal route across 1,400 feet of near vertical rock between the lake's shore and highway 6 at Cape Horn.

About halfway up the rock face the girl slipped and fell to a ledge below, breaking her leg. Hearing a scream, Maddox followed. Finding the girl suffering from severe shock and what appeared to be multiple leg fractures, he left the girl to go for help.

The climber reached the highway by 10 p.m. Saturday night and flagged down a passing motorist and within an hour RCMP reached the area, known as Cape Horn.

Unable to move the girl from her dangerous perch, RCMP officers crawled to the ledge and stayed with the shock numbed girl through the night.

At dawn five rescue climbers from the Kootenay mountaineering and mountain rescue were brought to the scene and they rescued the injured girl by 10 a.m. Sunday.

Police said Sunday night she is recovering satisfactorily in Arrow Lakes hospital at Nakusp.

Church Takes Action

PANAMA (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church has excommunicated all persons involved in the disappearance of Rev. Hector Gallego, a Colombian priest who worked in a poverty-ridden district in the highlands of central Panama. The excommunication was announced by Father Gallego's superior, Bishop Martin Legarra of the Vergauas Diocese. Father Gallego apparently was kidnapped by two men June 9.

Two-Car Mishap Injures 6 People

A two-car head-on collision 5½ miles west of Sooke on Highway 14 late Saturday afternoon sent six people to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Ian Young, 15, of the Juan de Fuca Trailer Park near Sooke, is in fair condition with head and internal injuries suffered in the accident.

Sooke RCMP said Young was a passenger in a car driven by Patrick Lucas, 19, also of the trailer camp.

Lucas is in good condition with a concussion.

Hospital officials said the four persons in the second car are all in good condition.

SUFFERED CUTS

Richard Sorenson, 73, of Jordan River, suffered cuts as did Janice Neilson, 9.

Mrs. Sharon De Yaeger, 27, of Jordan River, received facial cuts and possible head injuries and Christine Neilson, 11, suffered a broken leg.

RCMP said the roads were dry and the skies overcast at the time of the crash about 5:30 p.m.

A Sooke ambulance, an RCMP cruiser and a passer-by's station wagon transported the injured to St. Joseph's.

Police said two unidentified registered nurses and about eight other men and women assisted at the scene until the ambulance arrived.

Police identified the owner-driver of the station wagon as Tom Scolar, 2065 Oak Bay Ave.

Planning for People

WITH THE SIGNING OF AN agreement to buy the Ocean Cement Ltd. property on Wharf Street the city has moved another step along the way to converting the Inner Harbor area into an amenity which should be of lasting value. Much remains to be done and many decisions have yet to be reached before park-type development, along with waterfront promendades and revitalization of the region can be accomplished. There is, nevertheless, a heartening indication here of sensible planning for the future. Progress is being made.

The action comes at a time when increasing importance is being paid to the necessity of considering not only the aesthetic attractions so essential to urban living, but of devising means by which the social health of the community can be protected in the surge of urbanization.

The situation emerging as so many Canadians flock from rural areas to the cities is now being more completely understood. So also is the need for planning which can no longer overlook the psychological elements involved.

Most Canadians recognize the need to get away from the tensions of congested towns and modern urban life by trips, long or short, to the countryside. Insufficient attention, however, seems to be given to the complementary need to modify the urban environment in ways to overcome hidden human reactions to the conventional accompaniment of the movement to cities — overcrowding.

We recognize the obvious problems created by the high-rise — its elimination of the natural vistas, the congestion of traffic, the noxious fumes and noise. We are less aware of the abrasion that stems from too many people living too closely together.

Professor G. Jorgensen of Germany has placed the issue in perspective, suggesting that urbanized humanity could be on the verge of venting its rage against cramped living conditions, developing aggressiveness born of claustrophobic desperation. If the optimal space for humans has not been determined, a certain connection has been suggested between the density of some European populations and the wars that have occurred in this century — a line of thought exploited in Germany's demand for "living space" in its prelude to the last world war.

As the concept emerges from those who have given more than superficial study to the question, room to live takes on growing significance. Western society, moving away from rural regions and concentrating in the larger centres, must give thought to more than visually appealing civic design, must recognize that congestion creates abrasion and must address itself specifically to the task of keeping planning on the human scale.

There is more at stake than renovating such areas as the Inner Harbor to make it more attractive to tourists, more pleasing to the eye of the resident, important as these considerations are. Inherent in good planning is the cultivation of an area which can become a reservoir of shared values, a neighborhood in which children may acquire that sense of security which will prevent them from becoming rootless neurotics as they grow up.

Providing space for those necessarily confined in high-density shelter indoors is one of the objectives essential to satisfactory solution of the urban problem — space in promenades, in open views of the sky, hills and seascapes, in small park-like areas.

Victoria's opportunities in this respect are obvious. We are in a position to order new development along lines that meet the urbanization problem before that problem has reached unmanageable proportions.

"Excellent, Pierre. It's even more convincing than your unicycle act."

A Missed Opportunity

THE accusation by Chester Ronning, the former Canadian diplomat, that Washington "bungled or sabotaged" the opportunity provided in a peace mission which he made to Hanoi in March, 1966, is another tragic footnote to the Pentagon Papers. Mr. Ronning claims that as a result of his trip to Hanoi the North Vietnamese premier made concessions which, if accepted by the United States, could have led to peace talks two years earlier than their actual opening in 1968. Reportedly, the North dropped its demand that the U.S. recognize the NLF and its call for withdrawal of all U.S. troops before negotiations could begin. Mr. Ronning conveyed Hanoi's terms verbally to U.S. Assistant Secretary of State William Bundy.

What happened then is a mystery. The published portion of the McNamara study has reference only to Mr. Ronning's second mission when Hanoi's position had hardened.

The impression given by the Seaborn missions in 1964 and 1965 that Canada was no more than a messenger boy has been given a new interpretation: this country's role was perhaps not simply looked down upon — it was disregarded when the message conveyed did not suit the needs of high officials in Washington. Middle power status, it seems, has even fewer rewards than had been thought.

Reaching Above the Pusher

WHEN THE ATTORNEY-GENeral of the United States announces that his country is trying to weed out Southeast Asian officials who are allowing narcotics to reach U.S. servicemen, his statement is important far beyond the United States. It is significant to Canada and to other Western nations, not only as a commentary on a Southeast Asian administration which holds jurisdiction over such officials, but because illegal use of narcotics seeps across borders. The neighbor state of one in which addiction becomes epidemic cannot be sure of immunity.

It is dismaying to hear Congressmen who have been to Vietnam charge members of that country's military personnel with trafficking, and accuse a Vietnamese general of being a "chief trafficker."

Some health authorities have contended that addiction, particularly to heroin, will claim a higher toll on American servicemen than will the Viet Cong. What will happen to those addicts once they return to this continent has been forecast. Most of them will become waste humans of no benefit to their country or to any other country to which they may move.

If there is one solace in the American statement on attempts to remove the cause of addiction, and its agents, it lies in the implication that the attack is going up to the top, not ceasing among the small fry so frequently the main target of suppression efforts.

FROM QUEBEC — By PAUL WHITELAW

Can Loubier Stop a Drift to the PQ?

NO government can stay in power indefinitely. Eventually, public opinion — like the pendulum of a clock — will swing against a leader and his party. This political maxim points up the significance of the job held by Gabriel Loubier, the wealthy lawyer who was chosen last month to head the Union Nationale.

Whitelaw

Unless Mr. Loubier can restore his party as a significant force in Quebec politics, the way will have been left clear for the separatist Parti Quebecois to pick up the votes of people who become disenchanted with the Liberal government of Premier Robert Bourassa.

Even some of Mr. Loubier's supporters admit that he faces a difficult, if not impossible, task.

Close to Extinction

There was every indication prior to last month's lacklustre leadership convention that the party founded by the late Premier Maurice Duplessis in the early 1930s was close to extinction.

Little has changed in recent weeks, and it is difficult to foresee how Mr. Loubier could steer the UN to another victory. Quebec society apparently changed too much during the years of the "Quiet Revolution" — launched by the Liberals when they held power from 1960 to 1966 — for the rural conservatism of the Union Nationale to survive.

However, political observers will be watching in the coming year to see whether Mr. Loubier can resuscitate the party to the point where it could draw a significant number of opposition votes away from the other parties, such as the Parti Quebecois.

If Mr. Loubier doesn't succeed, the separatists could form the official opposition in the National Assembly after the next election, not expected until perhaps 1974. After that, they would be in a good position to assume power if the tide turned against Premier Bourassa.

The PQ, it must be remembered, won 23 per cent of the popular vote in the April, 1970, general election. Although the separatists gained only seven seats in the National Assembly, their fortunes could change with the sweeping electoral reforms that Mr. Bourassa has promised.

The Union Nationale, which was reduced from governing Canada's largest province to a lame opposition with a mere 17 deputies, drew a meagre 20 per cent of the popular vote.

The only other party in the volatile Quebec political arena at this time is the Ralliement des Creditistes. Under the leadership of skilled orator, Camil Samson, the Quebec wing of the party managed to pick up 13 seats in its first provincial election bid. However, it attracted only 12 per cent of the popular vote.

Despite efforts by Mr. Samson to widen the base of his party's support, it appears the Creditistes will remain a force to be reckoned with only in rural areas. In addition, the party stands to gain little from the electoral reform that would aid, mainly, the Parti Quebecois.

The new Union Nationale chief, who held the tourism portfolio in the government of former Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand, fits into the party's traditional mould.

Mr. Loubier has an easy manner which is popular with the party's rural power base, and both his opponents and friends agree that he is a pragmatist with few ideological commitments.

His keynote speech to the convention the night before the voting was notable for its vagueness. Mr. Loubier pledged to curb the "hot heads" who demonstrate in the streets, the strong nationalists, the centralizing federalists, and maintain individual liberty. He also promised increased emphasis on the problems of Quebec's various remote regions, while guaranteeing the urban centres will receive a more equitable share of the tax dollar.

Stand Unknown

Few reporters know where Mr. Loubier stands on many issues, if the UN chief even knows himself.

Mr. Loubier is also an experienced dispenser of patronage, who is owed many favors in many parts of the province.

With his background and personality, the new UN chief stands to gain most by trying to re-oil the once powerful Union Nationale machine and concentrating on attacks at the Bourassa "technocracy" that will go down well in the country and poorer districts of Montreal and Quebec City.

The die in which Mr. Lochier will try to cast his image, along with that of the party during the next few years, was — in many ways — set at the convention.

The 1,200 voting delegates selected Mr. Loubier by a narrow 23 votes over Marcell Masse, another former cabinet minister, whose appeal was based on the need to reshape the UN program in a way that would be appealing to the middle class and educated young in the cities.

FROM LENINGRAD — By CHARLES BARTLETT

Flavor From Canada for Red Bread

"WE sinful Communists want it all right here on earth," said the Mayor of Leningrad in an expansive burst of candor and propaganda. Alexander Sizov does not feel he is doing badly. Thanks to the creative genius of Peter the Great, he presides over a city of rich beauty. Thanks to the vigorous Russian spirit, the scars of the Nazi siege have been virtually erased. Thanks to socialist discipline, Leningrad is suffering few of the modern urban scourges.

Bartlett

"We still have problems," conceded the grizzled and engaging Commissar. But his concerns are not the concerns of American mayors. Migration to the city is controlled so that no one comes unless he has a job and a place to live. Crime, by Sizov's records, is astonishingly rare.

Freed of Police Fear

The unruly are not kept in line, the Mayor insisted, by fear of police power. The police carry no sticks or guns and are obliged to be gentle with their clients. There is no problem with a generation gap or with drugs. "Three years ago," he said, "we discovered drugs were being sold by a small group of people and we did away with them."

Quaffing a tonic he called "Russian balm," the Mayor touched lightly on problems he does have. More resources need to be diverted from the military to the consumers. Clothes are better and private cars are multiplying, but labor is inefficient and in short supply. Automation may be the only answer to future needs.

This was about as far as Sizov would go on the negative side. He was more at ease with maps of his plans for Leningrad, allusions to the misery which the Communists inherited here, and jibes at Western vilifiers of the Marxist system. He seemed to challenge the visitor to go out and find holes in his heaven.

The search was not easy for a three-day tourist. Peter built Leningrad to be Russia's link with Europe and, by any Western standard, the city is magnificently clean and its buildings are coated in the dignity of age. In bright weather, the girls looked cheerfully chic. The old drabness had been lifted from the store windows.

Revisiting the stores after a three-year lapse, it was plain that the state is holding to its premise that there must be constant improvement in the quality and diversity of available goods. There must be no lapse in the progress. The state is buying, for example, large quantities of Canadian wheat to raise the average quality of the domestic supply. The public cannot be disappointed in the taste of its bread.

The consumer chooses now among seven brands of cigarettes and three brands of champagne. He can choose among a widening range of television sets and list his name to buy one of five cars which cost (in ruble equivalents) between $2,600 and $10,000 American. His wait may be a long one because less than 2,500 cars of all models have been delivered for sale in Leningrad this year.

This is not yet a consumer's heaven, the prices are forbidding, and the savings are piling up against a better day. The young are composed and short-cropped, but some perceive a quiet apathy in their spirit. One blunt young man said, "I like Americans, Khruschev liked Americans, but our leaders now don't even like the Russians. They only like themselves."

The lid is on tight, so who knows what the sentiment really is? How far away is heaven?

DENNIS THE MENACE

"DON'T PUT ANY PLATE ON THE TABLE FOR ME! I'M LEAVIN' AS SOON AS I GET BUS FARE TO SOME PLACE!"

Looking Back

From the Times of July 12, 1911:

Owing to the fact that the eastern mails have been delayed in reaching Vancouver, the R.M.S. Empress of China, Capt. Archibald, will not get away for the Orient until Friday. She was due to leave this afternoon for Yokohoma, but will be detained two days at the Terminal City. Many passengers have been booked on the liner, and she has loaded a big cargo of freight at the city across the Gulf.

Low Voice In Spain

By DAVID HUMPHREYS, from Madrid

CANADA is leaning on a network of 44 British consuls to meet the needs of Canadians living or travelling in Spain in ever-increasing numbers. Until this summer, the British accepted the additional load as a favor to an old friend, a sort of relic from colonial days. Under sheer weight of numbers this cosy arrangement is beginning to crack.

Humphreys

Following complaints, the Canadian government has agreed to pay the salary of an employee in the British consulate in Barcelona.

With that single exception the British continue to look after Canadian interests in three main categories, without pay. These are the needs of tourists, the needs of Canadians living in Spain and the occastional routine representation of Candian interests.

Several questions are raised. Can such an obviously makeship arrangement last? It is admittedly a case of those shouting loudest getting the attention. But why pay some and not others? Although one salary is being paid one staff member is not being assigned exclusively to Canadian matters. Canadian problems will be handled as they arise, along with the British.

Non-Canadian

One objection is that a non-Canadian cannot possibly represent Canadian interests as well as a Canadian. However sympathetic a British officer may be, he is not Canadian-trained for the task. Indeed, he may never have been to Canada. He cannot know the country he is representing.

There was no problem for the British when the need was for occasional representation, distributing a few pensions to Canadians living here and fielding problems from a few thousand tourists. But this year 140,000 tourists are expected and the rate of increase is 50 per cent or more a year.

The tourists force the issue, and not only here. In London, Canada House renovated the ground floor to cope with the influx. But it is appropriate that the problem should be raised in a different way here because Spain is one of several popular tourist countries where Canada does not have large representation.

The only consul for all of Spain and Morocco is at the embassy in Madrid. The tourists fan out through the country, with several favorite destinations, including Barcelona and Malaga.

To what lengths and expense should Ottawa go to help them when they get into trouble? Last year 50 Canadians went to Spanish jails and six remain in them, most for drug charges. A further 300 lost their passports. Others had accidents or driving problems.

Guilt Assumed

A Canadian in any difficulty in Madrid has a considerable advantage over one in trouble almost anywhere else. Spanish justice assumes one is guilty until proved innocent. And it can be harsh on strangers without legal aid. The consul in Madrid admits it is difficult to keep in touch with distant local authorities.

If he failed or was not able to notify the consul, a Canadian could be held incommunicado for some time. Yet even the presence of a consul does not insure justice. Through the error of suspicious police a young Canadian spent two months in a Madrid jail while his innocence was established.

It is not unusual for staff at some British consulates to spend ten hours a week on Canadian business. And this is while Canadians generally don't realize that the British can be approached. One consul said Canadians in his area didn't know they could register with his office.

One Canadian commented, "I haven't always been so charitable to the British but here I don't know how we'd get along without them." Nor is it likely that Canada will get along without them.

Man in Barcelona

Even allowing for a natural increase in travel, increased attention that might follow the establishment of a Canadian consulate, and the doing of useful things that now go undone, it may be difficult to justify full-time Canadian consulates. If present trends continue the case will be strong for one in Barcelona before long.

The Barcelona agreement suggests that it is time for Ottawa to review a natural arrangement which apparently developed from the days when Canada used the British courier service as routine. Perhaps what is required today is a more formal agreement covering shared facilities, with Ottawa paying for services rendered uniformly and receiving in return services of designated officers. In some cases a Canadian might be appointed to a British office. It would be Commonwealth co-operation in a most practical way.

Flimsy Whimsy

Are they whimsy or not
The words of Jack Scott?
The tourists spend money
They don't think it's funny!
The merchants want trade,
And the profits are made
From the folks in the South,
Not from Jackie's big mouth!

It's Gin and Bingo as Usual at Tollygunge Club

By SIMON WINCHESTER
Manchester Guardian Weekly

CALCUTTA—It was the second day of the Monsoon Gymkhana down at the Tollygunge Club on Saturday.

The Bath Plate and the Ascot Plate had been run, and Bob Wright, the chief steward, was presenting the Weedon Challenge Cup to a fresh-faced girl with a county accent and muddy jodhpurs.

David Nicoll, an executive from Angus, patted his wife's mount, Fair Go, as it trotted to the start of the last race of the day, the Cawnpore Scurry.

A scurry it was. A quick 700 yard dash through the heat, some spirited cheering from the members' enclosure, and Mrs. Nicoll was home, a good four lengths ahead of Mr. Prendergast on board Marco, the polo club's entry.

David Nicoll went down to collect his winnings, 299 rupees, and to buy his wife a cup of well earned tea.

As they left for the clubhouse, the mansion of a one-time indigo plantation, the evening thunderstorm broke with characteristic ferocity: the huge old oaks in the grounds swayed and crashed, the foursomes taking tea dashed for shelter, their bearers shielding them from the unpleasantries of an Indian summer with massive, heavy umbrellas.

Calcutta on a Saturday, monsoon or no, can be fun for the British. This weekend, once the races were over, there were the films — "Footprints On the Moon," or "Romeo and Juliet": next week there is a brains trust, and down at the swimming club there will be dancing and bingo on the terrace.

Everywhere the notices display the attempt to enforce gentility: servants must not be tipped: bridge and mahjong must not be played on the veranda during lunch: ladies are reassured that the shirts they can buy at the golf club shop have not run — its simply a new fashion just in from the U.K.

Of course, all the clubs that form the hub of the Britons' breathless social whirl are no longer for Britons alone — economy militates against gentility now that the Raj is past.

So the bound volumes of "Punch" at the Bengal Club are pored over by Sikhs and Latvians, Canberrans and Osakans, the orders of pink gins at the bar of the Ballygunge Cricket Club come in a multiplicity of accents.

Polyglot the clubs may have to be, but British in character they will remain. The Tollygunge Club remains an outpost of the Raj, with portraits of the Queen in the writing room and golfing manuals presented by visiting lords down from Delhi.

The swimming club, too, may not be quite so select as once, but still the White-Parsons family have managed to win the Woodward Trophy for the second year running. Jennifer and Lavinia between them are regular contenders for the Viceroy's Medal, and R. V. Briggs and Company reassure the swimmers twice weekly that the water is still pure and good and a sight better to drink than water from most Calcutta taps.

But the existence of the British, or the foreign community in Calcutta is a precarious one. Armed soldiers mingle with the race-goers at Tollygunge, their heavy rifles contrasting with the parasols the others carry.

They are there because Tollygunge itself, a sprawling, horrendous excrescence outside the club's high red walls, sports an unpleasant breed of Goondas and Mastans — the ruffians, as the police courts still call them. A fortnight or so ago a few of them sat on top of the wall and hurled bombs at the passing horses, badly scaring their riders, but, happily, hurting no one.

Now Tollygunge Club is an armed encampment where you'll be searched at the gates if you happen to be other than white or an obvious Brahmin. The high walls, the riflemen, the incestuous party life of the Calcuttan Briton adds to his isolation from the real India.

"You have to ignore the poverty here," explained one diplomat at the Deputy High Commission, "if you didn't, after a month or so you'd go off your head."

They have certainly ignored the refugee crisis. The sales manager of a British-owned motor firm, a little the worse for wear, was impressing on his audience the other night that the Indians were "blowing it all up" so as to get more money out of the West. "I've been here 27 years and I know these chaps," he bellowed. "There have always been refugees here. Maybe there are a few more now, but five million? Stuff and nonsense. Bearer, bring me another gin."

Likewise the remainder of the Britons in Calcutta have displayed a marked lack of interest in the refugees.

One club member said he only heard how bad it all was from his mother, who had just written from home. No one can seem to find a single contributor to a fund set up for refugee relief — nor can anyone find a fund.

True, the U.K. Citizens Association is making a half-hearted attempt to help the relief teams. Mr. Bill Stuff, the vice-chairman, said his members were taking the nurses shopping and had offered them a dip in their pools.

"We prefer to make a practical contribution," Mr. Stuff said. None appeared to have taken the trouble to go and look at the refugee camps, though the nearest is no more than 15 minutes from their lawns and pools in Alipore and Ballygunge.

It is an isolated and a shrinking community. Peter Fowler, Head of Chancery at the Commission, reckons there are 700 Britons in Calcutta now. There were 1,000 last year, but tax increases in Mrs. Gandhi's budget drove a good number away.

A dozen more are packing up and leaving, now their insurance houses have been nationalised, and 20 more may leave once this year's budget is worked out.

David Nicoll reckons on staying a while more, enjoying the racing and the swimming and the sunshine. It'll soon be time for the Bagalore Derby, an event measurably more important to the Britons than the Bangla Desh Derby, being raced only a few miles up the road.

Profit Schools Best Answer?

By NICHOLAS VON HOFFMAN
The Washington Post

(This Is the Second of Two Articles)

During this period of Nixon prosperity, stories about highly schooled, highly trained people being out of work keep making the rounds. There was a piece in one of the papers the other day about a PhD being reduced to driving a hack.

Let's hope those ghetto kids we're always telling to stay in school don't read the papers. But they're pretty hip individuals and they may know that the more high school and college graduates there are, the less of a guarantee of steady work a sheepskin becomes.

Aside from the possibility that we may be grossly misleading the young as to the proven economic benefits of sweating it out in school, we might also ask ourselves what we as a nation are losing by having PhDs pushing taxis around. And it's not just them. There are 65,000-plus engineers out of work.

It may be that having all this expensively trained talent on the sidelines is making it much more difficult to do all the tasks needing to be done in this society of curiously threadbare opulence. Or it may be there has never really been a need for all these expensively trained people, and that they are hired as luxury items during boom times and dropped when the business cycle sags.

State Religion

It's easier to convince an American that we have a criminal foreign policy than to get him to believe that we may have seriously overdone the effort to force everybody to suffer 12 to 16 years of sitting on a school bench. Belief in education and the infinite joys and blessings which flow from it pass as the state religion of America.

But now comes a number of inquiries into how good all this schooling is, and we learn that both white collar and blue collar jobs are not performed better by people with more schooling. We discover that the armed forces can train men with less schooling as well or better to repair and operate the most advanced complicated technological devices.

We find out from one study of business executives who like to hire college graduates that, "To a man, the respondents assured us that diplomas and degrees were a good thing; they were used as screening devices by which undesirable employment applicants could be identified, and the credentials sought were indicators of personal commitment to 'good middle-class values,' industriousness and seriousness of purpose, as well as salutory personal habits and styles. One executive pointed out that with only two people conducting interviews of job applicants, 'we needed something to cut the sheer numbers down to what the personnel office could handle.' " (From "Education and Jobs: the Great Training Robbery," by Ivar Berg, published for the Center for Urban Education by Praeger Publishers, New York, 1970.)

It should make millions of parents feel warm and proud to know they saved and did without to get the kids through college to lighten the personnel manager's paper work. Yet a distressing amount of money spent on schooling seems to come down to getting people through the screening into jobs that don't require four years of college to perform.

Indeed the evidence is growing that, since there aren't enough jobs toward the top of the hierarchical pyramid for all these high school and college grads, the overschooled may make poor, more unhappy employees with higher turnover rates.

To this the education industry responds with the shrill imperative that more money be handed over to it . . . with beginning teachers in New York City starting this fall with a salary of $9,400. That's almost as much as garbage collectors make and they are many times more vital to the healthy and orderly running of the city.

Some attempts are being made to chop off this spiraling fiscal and social folly. In Gary, Ind., Behavioral Research Laboratories, Inc., has a contract with the board of education to run one grammar school at a cost of $800 a pupil. Out of that they must pay for everything and make a profit with one proviso: after three years the company must refund the money for every kid who isn't reading or doing math up to the national norm for his age group.

Sixteen Years of Suffering

BRL has a lot of space age mumbo-jumbo about how they do it. Teachers are called curriculum managers, and the executives say things like, "This project is like building a missile. Every child is a component."

Worthless Garnish

More to the point is that there is some kind of cost control, fewer teachers and less of the expensive, worthless garnish that drives up the costs in so many schools. They may fail to teach children any more than the civil service schlepps that used to man the place but they will be failing cheaper and in education these days, that's an accomplishment in and of itself.

It's highly questionable that out and out profit-making concerns are going to get very far in the school business except for selling books and gimmicks to the educationists whose appetite for shiny hardware rivals that of a Pentagon procurement officer.

Of necessity a profit-making enterprise would have to cut back on many of the vague and educationally dubious activities that run up the schools' manpower requirements and costs . . . vocational guidance, driver training, sex education, social work, life adjustment, you name the scores of activities for which there is no rigorously reasoned justification but which exhaust the taxpayers, baffle the parents and infuriate the children.

From the senior high school level and beyond, the absence of more schools run by businessmen for profit seems especially a pity. The older students in this devilishly long process we call education are increasingly prone to revolt at being made to sit through and take notes on arcane gibberish. They call such stuff irrelevant, but useless might be a better word.

Proprietary for-profit schools can't do that. They must offer the student customer what he wants. They also can't practise the tie-in sale which ordinary non-profit schools use to take the money and time of their students — the dozens of course credits students are made to get in subjects they have no desire to learn about.

Proprietary schools wouldn't dare force a would-be architect to take a course in biology on the nebulous grounds that it will make him a "well-rounded man." By the same token, have you ever heard of a student revolt at Berlitz or at any other cash-and-carry schools?

Organized education, by monopolizing the powers of accreditation and licensing, freezes all for-profit educational enterprises on to the farthest margins of the learning industry.

The present system is too miserably expensive for the taxpayer and too economically unproductive for the society and, by no means last, too painful and dreary for the students.

A WRONG NUMBER

THE LAST POST

Despite the creation of a special government agency to disseminate it, information in Canada's capital appears to be as rare a commodity as ever.

An employee of a government department called Information Canada to find out if the new delegation from the People's Republic of China could be reached by phone. "I'm sure they can," said the helpful voice at the other end of the line. "Why they've been here for about thirty years."

Perplexed, the employee suggested to the voice that perhaps it was confusing mainland China with nationalist China. The voice could be heard checking through some papers and then apologized profusely. "Do you know you're right," it gushed. "It is Nationalist China."

Well, then, the employee asked, how would one contact the mainland Chinese delegation. The voice thought for a long moment. "I'm sure if you called the Nationalist Chinese," it finally replied, "they would be willing to help you."

Getting Away From It All

By JOHN NICHOL

Ancient civilizations always had holy places where people could go to contemplate the mysteries of life. There were sacred groves, rivers, and mountains which the troubled man could visit. There he could find a moment of calm in the eye of the storm.

For awhile, the churches provided this service to modern man — and some of them still do. But a regular visitor to most modern churches soon finds himself on the committee to raise $80,000 for the new organ. His wife becomes responsible for buttering the date bread.

●

Some people are lucky enough to live in the country. These fortunate ones DO get moments of peace, and a chance to think. Sometimes they think too much — which may explain why most memorable axe murders occur out beyond the blacktop.

But modern urban man is never alone. His brain is connected to the system by telephones that never stop ringing, and by radios and TV sets that constantly babble. He is needled. He is told that he must be RESPONSIBLE and that he must WORRY. (Mind you, that is no strain — there is plenty to worry about.)

The furrowed brow no longer indicates kidney trouble. It has become a badge of honor. Serenity of expression is seldom found outside of institutions — although alcoholics and opium-smokers come close when they are about two-thirds up.

●

In all this turmoil there remain only a few places where a moment of peace can be found. The movie theatre is one.

The sensation is familiar. You really shouldn't be there at all. There is work to do. Floors to paint. Bills to pay. Children to beat. But you ARE there; and to be there you have defied the system.

You are in your seat listening to "Red Sails in the Sunset." You lean back, examine the cracks in the ceiling, and wonder if the chandelier will fall. And then, as the house lights dim, a wonderful surge of freedom comes. "They can't get me here" your soul cries. "They don't even know where I am!" Then — popcorn — and blessed oblivion.

An airplane trip has much the same effect. You fight your way through traffic, up stairs, and down tunnels; your calves all atingle with fatigue. Your ear is numbed by canned music and shouted announcements. You stagger up the steps to the plane and — there is the stewardess — cool and smiling. "All will be well," she seems to say — 'because I am wife, mother, mistress, daughter, and bartender! "I am Audrey Hepburn, Florence Nightingale, and the Galloping Gourmet."

At this point, the sense of escape begins to overcome the fear of death. And soon the aircraft starts down the runway. Just as it lifts off that feeling comes in a rush. "They can never find me now. I have tricked them: I am gone!"

But most of us don't fly or go to the movies that often. Fortunately though, the bathroom is part of our civilization — and it is the sacred grove available to us all. The world may shriek outside that door, but the rush of water into the tub obliterates all other sound. By locking himself up, man sets himself free. He has cut the wires — and alone with his rubber duck in the swirling steam — he sings.

TRUDEAU

Big Bash to End PM Trip to Alberta

By JOHN HAY

CALGARY (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau plunges into one of the biggest bashes in the country today, riding horseback and white-hatted in the Calgary Stampede parade.

The parade, and a grandstand seat for later stampede events, will wind up his three-day tour of southern Alberta.

He actually will ride only half the parade's length, about two miles, then he will mount the reviewing stand to watch the rest of the western extravaganza go by.

Although speculation was rife that his wife Margaret was in town, there was no indication Sunday night this was the case.

Mr. Trudeau denied suggestions at a press conference Sunday that the tour was a stumping prelude to an election.

"The tour was designed mainly to boost my morale and it has done precisely that," he said.

It was no different in form or purpose than a similar sojourn in the province two years ago.

He was asked bluntly whether he ruled out an election in the near future.

MUM ON ELECTION DATE

"No, I wouldn't rule out an election for any time. I can't predict the future."

He said that a Sunday morning meeting with Liberal riding presidents from Alberta—in Waterton Park, a lush setting of mountain majesty—had not dwelt on the possibilities of a provincial election, expected in the fall or next spring at the latest.

He said he had maintained his practice of staying out of provincial politics. The Liberals hold no seats in the provincial legislature but have said they will field at least a dozen candidates in the next provincial election.

Although he put the damper on election talk, the prime minister said his trip had been necessary to counter attacks on federal agriculture policies by "false prophets" in the opposition.

He referred specifically to the proposed farm products marketing bill, stalled in the Commons for more than a year by the opposition, particularly western MPs.

The opposition had created misunderstanding about that measure and others, telling farmers, for example, that they would be forced to market their goods through a government board against their wishes if the bill is passed, he said.

The government had learned it could not explain every policy to everybody.

"Some Liberals out here" should concentrate on the marketing bill rather than more remote issues such as foreign affairs.

TRIP ENDS TUESDAY

But Mr. Trudeau said there was "not a great exchange of ideas" on the Alberta trip which is to end Tuesday morning.

Mr. Trudeau took a helicopter ride Sunday to Blairmore, a coal town in the Crowsnest Pass in the Rocky Mountains where he treated about 3,000 residents to his softball pitching prowess —against a local girls' team.

After walking the first batter and yielding a double from the second—and popping out himself—he was demoted to second base, letting the local MP, Allen Sulatyck of the Rocky Mountain constituency, take the mound for the second and final inning.

The prime minister, his staff and local politicians won 9-2.

Hundreds of handshakes and a supper later, Mr. Trudeau boarded the helicopter to Calgary.

Earlier Saturday, Mr. Trudeau rode in a rain-drenched trail ride in Medicine Hat, the constituency of Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson, who accompanied the prime minister throughout the trip.

After a hand-shaking stop at the fence of the Lethbridge airport, he flew on to stand Off and Waterton Lakes National Park where he spent the night.

At Blairmore, he met Leah Trudeau, 17, who said she is a fourth cousin of the prime finister.

Her forefathers had come west generations ago. She did not speak French.

STANFIELD

Land Question Dominates Tour

By JIM POLING

WHITEHORSE Y.T. (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield left the north today convinced the federal government must "get cracking" to settle aboriginal land rights.

The question of settling with the Indian and Eskimo people was one dominant feature of the Progressive Conservative leader's five-day swing through the Northwest Territories and the Yukon.

He was told several times by native groups that they must have an economic base to become independent of the white man. Most of the natives he spoke with said this money must come in the form of a cash settlement and a share of mineral royalties as payment for aboriginal land rights.

Mr. Stanfield promised the Yukon Progressive Conservative Association Saturday night he will "unceasingly badger" the Liberal government to start looking for a solution to the problem.

He said several times during the tour that the solution to a settlement will not be easy to find and will take considerable discussion between the native people and the government.

RIGHTS AN ISSUE

"This (a start on the problem) would go a long way toward smoothing the road ahead for northern resource development," he told the association's annual meeting. "It would go a long way toward making up for the sad record of pathological paternalism that has been the set attitude of succeeding generations of Liberal governments."

Earlier, he told a news conference that his northern tour, which included Hay River, Rae, Yellowknife and Inuvik in the N.W.T., has led him to believe that settlement of native land rights is a more basic issue in native development than he had imagined.

Another primary topic during the tour was development of northern communities and natural resources.

Mr. Stanfield told the news conference that the Trudeau administration has not been consulting the people of the territories enough and that both the N.W.T. and the Yukon should be given a greater degree of self-government by Ottawa.

Also, the federal government was not putting enough research and money into northern development.

Federal ministers talking about an oil pipeline down the Mackenzie Valley don't have the "foggiest" idea about costs, or risks involved because there have been no government studies on an Arctic pipeline, he said.

Second Envoy Killed

By The Associated Press

Marcel Duprat, the Belgian ambassador killed Saturday during the attempt to overthrow King Hassan II of Morocco, is the second foreign diplomat killed in the last 18 months because he got caught in the political crossfire of the nation to which he was assigned.

Count Karl von Spreti, West German ambassador to Guatemala, was kidnapped March 31, 1970, and found slain six days later after the government refused leftist terrorists' demands to release 17 prisoners.

Duprat would have been 52 on Sunday. He was shot in the chest when rebel officers and army cadets burst into Hassan's palace. He was reported to have died in the arms of French Ambassador Claude Lebel.

He is survived by his wife and seven children.

MOROCCO'S KING HASSAN II

Series of Crises

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — The attempt by army generals to overthrow King Hassan II of Morocco is one of a series of crises that have punctuated his 10-year reign.

There have been a border war with Algeria; angry disputes with more radical Arab regimes and domestic conflicts that forced the King in 1965 to dissolve the National Assembly.

His virtual one-man rule since that time made his regime the target of continuous criticism from the political left. Nearly 200 leftists are on trial in Marrakesh, accused of plotting Hassan's overthrow.

Morocco has been criticized by other Arab nations for remaining on the periphery of their conflict with Israel. The Moroccans have voiced hostility to Israel and backing for the Palestinian Arab cause but have made little in the way of practical contribution.

In the 1967 war, Morocco sent 3,000 troops to support the Arab armies, but a few years ago Hassan angered some of the Arabs by expressing scorn for the exaggerated claims of the Palestinian guerrillas raiding in Israel.

The attempted revolution in Rabat appears to fit into a pattern of military uprisings against conservative monarchies launched by the overthrow of King Farouk of Egypt in 1952.

Iraq was next, in 1958, and the military rebels murdered King Faisal II. Officers in Yemen deposed the ruling Imam in 1962.

In 1969, a clique of young officers overthrew King Idris of Libya and a military regime also took over Sudan.

GENERAL Mohamed Medbouh, leader of the coup against King Hassan II of Morocco, was killed during the brief rebellion. He was head of Hassan's personal military staff.

Open Bidding System To Set Gold Prices

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Public trading in gold futures, payable in gold coins minted before the Gold Reserve Act of 1934, will be initiated July 20 by the West Coast Commodity Exchange Inc.

"Open bidding procedure will determine gold prices for the first time in the 300-year history of commodity exchanges in this country and abroad," David Callahan, president of West Coast Commodity Exchange, said Sunday.

The exchange said it will be the world's first open market for public trading in gold. The firm also deals in silver, copper, cocoa and sugar.

The exchange announcement said that "pending repeal or amendment of the Gold Reserve Act of 1934," which forbids U.S. citizens to own private gold buillion stocks, payment of futures contracts would be made in British gold coins minted before 1934.

"Legal ownership of pre-1934 gold coins is specifically authorized by the Gold Reserve Act," the exchange added.

The exchange will join the U.S. government and an exclusive consortium of London banks in determining the worth of gold. The firm expects its market to attract investors from around the world and "strengthen the dollar, reverse the drain on U.S. gold reserves and aid in easing the current world currency crisis."

The British coins, of which more than 500 million were produced prior to 1934, will be "the first of several international gold coins to be acceptable for equivalent delivery under the gold contract," the exchange said.

"In the past, gold prices have been established only in London, by a group of five private companies — the London Gold Market — that meet twice daily for the purpose of fixing the price of gold," the announcement said.

Gold currently is priced under a "two-tier system with the U.S. treasury pegging the price of monetary gold at $35 an ounce, and the price of non-monetary gold floating at higher prices, up to $42, under the guidance of the London consortium. The London group has been the sole international source of gold pricing.

$12M Gas Plant Approved

EDMONTON (CP) — The Energy Resources conservation Board has approved construction of a $12 million plant for handling petroleum gas at nearby Fort Sascatchewan.

John Zeede, production superintendent for Chevron Standard Ltd. said construction of the facility should start by fall. The plant will be used for fractionating and liquid petroleum gas storage.

The plant will be supplied by pipeline from The Kaybob South Gas Field, 130 miles northwest of Edmonton, with 25,000 barrels a day of raw liquefied petroleum gases.

Partners in the venture with Chevron are Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Ltd., Canadian Superior Oil Ltd. and Gulf Oil of Canada Ltd.

Smelter Shutdowns Push Zinc Prices Up

NEW YORK (AP) — A combination of smelter phase-outs and strikes has been credited with pressure on zinc prices.

Phase-outs of two zinc smelters coupled with a strike at the Great Falls, Mont., zinc complexes of Anaconda Co. has removed about 284,000 tons from the country's 1.1-million-ton productive capacity since May, says American Metal Market, daily newspaper of the metals industry.

As a result, the supply of zinc has tightened, and discounts of about ⅛ cent a pound on special high-grade metal — the prime raw material for die-cast alloys — has disappeared. One seller is officially quoting 16.50 cents delivered for special high-grade metal but is limiting sales to regular customers. Other producers are quoting 17 cents delivered.

Independent zinc alloyers, who account for the major portion of zinc die cast alloy production, say that special high-grade metal is no longer available at a discount. Consequently, they have increased the price of No. 3 zinc die-cast alloy by ½ cent a pound, to 19.50 cents, compared with a dual-priced market of 18.50-19.00 cents currently quoted by producers.

MAJOR INDUSTRY

Zinc die-cast alloy is used in die castings by the automotive and appliance industries. In 1970, total consumption of slab zinc for zinc-base alloys amount to 46,666 tons out of a total slab-zinc usage of 1,164,622 tons and represents the major use for zinc.

The first week of strikes in the domestic copper mining and processing industry resulted in an estimated loss of about 36,000 tons of copper, assuming full utilization of rated refined production capacity at the start of 1970. The strike entered its second week last Thursday.

Refined copper stocks in the free world at the end of May totalled 423,425 tons. A one-month shutdown in the U.S. industry would cause a loss of more than 145,000 tons.

Major metal prices:

Copper — 52¾-53 cents a pound, delivered; foreign 54.02 cents, nominal, New York.

Lead — 14-14½ cents a pound, New York; 13.80-14.30 cents, St. Louis.

Zinc — 16 cents a pound.

Aluminum — 29 cents a pound, unalloyed ingots, delivered.

Antimony — 59 cents a pound, bulk; 99.5 per cent, carlots, producer's plant.

Canada Gets Space Job

LOS ANGELES (AP) — North American Rockwell Corp said Saturday it has contracted with a Toronto firm for the construction of a space-age divining rod.

Spar Aerospace was awarded a contract to build the antenna system for a lunar sounder, which will probe the lunar surface trying to find water below ground on the moon, a spokesman for North American said.

The electronic device will be carried on Apollo 17, the last of the Apollo missions to the moon.

The spokesman said the contract was in the neighborhood of $200,000.

Oil Production Up in Alberta

CALGARY (CP) — Crude oil production in Alberta averaged 953,247 barrels a day during the week ended July 5, the Alberta Energy Resources Conservation Board said in a report Saturday.

Production in the previous week averaged 817,526 barrels a day. Daily production in July was expected to average 1,054,629 barrels compared with 865,327 barrels in June, 1970.

JOBS IN DANGER

Trouble for Penn Central

WASHINGTON — If nothing else, a year of bankruptcy has taught the Penn Central one lesson: Getting out is not as easy as getting in.

The railroad could be only months away from another full-blown crisis — a crisis leading to likely congressional intervention and possible government subsidies. The carrier simply might run out of money. That could happen after a prolonged steel, in the late fall after another round of wage increases, or in the early winter when both the weather and the railroad's income turn unpredictable.

★ ★ ★

Federal Judge John J. Fullam, who is overseeing the bankruptcy proceedings, could also force the crisis by simply declaring that the railroad is not viable and, therefore, must be "liquidated"—a feat which is difficult to visualize for the multi-billion Penn Central. Or Fullam might make good on a promise to prohibit the railroads from paying any more wage increases until unions relax work rules, a move that could precipitate a strike.

could push the Penn Central to ominously in Penn Central's future, and, according to many industry observers, there is a good chance that one of them could push the Penn Central to the brink.

At the heart of the Penn Central's current problems is section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act, which, when written, was supposed to be an antidote for any financial poison that could ever infect a railroad. Under section 77, any railroad going bankrupt — that is, not being able to pay its bills — could suspend payment on a variety of debts (including long-term loans and taxes). This expedient was supposed to allow railroads to continue operating by meeting current operating expenses from current revenues. Meanwhile, the debt would be scaled down to fit the railroad's ability to pay. By declaring bankruptcy, the Penn Central estimates it will save about $64 million in taxes and debt payment this year.

Unfortunately, the relief hasn't been enough. Without a federally-guaranteed loan of $100 million (of which $75 million has already been borrowed), Penn Central would have exhausted its cash. When its unpaid debts are counted, the Penn Central recorded a $126.1 million deficit for the first five months of 1971; the projected full 1971 deficit is $240 million and although this figure does not reflect actual cash drain, it does indicate just how far the railroad is from returning to a normally, profitable operation.

The apparent hopelessness of this situation may explain why the railroad's four trustees — appointed by the federal court overseeing the bankruptcy — may actually yearn for a major crisis. They have publicly proclaimed that the sine-qua non for righting the Penn Central is a sweeping overhaul of union work rules: A reduction of the basic crew for freight trains from four to three.

That change, the trustees say, could eliminate nearly 10,000 workers from the railroad (the current work force is 90,833, and, by the end of the year, it's expected to be about 85,000), and, ultimately result in $135 million in savings annually.

The trustees might like the plan but many other industry observers believe that prospects of implementing it are poor. Any change on the Penn Central would almost inevitably spread to the rest of the industry. The United Transportation Union, which represents most of the affected workers, hazards no guess about how many jobs would ultimately be eliminated. But, in 1970, there were approximately 165,000 train and engine workers. A fourth of that amounts to about 40,000.

The UTU, naturally, wants nothing of the Penn Central's visions.

If the economy stages a spectacular revival, the Penn Central might escape another crisis. If not, someone — probably Congress — will have to invent a new way for extracting the largest railroad from the nation's biggest bankruptcy.

BANK RATE BOOST SAID INEVITABLE

NEW YORK (AP) — United States banks boosted their prime lending rate to six per cent from 5½ per cent last week.

The prime rate is the interest banks charge on loans to their best corporate customers.

The move began last month when a handful of banks announced increases in their prime rates. The reluctance that banks had shown for more than a month to raise their prime rate disappeared rapidly once Manufacturers Hanover Trust, the fourth largest U.S. bank in terms of assests, boosted its rate to six per cent.

Bank of America, the nation's largest, said the move was "inevitable in light of increasing loan demand and upward forces in the money markets."

Bankers had been saying for weeks that a boost was necessary because the sharply-rising rates in the money market increased the bank's own cost of funds. But observers noted they were hesitant to act because of fear of political repercussions.

Chemical Bank in New York, the sixth largest in the U.S., said it had no plans now to increase the rate on loans to consumers.

Bank of America did couple its increase in the prime rate with increases in the rate paid on savings accounts and the rates charged on home mortgages.

The bank increased to 4½ per cent from four per cent the interest rate it pays on regular passbook savings and lifted to 7¾ per cent from 7¼ per cent the rate it charges on home loans.

Let's Talk Real Estate by Jack Mears

During the past few weeks we have been remodelling a fine old home on Dallas Road. Built in the first decade of the 20th Century, it still stands square to the ocean. Basement and three storeys.

What a wealth of living it must have seen and what a wealth of living still remains or should when we have finished.

The last two weeks have been hectic with electricians, carpenters, plumbers, painters, cabinet makers and flooring people, all causing what appeared to be organized confusion. Another two weeks and it will probably be finished.

In the meantime, if you are passing and feel like dropping in, the address is 1460. It has some fine old panelling, which will of course be preserved, and other interesting features.

Pressure Leak Killed Cosmonauts, Soviets Find

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government announced today that a pressure leak killed the three Soyuz 11 cosmonauts half an hour before their landing June 30 and indicated human error rather than a fault in their spaceship was responsible.

"An inspection of the descent vehicle, which made a soft landing, showed that there are no failures in its structure," said the report by the investigating commission. It said it was making a further analysis "to establish a number of probable causes of the seal failure."

One Soviet journalist reported two days after the disaster that the men died because they did not seal the landing craft's hatch properly. He said it jarred open slightly during the turbulence of the re-entry into the earth's atmosphere.

The cosmonauts—Georgy Dobrovolsky, Valdislav Volkov and Viktor Patsayev—spent 23 days aboard the Salute space laboratory before returning to earth.

ASHES ENTOMBED

On July 2, their ashes were entombed in the Kremlin wall, the traditional burial place of Soviet heroes.

The commission's announcement, reported by the official news agency Tass, said:

"On the ship's descent trajectory, 30 minutes before landing, there occurred a rapid drop of pressure within the descent vehicle, which led to the sudden deaths of the cosmonauts.

"This is confirmed by the medical and pathological-anatomic examination.

"The drop of pressure resulted from a loss of the ship's sealing."

By ruling out structural failure, the commission's report implied that the cosmonauts had erred in some way. In an article published while the spacemen were aboard the orbiting Salute lab, veteran cosmonaut Vladimir Shatalov warned that prolonged exposure to weightlessness sometimes caused "a false feeling of complacency."

"The psycho-physiological capabilities of the cosmonauts' organisms drops as the flight nears completion," he said. "Thus it is very important for them to automatically perform the operations necessary for piloting the ship, for descent and landing."

HEADLESS VALLEY TRIP STALLED

FORT NELSON, B.C. (CP)—The British expedition into the Headless Valley was stalled Sunday with outboard motor troubles at Nahanni Butte, N. W. T.

Steve Villers of Northern Air Service Co. Ltd. said it was hoped that replacement engine parts could be flown into the Britons today at Nahanni Butte, where there is an airstrip at the junction of the Liard and South Nahanni rivers.

Two of the 40-horsepower motors powering the three rubber boats seem to have broken down he said.

The expedition, headed by Captain Sir Ranulph Twistleton-Wykeham-Fiennes, consists of seven British soldiers, photographers and a film crew from the BBC.

The little flotilla moved downstream along the Fort Nelson and Liard rivers without help from the motors because the expedition wanted to conserve fuel.

However, the remainder of the trip—along the South Nahanni as far as Virginia Falls, about 150 miles away—is upstream in treacherous, fast-flowing waters.

Villers said that, apart from the engine breakdowns, the travellers appeared to be in good shape. They reached Nahanni Butte on Saturday.

Sir Ranulph's wife, Lady Virginia, has remained at Fort Nelson to maintain radio contact with the expedition. Weather in the area where the Britons are travelling has been clear and warm.

Meany Would Impose Wage, Price Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany says if he were in President Nixon's shoes he would impose wage and price controls in the fight against inflation.

"I don't see any other way that this situation is going to get under control," Meany said Sunday on NBC's Meet the Press.

Meany said his own 13.5-million-member labor organization is "not advocating controls," but would not oppose them if they were imposed evenly.

"If he makes a decision that the international situation is such, or the domestic situation is such that he needs to impose controls . . . we will go along," Meany said.

"We will accept wage and price controls provided they are shared equally to cover all forms of income and . . . provided the sacrifice is equal to everybody concerned."

Meany said the United States has an "inflationary psychology."

"We have people raising prices when there is just no reason."

"According to the book, when you cause more unemployment, when you tighten up on the money supply and you keep business from expanding and thereby cause more and more people to become unemployed, prices should come down according to the rules."

But, Meany said, prices have gone up, by 4.2 per cent in 1968, 5.4 per cent in 1969 and 5.9 per cent in 1970.

In this situation it would seem that the answer, the answer from the president's point of view, would be controls. "I don't see any other answer."

Allende Name Needed For Copper Takeover

SANTIAGO (AP) — President Salvador Allende is expected to sign soon the constitutional amendment to complete nationalization of Chile's copper industry despite his complaint that it gives the U.S. companies too many breaks.

Meeting in joint session Sunday night, 158 of the 200 senators and deputies in Congress unanimously approved the amendment without debate.

The government bought part of the Chilean holdings of the three U.S. companies — Anaconda, Kennecott and Cerro—during the administration of President Eduardo Frei, and completion of the nationalization is a cornerstone of Allende's program to "open the doors to socialism in Chile."

Estimates of the investment of the three companies in Chile's five biggest mines range from $300 million to $800 million. There is no estimate of how much they have profited, but the five mines last year produced 85,000 tons of metal worth more than $1 billion. Copper is Chile's most important resource and produces 80 per cent of the country's foreign exchange.

Allende in a speech Sunday in Rancagua, 55 miles south of Santiago, accused the U.S. companies of allowing the mines to get in an "alarming state."

He said recent surveys by French and Russian mining experts confirmed this. He also said the studies demonstrated that the companies did not use efficient management techniques in operating the mines.

These workshops are designed to permit the student with little previous experience to understand the functions of drama games, improvisation and movement exercises related to dramatic activity with youth. The student will participate in the exercises as well as the discussions. These workshops are particularly appropriate for teachers, youth leaders, social workers, or others working with young people.

DRAMA GAMES — JULY 17-18.

An introductory approach to games and dramatic play with children. Applications discussed and illustrated. Instructor: Mr. Gary Pogrow.

MOVEMENT IN DRAMA — JULY 24-25.

An introduction to basic movement elements and how they are affected by inner attitudes and outer conditions toward developing an articulate instrument for the actor's use. Instructor: Mrs. Jaqueline Sears.

IMPROVISATION — JULY 31-AUGUST 1.

An introductory approach to improvisation with teenagers, including mask techniques for improvisation. Instructor: Professor Carl Hare.

Fee: $15.00 per workshop. To register, call the Division of Continuing Education. 477-6911, local 395.

Teacher's Dismissal 'Unrelated' to Trial

DUNCAN — The reasons for dismissal of Duncan teacher Louis Trapler are "completely unrelated" to his recent trial on a charge of assaulting a student.

Cowichan school board chairman David Haywood made the statement today when asked why Trapler has not been reinstated with the school district following his acquittal Friday of a charge of assault causing bodily harm.

The charge arose out of an incident Jan. 26 in which Trapler allegedly struck 13-year-old student Joseph Cooke for addressing him with an obscenity.

SEEKS OLD JOB

"There is no relevance between the action taken by the school board and this other matter," Haywood said. He said the decision to go to court against Trapler was taken by Cooke's parents only.

"The process within the school board is completely unrelated to civil or criminal proceedings. We weren't judging him for reinstatement on the basis of the charge he was on trial for."

Trapler has been unable to find a teaching job since his January suspension but has indicated he would like his old job back again.

"I would be very happy to be reinstated in my teaching job," he said Sunday. He has three school-age children attending school in Duncan in the fall.

Trapler has spent five years in Duncan as a teacher. He taught grades 8, 9 and 10 at Mount Prevost junior secondary.

Two inquiries have been conducted into Trapler's case with the result that on May 5, the cabinet announced it had decided to uphold his suspension.

Anti-Strike Union Formed at Hospitals

VANCOUVER (CP) — A new union, pledged never to strike and to abide by binding arbitration, has sprung up in British Columbia hospitals.

Incorporated as the Health Sciences Association of B.C., the union aims to represent all para-medical workers in bargaining with the B.C. Hospitals Association.

★

Despite the hospitals' and other unions' strong opposition to further splintering of the hospital workers, the Labor Relations Board has just certified the HSA at St. Paul's in Vancouver and Lions Gate in North Vancouver.

"And very shortly, we'll apply for more hospitals," lawyer Terry Wolfe, union counsel and spokesman, said.

He said the board certified the association as agent for some 225 physiotherapists, medical record librarians, dieticians, medical social workers, hospital pharmacists, occupational therapists, remedial gymnasts, radiologists and medical technologists.

Most of these never had contracts, Wolfe said, but now the HSA will be seeking collective agreements which should give them better pay and job security.

He said the membership potential is "in the thousands" and that the Psychiatric Nurses Association is considering a merger with the association.

"It's also significant, I think, that we have a constitution which specifically prohibits strike action and accepts the principle of binding arbitration," Wolfe said.

★

"In that sense, we are opposed to the B.C. Federation of Labor, but we believe it is simply foolish to talk of strike or respecting other unions' picket lines when patients' lives are at stake."

The 10,000-member B.C. Hospital Employees Union opposed certification of the association.

Trio Tries to Create New French Course

If French has never been your thing, maybe a program being created by three University of Victoria students will help.

Ralf Sarkonak, winner of this year's Governor-General's medal for the top graduating student in arts or science, Frank Waetli and Maryle Connor are working under the Opportunities for Youth program to design a second language diploma program, to be offered in September by Uvic's division of continuing education.

Assisted by Dr. O. M. Abrioux and directed by Dr. L. E. Devlin, the students are conducting a survey and interviewing former students to help shape a course "geared to the needs and requirements of the community."

The students are attempting to find out what French students want out of a French course and what motivates them to enrol.

They've sent a letter of information to all former students and have composed a questionnaire for personal interviews.

"They will interview more than 300 former evening students, and will talk to local businesses," Devlin said. "We'd like to get an idea of what the business community needs from its employees."

Sarkonak, Waelti and Miss Connor will examine instructional techniques and course forms and times, particularly appropriate for adults wishing to learn French as a second language.

The diploma program was approved in principle by the University's senate in April and is the first program of its type to be offered in B.C. It will be open to any resident in Greater Victoria.

Hitch-a-Bus Ends First Run

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Dale's hitch-a-bus service has passed its trial run with flying colors.

The 36-year-old Dale left Toronto July 1 in a 41-seat bus — waywardly unscheduled — and began picking up hitch-hikers on the road headed west.

"I had it full the first day and about 36 people came the full distance to Vancouver," he said.

"When they got on, I told them the first day's travel was free and if they wanted to continue after that, they had to share in the expenses of operation.

". . . The kids were only too delighted to have a ride at that kind of money. They told me the hitch-hiking is bloody awful right now."

Dale, who had travel agency experience overseas, says he is ready to hit the road again as soon as an engine replacement can be arranged.

"I'll do it as long as there are hitch-hikers on the road who are looking for rides," he said.

New Building Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — Plans to build a 36-storey office building at an estimated cost of more than $23 million in downtown Vancouver were announced here by the Bank of Nova Scotia, Famous Players Ltd. and Henry Birks and Sons Ltd. A joint statement said construction will begin next year and is expected to be completed in 1974. The building, to be the tallest office tower in the city, will have more than 600,000 square feet of floor space.

Rocks Waste Good Start To Lose 10th

By STEWART LANG

New Westminster Salmonbellies increased their Western Lacrosse Association lead to nine points Sunday by handing Victoria Shamrocks their 10th consecutive loss before 1,466 fans at Memorial Arena.

Shamrocks, 2-1 leaders after the opening period, were outshot 48-35 overall as the defending Canadian champions chalked up a 10-6 victory.

Victoria was frequently caught on breakaways with their defencemen too deep in enemy territory and the only bright spot in Victoria's game was a solid performance from veteran goaltender Doug Thompson.

Thompson parried 38 shots overall, including 20 in the second period where the home side was outgunned, 26-11. Les Norman, in the New Westminster net, made 29 stops.

FACEOFF LOSERS

Shamrocks also came out losers in the faceoff department, 19-16.

After playing-coach Paul Parnell had given Salmonbellies a 1-0 lead with the first of his two goals at 3:41, Shamrocks won the first period with goals by Ranjit Dillon at 8:27 and Don McNeill at 16:21.

By the time Dillon notched his second goal at 10:38 of the second period, the Irish were down, 5-2. His third goal of the game came at 18:37 and left Victoria trailing 7-4 going into the final 20 minutes.

McNeill's second goal, at 7:53 of the third frame, appeared to liven up the Shamrocks but the solid New Westminster defence refused to buckle and their offence gradually subsided.

BRYANT INJURED

Muzz Bryant caused the fans a little concern after scoring Victoria's final goal at 17:12. His shot was taken while in the process of falling toward the net and while the ball was eluding the grasp of Norman, Bryant collided heavily with the post.

His thigh was heavily bruised and he had to be carried from the floor on a stretcher.

Wayne Goss led the New Westminster attack with three goals and three assists while another two-goal production came from Dave Matheson. Single goals were chipped in by Steve d'Easum, Larry Henry and Mac Tyler.

Victoria gets a little bit of a break against their next opponents — Brantford Warriors of the Ontario Association.

Brantford will be playing its fourth game in six days while tackling Shamrocks at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Memorial Arena.

Trevino Divides Purse To Help 'Kids Like Me'

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — Lee Trevino, picking up more money and titles than he ever expected in a single month, donated nearly $5,000 to British orphans Saturday soon after capturing the British Open golf championship.

Trevino won the U.S. Open in a play-off against Jack Nicklaus, then collared the Canadian Open in a sudden-death affair against Art Wall within the last four weeks.

"Earlier this week I told George James, who runs the casino in Southport, that I wanted to do something for the kids like me who had a difficult start in life," Trevino said.

"I was prepared to play exhibition shots for the fans in order to raise funds for the Southport orphanage. But this is not necessary now. I'm giving $4,880 to the orphanage out of the $13,200 I won here at Royal Birkdale."

Trevino was raised by his grandfather, a Dallas gravedigger. He scratched for pennies as a child, never finished high school and worked as a $35-a-week assistant on a desert driving range before hitting it big on the rich American pro golf tour.

"When I win a championship of this stature, I have the feeling that the man upstairs is looking after me and I want to give something back," said the Mexican-American extrovert.

"To be established as a world class player you have to win one of the big ones staged outside the United States. I think from now on that I must be regarded as world class."

Trevino's donation to the orphanage marked the fourth time he has gone into his pocket to help the less fortunate.

He won the 1968 Hawaiian Open, and set aside $10,000 from his purse for a trust fund for the children of the late Ted Makelena, a Hawaiian professional who was killed in a surfing accident.

The following year he donated his entire purse, $2,000, from his individual victory in the World Cup to a caddy-scholarship fund in Singapore.

Just a month ago he allotted $5,000 from his first place prize in the Memphis open to St. Judge's Hospital, the charitable beneficiary of that tournament.

Before coming to the British Open he had already won more than $195,000 and was clearly en route to overtaking Billy Casper's $205,000 earnings in 1969.

HOT PANTS APPROVED BY ROYAL AND ANCIENT

SOUTHPORT, England (AP) — The Royal and Ancient Golf Club, once regarded as the stuffy old granddad of the sport, took on a swinging new image Friday. The club, founded in 1754, gave its formal stamp of approval to girls in hot pants and men with bare chests.

"We're living in the days of the permissive society," said Charles Lawrie, chairman of the championship committee which runs the British Open, first played exactly 111 years ago.

"We're happy to see the youngsters packing the golf course. We don't want to change their fashions. We're just pleased that they want to watch the great players."

Warriors Square Western Record

Brantford Warriors of the Ontario Lacrosse Association evened their record at 1-1 midway through an inter-locking series with Western Association clubs by counting a 16-9 victory over Burrards in Vancouver on Sunday.

Warriors, who outscored Vancouver 7-1 in the second period en route to the victory, dropped their WLA opener 13-9 against defending Mann Cup champion New Westminster Salmonbellies on Saturday.

The easterners rest today before visiting Coquitlam Adanacs on Tuesday night and Victoria Shamrocks in Memorial Arena at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Warriors led 7-4 after the first period against Vancouver and then took complete command in the second, utilizing a fast-breaking style to advantage against the more methodical Burrards.

On Saturday, it was New Westminster that took control early in the nationally-televised game, leading 4-2 after the first period and 8-5 after the second.

FORD FASTER BUT LOSES IN TITLE BID

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuter) — Percy Hayles of Jamaica pounded out a unanimous 15-round decision over challenger Al Ford of Edmonton Saturday night to retain his Commonwealth lightweight boxing title.

Ford, the faster of the pair, carried the fight to Hayles for much of the match, scoring with left jabs. But the champion was the stronger puncher and landed many blows to the body.

There was little action for the first four rounds, but then the pace quickened until both men slowed again towards the end.

Castaways Capture Six-a-Side Honors

Dave Clarke and Captain David Shaw came up with some top-notch batting Sunday as Castaways collected their first cricket trophy in five years by winning the Albion Cricket Club's six-a-side tournament at Beacon Hill Park.

In the final match, Incogs batted first and ran up a score of 60 runs behind the big hitting of Geoff Rooper and Blue Davis. Clarke and Shaw then combined for 62 runs, both scoring 31 not out.

Other members of the winning team were Alan Rees, David Auld, Ashley, Hall and Nick Walton.

In the semi-finals, Castaways defeated Oak Bay and Incogs eliminated Albions, who had won the J. R. Mainwaring Cup for the past two years.

Top batter in the tourney was Tim Bale, who scored 62, not out, for Incogs against Castaways "B". This included 32 in one over.

Best bowling was by Richard Wilson, who toppled two wickets for four runs with the Juniors in their first-round win over Albion "B".

Optimists Aiming At Another Title

Saanich Evening Optimists can collect their third straight Lower Island 15-year-olds Babe Ruth baseball title with a victory tonight over Cosmopilitan at Reynolds Road Park.

Saanich advanced through the double-loss elimination tourney with a 5-0 victory over Cosmopolitan on Saturday and a 6-3 win over Victoria on Sunday.

Cosmopolitans bounced back through the losers' bracket by eliminating Central Saanich 13-2 Saturday night and ousting Victoria 2-0 on Sunday.

Wayne Krimmer struck out nine batters and issued four walks while pitching the Saanich victory over Victoria and Kevin Campbell retired 12 and allowed four walks in the Cosmopolitan win over Victoria.

Richard Nemeth threw a no-hitter Saturday to pace the Cosmo's triumph while Bob Cool fashioned a two-hitter for Saanich the same day.

Winner of the tourney advances to the B.C. final at Queen's Park in New Westminster.

Game time tonight is 6:30.

Pat Ferris Wins Trophy Bike Race

Pat Ferris captured the Jim Taylor Trophy during the 30-mile Victoria Wheelers bicycle club road race in Happy Valley on Sunday.

Ferris crossed the finish line inches ahead of George Allen and both were timed in at one hour, 17 minutes and 54 seconds.

Tom Tuthill was third in 1:29.28.

Johnson Smashes 4 Homers in Row

Ties Major League Mark As Phillies Trip Expos

By The Associated Press

Deron Johnson, the slugging Philadelphia first baseman, clouted home runs to right centre and left fields in his first three appearances Sunday and drove in five runs, powering the Phillies to an 11-5 victory over Montreal Expos.

Coupled with the homer he hit in his last at-bat Saturday night, it gave Johnson four homers in a row, tying a major league record held by 16 other players. The last player to belt four consecutive homers was Oakland Athletics' Mike Epstein, who did it June 15-16.

The last National Leaguer to do it was New York Mets' Art Shamsky, who did it with Cincinnati Reds from Aug. 12-14, 1966. The three homers in one game were the first by a right-handed hitting Philadelphia player at home since Del Ennis did it on July 23, 1955.

REDS WIN TWO

Elsewhere in the National League Sunday, Cincinnati swept a doubleheader from floundering New York Mets, 7-2 and 5-3; Chicago Cubs and San Diego Padres split, the Cubs winning the opener 2-0 and the Padres taking the nightcap 7-5; Los Angeles Dodgers trounced San Francisco Giants 11-3; St. Louis Cardinals trimmed Houston Astros 7-3, and Atlanta Braves at Pittsburgh Pirates was rained out.

Johnson's first homer followed a single by Tim McCarver in the opening inning, a hit off the left-centre field scoreboard. The second came in the third after another single by McCarver and cleared the fence in right. And the third triggered a seven-run uprising in the sixth and left the park in dead centre field.

SEASON TOTAL 21

It was the first time Johnson ever had hit three homers in a game. They increased his total for the season to 21 and his career total to 171.

In his next two at-bats, Johnson struck out.

Cincinnati's two victories extended the Mets' losing streak to six games and gave them 11 setbacks in their last 12 games. They also dropped New York 10 games behind first-place Pittsburgh in the East.

The Reds took the opener as Gary Nolan pitched a six-hitter and capped a six-run fifth inning with a two-run single. In the second game, Tony Perez drove in all five Cincinnati runs, the last three with his second homer of the contest and 14th of the season, a three-run blast off Tom Seaver in the eighth.

The Dodgers' victory over San Francisco ended their six-game losing streak and moved them within six games of the first-place Giants in the West.

DOBSON WINS 10TH

In the American League the Baltimore Orioles are making certain that if their pitching staff happens to collapse they will have a good margin to work on.

However, that doesn't seem likely to happen. Pat Dobson won his 10th o fthe season and his seventh in a row Sunday as the Orioles trounced Cleveland 7-1. Victory enabled Dobson to join the Oriole double-figure pitchers—Mike Cueller has won 13, Dave McNally 13, and Jim Palmer 12. Orioles lead by 5½ games.

In other games, New York Yankees defeated Boston Red Sox Sunday, 3-2, for a three-game series sweep, Washington Senators nipped Detroit Tigers 4-3, Oakland Athletics split with California, winning the opener 3-2 and losing the nightcap 6-3, Kansas City Royals lost two to Minnesota 6-5, and 7-1, Chicago White Sox and Milwaukee Brewers split a pair of 1-0 decisions.

Tony C. Retires, 'Can't See Ball'

BOSTON (AP) — Tony Conigliaro, one of baseball's most feared sluggers until this season, abruptly announced his retirement at the age of 26 Saturday, claiming failing eyesight and other ailments.

"This is the end of Tony C.," Conigliaro said after leaving the California Angels and flying to Boston and an airport meeting with his family. "I've learned that health is more important than money."

Conigliaro went hitless in eight times at bat and was ejected in the 19th inning for arguing with the umpires in the Angeles' 1-0, 20-inning loss at Oakland Friday night.

He then called a 5 a.m. news conference to announce his retirement, saying "I have lost my sight and am on the edge of losing my mind." He boarded a flight for Boston three hours later.

"I just can't see the ball," said Conigliaro, who suffered a serious eye injury when hit by a pitch while with the Boston Red Sox in 1967. "I have no depth perception at all. I have a blind spot."

"At this time, I'd say there's no chance I'll ever return to baseball as a player," the young outfielder said during an airport interview. "There's no way I'll return this year and it's very doubtful that I'd try to come back next year."

Mexican Driver Dies in Crash

NUERNBERG, Germany (AP) — "A sad loss for racing and a sad loss for Mexico."

That was the reaction of British racing driver Graham Hill, two-time world champion, upon hearing of the death of Pedro Rodriguez Sunday in a crash during a European inter-series race at the Norisring.

Rodriguez, 30, died in Nuernberg Municipal Hospital two hours after the Ferrari he was driving blew a front tire, crashed into a wall and burst into a sheet of flames.

Rodriguez almost quit racing nine years ago when his brother Ricardo, also a prominent Formula I driver, was killed at the age of 20 in a crash during practice for the Mexican Grand Prix. But the lure of the track proved too great.

His first Grand Prix victory came in 1968, in South Africa. He has been the No. 1 BRM Formula I team driver since 1968, and was third in world driving championship standings this year.

"He was a conscientious, hard-working driver," said Carlos Braniff, an official of the Mexican Grand Prix organizing committee. "For the past five or six years he was slowly but surely getting into the realm of the great drivers."

Hill echoed Braniff's sentiments. "He was one of the world's top drivers," the former Indianapolis 500 champion said. "He was getting faster and faster as he gained maturity."

Pedro Rodriguez, who fully backed both his sons in the sport which eventually led to their death, called Sunday's tragedy a "terrible blow."

Despite his brother's death, Pedro could not break away from the sport. "Motor racing," he once said, "is something that comes out of you. You have something—something in the blood—and it comes out. Nobody can teach you how to drive. You learn it."

WOMAN JOCK WINS DERBY

WASSENSAR, The Netherlands (Reuter) — Ina Schwarzkaechel, 28, became Sunday the first woman jockey in the world to ride a derby winner, steering three-year-old Cleopatra to victory in the Derby of the Thoroughbreds here.

An attractive blonde, Ina became The Netherland's first professional woman jockey in 1966.

Tillicums Win

Marilyn Tobacco hit a home run Sunday to pace Tillicum Athletic Club to a 13-0 victory over Westendale Constructionettes in a Victoria Senior Women's Softball League game at Beacon Hill Park.

In another game at Beacon Hill, Cablevision Juniors nipped Esquimalt Junior Combos, 12-11.

Vic West Bowlers Complete Area List

Two quartets from the Victoria West club completed the list of area representatives going to the British Columbia lawn bowling playdowns beginning July 22 in Vancouver with home-green victories at the weekend.

Victoria West's Hugh Renfrew, Bill Shimp, Bob Baird and Doug Bole advanced with an 18-16 win over the defending provincial champions from Victoria on Sunday. The defeated rink consisted of Lionel Nichols, Chuck Davies, Fred Sallis and Tom McKeachie. Ernie Stott, Paul Jenkins, Claude Dolstra and Ernie Wakefield won the other berth with a 20-18 victory over the Burnside foursome of Alex Donald, Sid Smethurst, Mike Belton and Fred Hall.

Winners of other Vancouver Island zone berths in previous competitions were John Green of Oak Bay and Percy Hawes of Burnside in singles as well as Colin Fleck and John McMillan of Burnside and Jim McGregor and John Wright of Victoria West in doubles.

VANCOUVER BIKE ACE . . . . . RETAINS CANADIAN TITLE

Tom Morris Ties for Second

OTTAWA (CP) — Vancouver's 26-year-old Max Grace has won the Canadian senior cycling championship for the second straight year.

Grace finished the 110-mile course 10 seconds over 4½ hours — an average speed of 25½ miles an hour.

He finished 18 seconds ahead of Tom Morris of Victoria and Hank Koning of Calgary, who passed the finish line in a dead heat. Fourth place went to John Gornick of Chambord, Que., while Roger Summer of Vancouver was fifth.

Rounding out the top ten were Yves Landry of Quebec, Geno Cadorin of Guelph, Ontario; Gilles Durant of Montreal; Eric Tuenschel of Toronto and Lindsay Gault of Winnipeg.

Koning, Cadoring, Durand and Mark Blouin of Montreal will be members of Canada's Pam-Am team in Cali, Colombia.

Seventy-eight started the race from Parliament Hill but minor mishaps, hilly terrain and hot weather knocked all but 26 cyclists out of the race.

Andre Simard of Alma, Que., won the 55-mile junior men's race by half a wheel-width over Karl Fawthorpe of Victoria. Both were clocked in at 2:08.18.

Defending-champion Robert Van den Eynde of Longueuil, Que., placed third.

Forty-two of the 62 riders that started the race crossed the finish line.

Shawnigan Crews Unlucky To Win Only One Trophy

BEDFORD, England (CP) — Crews from Shawnigan Lake school in British Columbia have taken one final and lost out in two others in a rowing competition billed as the first major regatta on the British schedule following the annual classic at Henley-on-Thames.

One account of the Bedford regatta, appearing in the London Sunday Telegraph, said the Canadian schoolboys "can count themselves unlucky to have carried off only one trophy" after the races here Saturday.

Shawnigan Lake beat out the Wycliffe crew to win the final of the novice fours by three lengths in a time of four minutes 22 seconds, about average for this category of finals at Bedford.

The Canadian school encountered its worst bout of hard luck in the junior fours.

In this event, it lost out to the Thames Club by two feet in a time of 4:10.

An early clash occurred between the competing boats and might have led to a restart in the race but it was allowed to continue.

Observers said Shawnigan should have appealed immediately after the race but the Canadians did not do so until they had left their boat, which meant the appeal was not allowed.

In a third final, a junior eights crew from Shawnigan Lake was leading University College school when, at the last minute, the British boat put on a burst of speed.

This flustered the Canadians whose boat lurched badly and lost out by two-thirds of a length.

TOP ONTARIO JOCKEY . . . . . SUSPENDED AGAIN

Sandy Seeks Other Stewards

TORONTO (CP) — Sandy Hawley is quitting the Ontario thoroughbred circuit to try his riding luck elsewhere.

"I'm going away for a while," the 22-year-old jockey from Oshawa, Ont., said today. He leads the Ontario riders with 136 wins this season.

Hawley, who led North American jockeys in 1970 with 452 victories, learned Saturday that he had been given a five-day suspension for what the track stewards termed careless riding with Tiger Terry in the third race last Friday.

It was the fourth five-day suspension for Hawley this year, and is scheduled to begin Wednesday and conclude with the ending of the Woodbine racetrack summer meeting next Sunday.

Hawley was reluctant to discuss his feelings toward the judges.

"Perhaps I'll try New York, but wherever I go I'll learn to keep my head up or correct whatever they think I'm doing wrong here."

Apart from the fifth race, Hawley didn't do much wrong on Sunday. A crowd of 13,640 watched him ride five winners, missing a sixth with Sly Mongoose.

On Saturday, Hawley star-red again, this time capturing the $48,450 Maturity Stakes with Mary of Scotland in the 1¼-mile test on the turf course.

Locals Helped Hold Tigers by the Tail

By ERNIE FEDORUK

The internationals and professionals did their thing, but some soccer followers found additional pleasure in the heroics of the homebrews Saturday when Victoria Royals played to a 1-1 draw with Sing Tao Tigers of Hong Kong.

The Royal Athletic Park offering was delightful entertainment for 1,294 fans — Royals' largest crowd of the season.

The result preserved Sing Tao's unbeaten tour record, and did nothing to detract from Royals' steadily-soaring stature as a crowd-pleasing side.

Tigers now have won three games and tied two on their North American tour. Both draws came against Western Canada Soccer League opposition, Vancouver Spartans also drawing 1-1 with the Hong Kong professionals.

Both goals were scored in the first half.

Halfback Chan Hung Ping pushed the tourists into a 1-0 lead with a blazing drive that gave goalie Iam McFaul no chance. Centre forward Ash Valdal, set up neatly by Bob Bolitho, equalized three minutes before the intermission.

Royals were bolstered by a pair of visiting internationals, and both performed strongly. McFaul, regular keeper with Newcastle United and a Northern Ireland choice, made a number of smart saves, but none better than a pair against Chan Hung Ping and another against Cheung Chi Wai.

Leeds United and England centre half Jack Charlton, Victoria's other "guest," also played strongly, both on defence and on attack.

Charlton paid tribute to the prowess of the Asians when he said "it's been a long time since I've been forced to go at a pace like we went tonight."

It was an extremely fast pace, and Sing Tao lived up to all advance notices. Speedy and agile, the Tigers went all the way with the short-passing, control game.

Thanks to McFaul, Charlton and playing-coach Brian Hughes, Royals were able to hold their own. Without those three, it might have been a different story.

Still, the "homebrews" came out strongly. Halfback Brian Robinson, fullback Howie Anderson, Valdal and Bob Bolitho — all graduates of district minor ranks — played steadily and, indeed, seemed quite at home with and against all the visiting professionals.

Royals step back into their own league for the next game. Spartans visit Royal Athletic Park on Wednesday, starting at 7:15 p.m.

Vancouver Girl Named Top Swimmer in Meet

EDMONTON (CP) — Ten Canadian and five British records fell at the four-day Canadian national swimming championships that ended Sunday.

All the records were achieved by only five individual swimmers and relay teams from one swimming club, Vancouver Dolphins.

At close of competition, Angela Coughlan of Burlington, Ont., and Bob Kasting of Lethbridge, Alta., were named female and male swimmers of the year, based on their results during the last 12 months. The two were not top performers at the meet although Miss Coughlan gained four gold medals and set one Canadian record.

Kasting was the top performer in last year's national competition and the points were carried forward to help him to the 1971 award.

Leslie Cliff of Vancouver, who had 33 points in this year's meet from four firsts, four seconds and one third, was named top swimmer of the meet. She also set a Canadian record.

TOP MALE SWIMMER

The top male swimmer was Graham McLintock of San Diego, Calif., a Canadian citizen. He had 17 points from two firsts, two seconds and a third.

The Vancouver Dolphins won the aggregate title by a wide margin over the Vancouver Amateur Swim Club, although compilation of the points-total was delayed.

Ray Terrell of Britain was the top non-Canadian with five wins, including four British records.

In Sunday's competition, Terrell broke the English and British records in the 1,500-metre freestyle, winning in 17 minutes, 9.5 seconds to better Alan Kimber's previous mark of 17:13.2.

Miss Coughlan won the 800-meter freestyle in a Canadian record time of 9.25.8. She held the previous mark of 9:30.8.

Miss Cliff broke the Canadian record in the women's 200-meter breaststroke Sunday although she finished second to Dorothy Harrison, the British record holder. Her time was 2:51.6, breaking the record of 2:52.1 held previously by Jane Wright of Oakville, Ont. Miss Harrison won in 2:50.7.

SWEEP RELAYS

Vancouver Dolphins won their seventh and eighth relay events of the meet, completing a sweep of all eight events entered.

The women's team of Donna Marie Gurr, Rose Marie Pepe, Miss Cliff and Wendy Cook won the 400-meter medley relay in 4:42.9. They bettered their own previous Canadian record of 4:43.3.

The Dolphins men's 400-metre Medley team of Jim MacDonald, Billy Mahoney, Ian MacKenzie and Bruce Robertson tied their own Canadian record of 4:07.2 in winning their event.

Other records were set earlier in the meet by Terrell in the 200-meter freestyle and 200- and 400-meter individual medley and Mike Richard of Britain set a record in the 200-meter backstroke.

Most of the records went to the Dolphins who set new times in seven relay events.

Eichelberger Earns Top Milwaukee Prize

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dave Eichelberger outnerved two unheralded players in a hot finish with a closing three-under-par 71 for a one-stroke victory in the $125,000 Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament Sunday.

With a three-way tie looming in the battle for the $25,000 top money after Australian Bob Shaw and Ralph Johnston finished with a 72-hole total of 271, Eichelberger birdied the 17th hole and closed with a par. He wound up with 270, 14 under par.

Johnston blew a three-foot birdie putt on the 18th which could have sent the match at Tripoli Golf Club's par-71 course into a sudden-death playoff.

Johnston closed with a 67 and Shaw, who started the final round four strokes off the pace, shot a 66 to share second place and earn $11,575 each.

The final round over the windswept course, was a see-saw scrap with at least a three-way tie for first looming.

But Eichelberger broke the tension in the final two-some with his birdie on the par-five 476-yard 17th hole by dropping his approach to within three feet and easily sinking the putt.

About 45 minutes before the end, it appeared that even Bruce Crampton of Australia might also figure in a four-way sudden-death playoff as he went to the clubhouse 12 under par with a closing 65. Crampton won $5,850 with his fourth-place standing.

Rod Funseth, who had held the third round lead by a stroke Saturday, faded to a 72 for fifth place and $5,125.

Five players wound up four strokes behind and were tied for sixth. They included Dean Refram, who was tied with Eichelberger for second after 54 holes, Lou Graham, Roy Pace, Paul Moran and veteran Lionel Hebert, who scored his second successive 69.

Pigtailed Jane Tops U.S. Match

HORSHAM, Pa. (AP) — Pigtailed Jane Blalock overcame Kathy Whitworth's two-stroke lead and charged to a five-under-par 68 Sunday to win the $25,000 George Washington women's golf tournament.

The 25-year-old Miss Blalock rolled in six birdies and had only one over-par hole as she shot a 33-35—68 for a winning 54-hole total of 11-under-par 208.

It was her first tour victory of 1971 and her second since turning professional two years ago. Prize money was $3,750.

The 31-year-old Miss Whitworth, leading all-time money winner on the women's tour, folded under a steady drizzle, shooting a three-over-par 38-38—76 for a total of 214.

She slipped to third place behind the women's U.S. Open champion, JoAnne Carner, who carded a final round 69 and a 54-hole count of 210, two strokes behind Miss Blalock.

Seattle Boys Manage Edge

Seattle teams barely edged Victoria squads in a three-day series of minor baseball games which ended here Sunday.

MONT TREMBLANT, Que. (CP) — David McConnell drove his Lotus 69B to victory in a 40-lap race for Formula B cars at Le Circuit Sunday to take the lead in the Player's Challenge Series for Canadian drivers.

The Montreal driver was ahead from start to finish over the 2.65-mile track and wound up four seconds in front of second-place Brian Robertson of Ottawa driving a Brabham BT35.

Third place went to Derek Johnson of Montreal at the wheel of a March.

McConnell, who set the fastest lap with a time of 1:40.6, earned 30 points with his win to move into the lead after two races in the six-race series.

Favorites Advance In City Tennis Meet

Top seeds came through with wins Sunday in the second day of play of the Victoria City Open tennis championships.

Roger Skillings, top-seeded in the men's singles competition, advanced with a 6-2, 6-2 victory over J. Nichol while top-ranked Sally Wood remained alive defeating J. Shaw, 6-0, 6-2.

Ernie Cockayne, second-seeded and the defending men's champion outpointed Dave Tooby, 6-1, 6-4.

In opening-round matches Saturday, Ivor Goodmanson and Martin Taylor won singles matches, teamed up for a victory in the men's doubles and partnered Nancy Hill and Wendy Cuppage, respectively, for wins in the mixed doubles event.

Competition continues tonight at the Racquet Club of Victoria and Oak Bay Tennis Club courts.

Russell Holds Lead

KELOWNA (AP) — Johnny Russell of Vancouver exploded to a 75 Saturday, but managed to hang on to win his fifth Ogopogo open golf championship by four strokes over Doug Bailey of Kelowna.

The veteran Willingdon Cup team member's three-over-par round, combined with two rounds of 68, gave him a 54-hole total of 211, one stroke off the open record.

Bailey, 24, moved within two strokes of the leader on the 10th hole, but had to settle for a 74 and a 215 total.

Dave Barr, 19, of Kelowna also had a two-over-par 74 and finished in a third-place tie at 216 with Bert Ticehurst of 72 Saturday, low score for the day.

Mitch Welters of Vancouver, a 10-handicapper, won the tournament's low net with a 205.

Movers Step Up Into Top Berth

Greaves Movers took over first place in the Victoria Senior Amateur League on Sunday by trimming the formerly leading Farmer Construction 5-3 and 2-0 in a doubleheader at Royal Athletic Park.

In other games Sunday, Gorge Hotel downed Al's Home Service 4-2 in a 12-inning contest that was continued from June 1 before Al's turned around and bounced Gorge 3-1 in a regulation-length tussle.

John Yankoski had two hits for three trips to the plate and scored two runs, including the winner, in the first game for Greaves. In the second encounter, Greaves scored an unearned run in the fourth inning to provide the winning margin.

Young Stars Prove Talent By Setting 16 B.C. Records

By DOUG PEDEN

"Youth development" was the theme and young athletes demonstrated at Centennial Stadium Friday and Saturday that they could combine the ingredients of opportunity and top-flight competition and cook up a batch of records.

This was the 24th annual Y-Times invitational track and field meet, altered in format this year by dropping events for older performers and concentrating on opening the gates of opportunity for youngsters in the peewee (11 and 12 years), bantam (13 and 14) and midget (15 and 16) divisions.

More than 500 young people from the Pacific Northwest accepted the challenge of competition in a meet exclusively for under-17 prospects and they proved their ability to make the best of their chances by smashing a total of 16 British Columbia age-class records.

Another provincial standard was equalled and one of the new marks surpassed the Canadian record.

Setting the national mark were four midget boys from Vancouver Optimist Striders who zipped through the 1,600-metre relay in three minutes, 31.9 seconds.

Most impressive of the record-setting efforts was the one by Nanaimo's Phil Olsen, who added almost 21 feet to the former bantam boys' javelin standard when he tossed the spear 161 feet, 11½ inches in Friday's portion of the meet. It was announced erroneously Saturday that Olsen's mighty heave was in the discus event.

Mike Bakse, a tall and powerful young man competing for the Grays Harbor Greyhounds from Washington, took care of the bantam boys' discus record Saturday with a throw of 145 feet, 9¼ inches. Bakse also collected a shotput record with a heave of 42 feet, 8½ inches.

Another Greyhound, Eric Bissell, established a midget boys' discus record of 137 feet, 1¾ inches and his Grays Harbor clubmate, Mickey Ryan, leaped 14 feet 10 inches in the long jump to topple a peewee boys' mark.

Distance Mark Cut by 40.9 Seconds

Boys from Kerrisdale cracked three other standards in the peewee division.

Rob Lonergan turned in a tremendous effort in the 3,000-metre run when he slashed 40.9 seconds off the former record with a time of 10:32.8.

Ted Kenny boosted the javelin record to 92 feet, five inches, and Kenton Ebel trimmed the 400-metre mark to 63.1 seconds.

Peewee girls established two new records. Lisa Harms of the Seattle Eastside club entended the long jump mark by two and one-half inches with a leap of 15 feet, 10½ inches and the Richmond Track Club quartet scooted through the 400-metre relay in 55.7 seconds, cutting three-tenths from the old record.

SWIFTEST BANTAM

Mark de Salvo was the swiftest of the bantam boys. The youngster from the Seattle Meadowbrook club twice broke the 100-metre mark and reduced it to 23.2 seconds as he won the final. Mark also equalled the provincial mark in the 100 metres as he sprinted to the tape in 11.9 seconds.

De Salvo also shared another record as Meadowbrook lopped six-tenths of a second off the bantam boys' 400-metre relay standard with a timing of 47.7.

Meadowbrook captured the boys' aggregate title with a total of 148 points and Eastside collected the girls' aggregate crown with a harvest of 123 points.

OUTSTANDING ATHLETE

Ted Roberts of the Alberni Valley club was a spectacular performer and was selected as the outstanding male athlete. Roberts, competing in the bantam division, added three and one-half inches to the provincial long jump record with a leap of 19 feet, five inches.

Roberts also won the triple jump, and had second-place finishes in the high jump, 100 metres and 200 metres.

Ann Martin, a bantam with the Richmond Track Club, and Jean Sparling, a midget star with Vancouver Olympic Club, were co-winners of the award for the meet's outstanding female athlete.

Organizers of the meet, sponsored by the Victoria YM-YWCA and the Daily Times, believe that cool weather, which took the bounce out of the all-weather track, prevented the youngsters from setting more records in track contests.

Despite some rain in the morning, officials kept Saturday's program running with remarkable precision and they may have set some sort of a record for age-class meets when they had events running ahead of schedule through a good part of the day.

FANS BATTLE PLAYERS IN MATCH AT TORONTO

TORONTO (CP) — An exhibition soccer game between Dinamo Zagreb of Yugoslavia and the Greek National team ended with 27 minutes left to play following a riot between Dinamo players and fans.

With the score tied 1-1, referee Terry Bell abandoned the game when the Dinamo team refused to resume play.

Police took more than 10 minutes to clear the field of irate spectators among the 15,000 who converged on the Zagreb goal area after Dinamo goalkeeper Douthegovic started slugging several of the Greek team players.

The trouble started with Doutbegovic was called for fouling Domagos of Dimitros. Referee Bell awarded a penalty kick and the Zagreb goalie argued the point.

With payers of both teams milling about, Doubtegovic suddenly charged among the Greek players and began striking at them with his fists.

Pearce, Sluggers Wrap Up Pennant

Bate Construction got good mileage out of pitcher Brian Pearce and the home run hitters for a three-game weekend sweep that nailed down the Major Men's Softball League pennant.

Bates belted Seaboard 8-0 Saturday and then marked up a 4-3 decision over the second-place club on Sunday. In between, Bates also downed Strathcona Hotel 6-1.

Seaboard edged Strath 3-2 in another Sabbath contest as the league played catch-up on postponed games.

Pearce stretched his record to 5-0 by winning two games. He also came in as a pinch-hitter and scored what proved to be the winning run for Barry Jackson in a 4-3 decision over Seaboard.

Bates banged out 29 hits in the three games, including five home runs. Harvey Stevenson and George Banks each collected two round-trippers while Ken Bate accounted for the other.

Century's Hopes Chilled by Sooke

Sooke Merchants put a chill on Century Inn's hopes for undusputed possession of second place while Colwood Inn and Labatts swapped victories in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League Sunday.

Sooke, sparked by Norm Goudie's three-run homer in the first inning, tripped Century 6-5 to prevent the Innkeepers from breaking out of a second-place tie with the idle Bell's Men's Wear.

Larry Neil's two-run single in the fifth inning gave Sooke its victory.

One-hit pitching by Bob Palm gave Labatts a 3-2 decision but Colwood rebounded for a 4-1 victory in the second half of the Heywood Avenue Park double-header.

Ron Grant spoiled Palm's no-hit bid with a run-producing double in the second.

Labs managed only three hits off loser Mike Rye, but bunched two of them with two errors for a winning, three-run rally in the sixth inning.

Jack Lundquist's three-hit pitching enabled Colwood Inn to square accounts in the second game.

One stroke behind at 203 was Bruce Fleisher of Port St. Lucie, Fla., who finished final round with a one-under-par 69. Gary Pitchford, a Canadian who plays out of Lucayan in the Bahamas, finished third at 208.

120 Arrested At S.A. Game

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — At least 120 persons were arrested in wild clashes with police Saturday at the touring South African Springboks Rugby Union game here with New South Wales.

Thousands of demonstrators packed the outer area of the Sydney cricket stadium and kept up steady, loud chants in the noisiest anti-apartheid protest so far on the South African tour.

Smoke bombs and flares were fired over the heads of the police and twice demonstrators broke on to the field during the match, which the Springboks won 25-3.

But play was interrupted only momentarily as police quickly arrested the invaders and swept away their smoke bombs.

Draw by B.C. Helps Ontario Survive Jolt

Despite a stunning loss to Alberta in the final match of the inter-provincial cricket tournament Saturday, Ontario captured the Hiram Walker Trophy and Canadian championship on the basis of a solid performance in the week-long event.

And a little help from defending-champion Quebec was appreciated by Ontario.

While Alberta was collecting its lone win of the tourney by 20 runs at University School, Quebec held British Columbia to a draw at Beacon Hill Park in Saturday's windup matches.

B.C. could have tied for the title by winning its match.

In the other final match, Manitoba finished strongly to defeat Saskatchewan by 73 runs at Windsor Park.

Ontario spin bowlers gave Alberta some early trouble but the Prairie squad counter-attacked with strong batting led by Sefton Wallace (21, not out) to finish with 90 runs.

Ontario found 91 a difficult target to reach and after losing early wickets, were all out at 70.

THEY KNEW IT

British Columbia players heard of Ontario's collapse and realized that a share of the title was within reach.

Zig Hathorn hit 77 runs and B.C. declared at 180, for nine wickets.

Fast bowlers Allan Carter and Alec Porter, both of Victoria struck an early blow for B.C. and Quebec was soon three wickets down for eight runs. Carter toppled two wickets for 19 runs while Porter finished with one for 15.

Dave Lawless and Noel Harris, however, spoiled the plot by coming together with some strong batting and stayed at the wicket until time ran out with the score at 86 for four. Lawless was 37, not out, and Harris 22, not out. Thus B.C. had to be content with one point from a draw to finish third, one point behind Manitoba and two behind Ontario.

Vic Walker of Ontario won the trophy as leading run-scorer with a total of 211 runs in five innings.

Slow-bowler Marshall de Souza of Quebec was the leading wicket-taker by toppling 22 while Ontario's Ron Aldridge had the best individual bowling analysis. He took seven wickets for 42 runs against B.C. on Wednesday.

27-Pounder Jigged

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP) — Joe Belanger of Flin Flon used a two-ounce red and white jig to catch a 27-pound nine-ounce lake trout, the biggest lake trout at the 21st annual Flin Flon Trout Festival.

"I still can't believe it," said Belanger, after tucking the $1,000 first-prize cheque into his pocket. Two other Flin Flon fishermen, Jim Lambkin and Bill Urechke, were second and third.

System Criticized

EDMONTON (CP) — R. M. Hardy, dean of engineering at the University of Alberta, says the committee system has made the administration of universities cumbersome and frustrating.

For example, said the dean who is retiring Aug. 1, the committee that selected his successor, Dr. George Ford, took nine months "to come up with the decision that was the most obvious."

The 64-year-old dean also said in an interview that he believes the day may soon come when high schools will gear their teaching to the average student, and let the universities take care of the upgrading of the education of the 10 per cent of the high school students who get to university.

80,000 See Show

MOOSE JAW (CP) — More than 80,000 people lined the tarmac at the Canadian Forces base Sunday to watch the Saskatchewan Homecoming 71 airshow.

Billed as the "biggest in North America," the show featured all types and styles of aircrafts from the awkward-looking Buffalo to the newest strike reconnaissance fighter aircraft, the CF5.

The show is part of homecoming celebrations, a tourist promotion inviting former Saskatchewan residents to return to visit this year.

Smash Kills 3

EDMONTON (CP) — Police have identified three persons killed Saturday in a car-truck crash as Joyce Ann Briggs, 19, of Vegreville and Diane Laboucane, 17, and Ronald William McCarroll, 22, both of Edmonton.

Police said the car, in which seven persons were riding, and the truck were east-bound into the city when they collided near the entrance to a service station near the western city limits.

The truck driver was not injured.

Lightning Death

NORTH BATTLEFORD (CP) — Joran Duchscherer, 49, was killed Sunday when he was struck by lightning on a golf course at North Battleford.

No Injuries In Jet Crash

CALGARY (CP) — The pilot and seven passengers of a private jet escaped injury Sunday when it crashed while landing at Calgary International Airport.

Piloted by J. W. McKenzie of Vernon, B.C., the aircraft had touched down successfully when the undercarriage retracted and dropped the aircraft on its belly.

Damage was estimated at $50,000.

Mishaps Kill Three in B.C.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least three persons died in accidents in British Columbia during the weekend — and the toll could go as high as five.

Two died in traffic accidents and a youngster was drowned. In addition, two men are missing and presumed drowned in Slocan Lake, about 270 miles east of Vancouver.

Twenty-two-year-old Michael Gregory Peak and Charles Madison Reed, 23, were members of a mountain-climbing expedition of four persons in a canoe which overturned Sunday on the lake.

A youngster from Alberta drowned Sunday while swimming at Revelstoke. He has not been identified.

Nineteen-year-old Dennis Rickard of New Westminster suffered fatal injuries Friday when his motorcycle apparently went out of control and slid into the path of an oncoming car.

Twenty-four-year-old John Allan Smith of Prince George and Williams Lake died early Sunday when his car left a highway about 20 miles north of Quesnel in the Cariboo.

Bergman Says He May Quit in Two Years

STOCKHOLM (Reuter) — Swedish movie director Ingmar Bergman, acknowledged for the last two decades as one of the medium's masters, is thinking of retiring.

"I plan to go on, if God is willing and my pants hold, for another couple of years, to make four or five films and then retire . . . and perhaps devote myself to experimenting for my own personal pleasure," he announced in a locally-produced documentary about his life and work.

The 53-year-old director, who has just completed his first English-language film, said he went on making movies because he enjoyed it. But he has been devoting an increasing amount of time to the theatre.

Describing himself as a relatively inhibited, shy and timid person, he thought his desire to make movies was connected with a need for contact with other people.

Bergman said probably the main reason he continued making films was because the cinema was "a fantastic medium with which to touch other human beings, to reach them, to either annoy them or make them happy; to make them sad or to get them to think; to get them started emotionally."

Appropriately, his latest movie is entitled The Touch. As well as two members of Bergman's own troupe of actors, Max Von Sydow and Bibi Anderson, it stars American Elliot Gould, whose performances in Getting Straight and M.A.S.H. have brought him a reputation as one of the finest young film actors to emerge in recent years.

Bergman described The Touch as an everyday story about a middle-class housewife, married to a senior physician, who lives in an extremely sheltered, small-town environment. Into her life walks a rootless person, an archeologist played by Gould, and her world is turned upside down.

THE WEATHER

Skies cleared in most of British Columbia during the night and lows were generally in the mid forties. However, the central interior remained mostly cloudy.

The upper disturbance which has been responsible for the cloudy cool weather in B.C. now shows signs of drifting south westward over the Pacific. Behind it a slow drying trend is expected in the province with gradually improving weather conditions in all areas.

Victoria: Today and Tuesday — sunny except for early morning cloudiness both days. Brisk westerly winds at times. Highs both days 65 to 70. Lows tonight near 50.

West Coast: Today and Tuesday — mostly sunny and a little warmer. Highs today in the upper sixties and Tuesday near 70. Lows tonight about 50.

$1.7 Billion In Aid Gone

NEW YORK (AP) — The federal General Accounting Office reports it has been unable to determine how $1.7 billion in U.S. funds authorized for the pacification program in South Vietnam was spent or committed during a three-year period ending last July 30, the New York Times said Saturday.

The newspaper said GAO auditors, who made their survey in Vietnam, stated in a report that they could find specific obligations for only $339.2 million of the total $2.1 billion authorized for the pacification program for fiscal years 1968, 1969 and 1970.

The 160-page report has not been made public, the Times added, but was distributed July 1 to Secretary of Defence Melvin Laird and several congressional committees.

In Washington, Roy J. Bullscaff, administrator for the House Foreign Affairs Committee, confirmed Saturday that the committee had a copy of the GAO report. He said the report was classified at the White House's request, however, and could not be released.

Rain Curtails Stock Offering

A pair of 50-lap auto races became a single 60-lapper Saturday because of rain at Western Speedway.

Rain which had been threatening to douse 2,109 racing fans all evening finally began to fall just before the twin features of the open stock car program.

So the features became a "feature" after the rain let up and Ken Mangels of Campbell River was declared the winner after some late confusion.

The mix-up occured after Brian Nelson, leading from the 27th to 57th laps, bowed out with mechanical difficulties and lap recorders went looking for the runner-up. Despite stopping the race on the wrong lap, recorders carefully checked the figures and confirmed Mangels the winner with Rod Caddell second.

HALL INJURED

Two accidents marred the fast heat. Herb hall of Campbell River lost control and bounced into Larry christie of Campbell River and Bill Potts of Nanaimo, putting all three vehicles out of contention. Hall was taken to hospital where stitches were required to seal a cut on his knee.

On the final lap, Larry Pollard lost control coming out of the number-one turn and took out half the billboard on the backstretch. Pollard, who had been leading the pack, was uninjured despite having two pieces of lumber bounce off his helmet.

Results:

Main event — 1. Kent Mangels, Campbell River; 2. Rod Caddell; 3. Jack McCauley, Campbell River.

Fast heat — 1. Rod Caddell; 2. Ralph Whiley, Campbell River; 3. Jack Gold, Nanaimo; 4. Kent Mangels, Campbell River.

First heat — 1. Ron Fleet; 2. Tony Johnson; 3. Earl Pollard; 4. Rob Layfield.

"A" trophy dash — 1. Ralph Whiley, Campbell River; 2. Larry Christie, Campbell River; 3. Kent Mangels, Campbell River; 4. George Stuart, Campbell River.

"B" trophy dash — 1. Orton Ker; 2. Earl Pollard; 3. Rob Layfield; 4. Rosy Syr, Campbell River.

Island Quartet Selected

Four players from Vancouver Island have been selected to the Canadian women's basketball team which will compete in the Pan-American Games in Cali, Colombia, July 26.

Mary Coutts of Victoria, Angie Radanovich of Nanaimo, Wendy Grant of Campbell River and Heather Witzel of Courtenay were among those named to the 12-member team.

Four of the remaining eight players also are from British Columbia —Pauline Gensick of Nakusp, Betty Ross of Vancouver, Joanne Sargent of Canoe and Kathy Williams of West Vancouver.

Rounding out the team are Marg Curry of Swift Current, Sask.; Joyce Douthwright of Gunningsville, N.B.; Leslie Hamerton of Winnipeg and Pat Tatham of Hamilton.

Darlene Currie of Vancouver was named the coach.

Mrs. Coutts and Miss Radanovich both play for Victoria Maplettes.

Mrs. Coutts, named Victoria's female athlete-of-the-year in 1968, has been included on the Canadian team since 1966 and represented Canada at the 1967 Pan-Am Games as well as the world championship in Brazil this year.

Brothers Retain Tag-Team Title

Stephen Little Bear and Duncan McTavish won the final fall by disqualification Saturday night, giving them the match but enabling the Skull Brothers to retain their Canadian tag-team championship in the feature bout of a professional wrestling card at Memorial Arena.

Gene Kiniski defeated Dean Higuchi, Freddy Baron downed Wolfman Gorky and Nick Pacciano outgrappled Rick Renaldo in other bouts.

Midget Crown To View Royal

NANAIMO — View Royal of the Colwood and District Softball Association captured the Vancouver Island midget boys' championship Saturday with 10-1 and 10-5 victories over Nanaimo.

The Island champs now meet the Mainland representatives for the provincial crown in another best-of-three-series next weekend.

Late Goals Save Vancouver's Day

VANCOUVER — Harry McTaggart's penalty goal on the last play of the match gave Vancouver Oldtimers a 3-3 draw with Victoria Oldtimers on Saturday at Adanac Park.

George Paul, Ian Harris and Ted Smith counted for Victoria, which led 2-0 at half-time. Andy Keevner and John Pye, who scored four minutes from the final whistle, also scored for Vancouver.

Bakers, Hunters Ring Up Triumphs

Victoria McDonald Bread enjoyed a romp in Junior "B" circles but city intermediate lacrosse squads could do no better than split weekend engagements on the mainland.

Sparked by the five-goal, six-assist performance of Jim Lynch, the junior Bakers trounced South Vancouver Legion 23-3 Sunday.

Glen Neuman, Darryl Hooker and Mike Walsh each added three goals while Bob Crook, Gerry Kustaski and Norm Baker Jr. each counted a pair. Dave Thompson, Tom Laussasseur and Randy Sylvester hit for singles.

The intermediate Bakers were upset 17-11 by North Vancouver while Saanich E. J. Hunter edged Vancouver Mohawks 15-13.

Jeevan Dillon, Don Ferguson and Rob Clifford each scored twice against North Van.

Don Green (4), Mike Wilson (3) and Jim McCreesh (3) powered the Saanich intermediates, who also got two goals from Leigh Hagen and singles from Matt Mannix, Frank Faust and Dave Lowden.

Three goals by Jim Walshall sparked McDonalds to a 10-7 win over Nanaimo City in senior "B" play last Thursday. Owen Richman, Jindy Johl and Murray Murault counted two apiece for Victoria.

SWEDISH STYLE

A Sex Education For Our Minister

The hope that this province might eventually catch up with much of the rest of the civilized world in educating children to cope intelligently with the most vital function of their adult lives would appear to have died, not with a bang but a whimper. Oh, Lord! Oh, Social Credit!

While it's true that local school boards may make their own decisions on programs of sex education, it's surely a stunning triumph for Neanderthal thinking that Donald Brothers, the provincial minister of education, has dissociated the government from a planned province-wide course for elementary schools.

A fast poll of teachers and school board trustees, most of them still somewhat dazed by the minister's peremptory scrapping of the sex education section in a new course under the general title Human Life Science, finds them all but unanimous in the opinion that it is a decision Brothers made for political expediency.

Unless the Bennett government is running scared to the point of outright panic I find this hard to swallow. The teachers I've talked to are convinced that, at the outside, there are no more than two parents in every hundred who oppose the idea of an enlightened program of sex education in our schools. More often than not the objection of this insignificant minority is rooted in rigid religious concepts, parents whose children doubtless are most in need of precisely that kind of instruction.

I think a more reasonable explanation — and no idle boast — is that Brothers possesses one of the finest 19th Century minds in these parts, a distinction he nailed down not merely with the cancellation of this well-planned course, but by noises of outrage that Oak Bay High should be considering studies in political science that would include—horrors! —the reading of the works of Karl Marx, causing God knows what revolutionary ferment to start bubbling in the high-rent district.

Like his fellow Social Credit member, the adorable Agnes Kripps, who solemnly proposed in the legislature last year that the word "sex" be officially replaced by the word "bolt" (standing discreetly for "biology on life today") one suspects that the minister of education is afflicted with the well-known ostrich complex. Just don't look — it may all go away, whatever it is: unemployment, poverty, corporate banditry, youth, sex, truth.

★ ★ ★

Nineteen years of Social Credit decision-making undoubtedly has had an anaesthetic effect on the public's capacity for reaction. In this case, sure enough, only those very close to the school system have made even a token complaint. The great body of parents who, presumably, would welcome such a course haven't so much as written a Constant Reader letter-to-the-editor.

That being the case, I see only one possible hope for us to begin catching up with more worldly parts, which means just about everywhere. What I am proposing is the sex education of Donald Brothers.

I propose that a special fund be established — to which I will gladly contribute—to send Donald to Sweden for exactly one month for the purpose of observing first-hand how, from the very first grade, students are taught the realities of sex relationships, how it has changed for the better a nation's attitudes in just one generation, how an eminently respectable, even somewhat strait-laced people, found their way to a new and honest morality through their children.

Sweden is the ideal model — as it is in labor legislation and public housing, though we mustn't expect too much in the way of Social Credit inspiration in those fields — simply because it was the first nation to accept the responsibility of the state in preparing its children for adulthood. It accepted it reluctantly, as we would, as the alternative to parental education, but it accepted it bravely, as we should, in the knowledge that parents can't or won't do the job.

It was an experimental program 15 years in the works, a program that caused a continuing rage of controversy, conflicting theories and implacable resistance from the churches. But in the years since 1956 when the courses became compulsory in every public school that hostility has all but totally disappeared. The nation today rightly prides itself on its pioneering role and gladly shows off its accomplishments to every visitor. When one of the architects of its sex education program visited Canada not long ago he put it right on the line. "We're 50 years ahead of you."

★ ★ ★

I believe that Brothers would accept that, might even become an advocate, if he were to go and see for himself. At the same time I'll concede that the experience might well provide him with some justification for his own cop-out on the grounds of parental objections or, more accurately, inertia.

The first fundamental lesson to be learned in Sweden is that only the relentless pressure of informed public opinion can bring it about. Sex education did not originate through the wisdom, courage or far-sightedness of Swedish legislators. It originated in the insistence of the people who put them into office.

The real trail-blazers were the educators, themselves, and for the most pragmatic of reasons. So many pregnant young girls were dropping out of the school system in those days before The Pill that the teachers demanded a program of sex courses simply as a means of protecting a child's right to have an education.

A majority of parents supported their stand and a significant number of students, themselves, banded together in militant, policy-making student councils, added their weight. Trade unions joined the crusade, to such an extent that they still provide the bulk of the financing for the National Association of Sex Education, a non-government body that plays an important part in sex education outside of the school system.

In retrospect, however, most Swedish educators give the real credit to the women of Sweden. Long before there was a liberation movement the wives and mothers of Sweden had launched the good fight for equality. The right of sexual freedom, of emancipation from a tyranny of ignorance, now a fait accompli in all of Scandinavia, was their single-minded aim. It began with the recognition that a full knowledge of the sexual facts of life for their sons and daughters was Square One.

Big dugout canoe rests in security of Inner Harbor

Leisurely Canoe Trip —Clear to Hawaii

A 43-year-old West Vancouver adventurer will set sail from the Inner Harbor Tuesday on what he hopes will be a 45-day solo voyage to the Hawaiian Islands in a dugout canoe.

For George Tocher the trip is more than an adventure.

He hopes to prove the theory, held by many historians, that Pacific Northwest Haida Indians travelled to Hawaii, the Easter Islands and even New Zealand in their canoes.

It's taken him 2½ years to complete his 50-foot canoe, which is from a design by the Kwakioti band.

She's made of red cedar, painstakingly whittled into shape from a tree seven feet in diameter.

•

Tocher calls her Orenda, an Iroquois word meaning in harmony with nature. "And this I'll have to be on this voyage."

He first learned the art of whittling canoes when he helped Indians with their boats during his years as a faller with a logging company.

Orenda differs from the Haida canoes which Tocher says had two hulls. She has one hull and an outrigger, filled with styrofoam for bouyancy.

There is over 45 feet of rope in each of her lashings and Tocher is under no illusions about their ability to stand up in rough weather.

"I'll probably have to redo them but I met some rough weather in Howe Sound, of all places, and the canoe rode it well."

•

Today he was loading his craft with canned goods and topping his water supply — 40 gallons contained in one-gallon strawberry syrup cans and bleach bottles.

"Some of the water tastes like strawberries but I hope the bleach ones are okay!"

One modern innovation on the unique craft is a self-steering vane, put together for Tocher by Vancouver marine architect Stan Huntingford and mechanic Bill Lee.

The craft is powered by a 16-foot-square mainsail, and a 25-horsepower outboard motor.

When he's not steering with the vane he'll use a 17-foot sweep which took him three days to make, shaped out of yellow cedar with a cherry wood handle.

George Tocher Has Theory to Prove

Wallace Hits Hospital Delay

Dr. Scott Wallace, Social Credit MLA for Oak Bay, said today he sees "no reason whatever" for any further delays in expansion of St. Joseph's Hospital.

Wallace, who sat in on a meeting last Wednesday which sought a compromise solution to lengthy delays in expanding the hospital, said it would be much cheaper to develop St. Joseph's than to build an entirely new hospital in the suburbs.

The fate of the expansion of St. Joseph's depends on Health Minister Ralph Loffmark's approval of arrangements made last week by representatives of the hospital and the city and the regional hospital board.

Loffmark, who returned to Victoria today after spending several days in the Interior, couldn't be reached for comment. His office said he was tied up with meetings.

The city's hopes of extending Belleville Street through the proposed hospital property owned by the Sisters of St. Ann has been a key problem in the issue of expanding St. Joseph's.

City council Thursday unilaterally amended an earlier agreement with the province on the extension question by requiring that technical studies should be the eventual basis for deciding whether to extend the road.

Air Race Display Closed by Thefts

Thefts from three planes in the London-Victoria air race was one reason the public didn't get a really close look at the machines at Saturday's "open house", a race official said today.

Digger Dagg, provincial liaison officer for the race, was replying to complaints that people who drove out to Victoria International Airport to see the aircraft had to look at them from behind a snow fence.

"You cannot leave the public roaming around out there without security or crews to keep an eye on things," Dagg said.

Stolen items included wing-tip generators from one plane and control locks from another. Dagg couldn't remember what was missing from the third plane.

He said visitors were allowed into the fenced-off compound from roughly 10 to 11 a.m. while crews were on hand to keep an eye on things and answer questions.

By 11, however, the crews had to leave to attend All-Sooke Day, so visitors were asked to leave. RCMP officers were on hand to gently shoo out the hangers-on, Dagg said.

About 35 of the 52 race planes were on display.

Mrs. Elizabeth Price, 2822 Craigowan, said she was able to talk to one of the pilots at the fence and that he lifted her child over the fence to sit in his plane.

She said it was "rather maddening" that other people didn't get in.

"I was sure disgusted. If that's B.C.'s centennial, then forget it."

The three top winners of the race saluted the city and the provincial government in a fly-past over the Legislative Buildings at noon Sunday as they departed Victoria.

Officials had hoped more planes would have taken part in the "thankyou" for the reception received in Victoria after the race, but most crews departed individually before-hand because of work commitments.

Meatcutters Accept Two-Year Contract

Meatcutters in Victoria and Vancouver voted overwhelmingly Sunday in favor of a new two-year contract with the major supermarkets.

The agreement, affecting about 120 employees in Victoria and 650 in Vancouver, provides wage increases of $20 a week this year and $20 a week next year for journeymen meatcutters, assistant head meatcutters and head meatcutters. Head meatcutters will get an additional $4 a week this year and $2 next year and assistant head meatcutters will get an additional $2 this year.

Meat and delicatessen clerks will get an additional $16 a week this year and $16 next year.

The old rates of pay were $182 a week for journeymen meatcutters, $192 for head meatcutters, $185 and $186 for assistant head meatcutters and $142 a week for clerks.

Meat department employees also gained a reduction of one hour, to 38 hours, in the average work week which George Johnston, representative of the Amalgamated Meatcutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, described as "the major achievement."

Full-time employees now will accumulate two hours each week and when they reach eight hours they have a day off with pay, Johnston said.

Part-time clerks who would not qualify for this will receive an additional 10 cents an hour this year and another 10 cents an hour next year, he said.

In other areas of the settlement, Johnston said the employer will pay the total cost of the dental plan which now will include orthodentistry, extending coverage to a female employee's husband as well as her children who were previously covered, additional contributions to the employer-paid pension plan, unpaid maternity leave of 11 weeks prior to birth and six weeks after, splitting health and welfare premiums 70-30 between employer and employee instead of 50-50 and severance pay.

Birds Dead From Spray?

Deaths of large numbers of swallows around lower Vancouver Island may have been caused by use of a highly-toxic mosquito pesticide, autopsies revealed today.

Rory Finnegan, a biologist with the Fish and Wildlife Branch, performed the autopsies this morning.

He said use of the substance "Baytex," a mosquito controller, could have killed the birds, large numbers of which have been reported dead on Salt Spring Island, South Pender Island, Central Saanich and the Saxe Point area of Esquimalt.

Finnegan cited two other possibilities of reasons for the deaths: an abnormal level of chlorinated hydrocarbons which would cause a mother to not pay enough attention to her young, and bacterial infection through parasites.

TRACE POSSIBLE

The autopsies were performed on two young nestlings which Finnegan said were both quite fat and showed no obvious signs of cause of death.

One bird was infested with a warble fly maggot which "wouldn't have done it any good, but would not have been fatal," Finnegan said.

He said use of Baytex could be traced through the department of agriculture, which keeps records on users, and that it might have been someone trying to get rid of mosquitoes.

Another possible cause of the deaths, he said, was the weather and a shortage of flying insects.

18-HOUR FEEDING

"Certain weather conditions do not produce enough insects," he said.

The swallows migrate to B.C. all the way from South America especially for the long hours of sunlight and the supply of insects, and if these conditions do not exist, "they may as well stay down in South America."

"The young have to be fed for 18 hours a day," he added, so the amount of insects available is important.

He said samples were being sent to different laboratories to determine pesticide levels in the dead birds and exact levels of chlorinated hydrocarbons, and a check was being made with the agriculture department about the Baytex.

A Central Saanich woman has reported more dead swallows. Mrs. Marilyn Ross, 2351 Styan Road, said a mother bird and her five nestlings were healthy Saturday, but were dead by Sunday.

Finnegan said other types of birds had been reported dead as well. Seven pigeon guillemots, a type of sea bird which feeds on fish and shrimp, were found on the Chain Islands off Oak Bay. All were dead for no apparent reasons.

One had been found sitting dead on its nest, he said, and the six others were around logs in the area.

PANIC

Finnegan said the birds deaths "may have been a natural phenomenon, which happens occasionally in the bird world. Populations get too high, and they fall."

"It's all very unfortunate, and very sad, but it happens."

TO APPLY FOR LANDED IMMIGRANT STATUS

More Ups, Downs for Hannagan

Roger Hannagan's girls have scattered, but the pugilistic pilot is determined to stay in the Victoria area as a Canadian.

Hannagan's navigator, Francine Johnson, was en route home to Montreal this afternoon via commercial airline.

She left Quebec City with the 22-year-old pilot last Sunday after he was disqualified from the London-Victoria air race following a fist-swinging dispute with his regular co-pilot.

Hannagan's girl, Toots Johnson, is waiting to be picked up by him in Seattle on Tuesday.

The 6-foot-6 aviator, with tape holding on the malfunctioning door which started the row with his co-pilot, will carry on from Seattle to return the plane to its owner in Portland Tuesday.

But before he leaves Victoria, Hannagan will apply for landed immigrant status at the immigration office and as soon as he tidies up his affairs in Portland, he'll be back here pounding the pavement in search of a job in commercial aviation.

•

There are indications that a welcoming committee will be on hand when Hannagan and Toots touch down in Oregon.

Portland television newsmen report a barrage of calls asking when the pilot will be landing, and say they will be there to record the event.

Hannagan said the co-pilot with whom he had his now-famous fisticuffs in Scotland, osteopath Dr. Lawrence Dennis, has said he "wants to wash his hands of the whole episode."

For Hannagan, the long saga ends when he turns over the plane to its owner, a Portland physician, Tuesday.

In a rare show of sentiment Friday, Hannagan stood in front of his fellow competitors in the race and apologized, tears in his eyes, his voice breaking.

"I didn't mean to steal the show from all of you," Hannagan said. "If I've offended anyone, I'm sorry."

He was replying to an attack moments earlier at a press conference by Alberta competitor H. W. Aycock. After assailing the press for "poor coverage" of the race, Aycock launched into personal criticism of Hannagan.

•

Here's a man who pulls a fool's stunt in Scotland ... then he comes over here (to Canada) and picks up some girl in Quebec City and everyone thinks he's a hero."

Although Aycock later shook hands and said he harbored no ill will, Hannagan was visibly hurt by the attack.

He explained that he had spent six months modifying his aircraft and otherwise preparing for the race, and was not about to discontinue because of "an argument."

Then, in a move that surprised even race organizers, Air Marshall Clair Annis, president of the Air Race Corporation, praised Hannagan for getting publicity and making the world aware of the race.

Hannagan also was defended by Lillooet pilot Ken Akers, who said he had flown much of the race near Hannagan and found him to be "a friendly person and a good pilot. I think he was just caught in bad circumstances.

"It could have been any one of us. In a case like that, you just have to make the best of it. He did finish the race. He's a damn good pilot."

BOTULISM SCARE IN CANADA

New 'Hazardous Foods' Law Expected After Recall Delay

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Special to the Times

FAMILY SECTION

OTTAWA — The Bon Vivant soup recall in Canada last week will likely result in new, tougher federal regulations for the food distributing and manufacturing industry, to ensure speedier removal of suspected hazardous foods from retail shelves.

The toughest such regulation being seriously considered by federal health officials in the wave of the Bon Vivant incident would be a requirement that food manufacturers and distributors remove suspected food products within a specified number of hours from all retail outlets on request by the government, or face legal action. The health officials are quite concerned about the length of time it has taken to have Bon Vivant soups and sauces removed from grocery and gourmet shelves in Canada. The products, also packed under the Hickory Farms of Ohio, Ancora and Reese Finer foods labels, is suspected to contain a dangerous food poisoning bacteria and toxin.

One man is known to have died from botulism from a Bon Vivant product in the United States. But no such cases have been reported to date in Canada.

Dr. A. B. Morrison, director general of the Food and Drug Directorate (FDD) admitted last week in an interview that the Canadian recall, while better than the American recall, has been slower than desired and less than adequate.

In the nation's capital, headquarters for the FDD, Bon Vivant products were found on store shelves as late as Wednesday by federal inspectors. The products had been ordered removed from retail stores and returned to the Montreal distributor the previous Friday. The FDD says it still is not certain all the products have been recalled and in some Canadian cities the search continues.

Health officials place much of blame for the health-endangering tardiness in recall on the lack of adequate records possessed by food distributors.

Adequate records, the FDD believes, would allow company and government representatives to go directly to retail and wholesale outlets where the products were known to have been delivered. This has not been possible.

This would reduce the recall time to precious hours instead of days or even weeks. Time is particularly important in cases involving a suspected or known direct hazard to health, as in the Bon Vivant case.

And health officials point to the more successful recall record in the drug area, where drug manufacturers and distributors are required by law to maintain detailed records of production, sales and product destinations.

Dr. Morrison said, "The Bon Vivant recall has just not been as good as it should be" and that "improvements" will have to be made.

He said that a special investigation has been launched with the food directorate to determine what specific "improvements" will be required.

One likely improvement would be an increase in the number of food inspectors across the country. Most major cities in the Bon Vivant case have been limited to teams of a handful of inspectors, who were expected to check all likely retail outlets. Many cities had only one inspector assigned to the recall; other cities had none.

Dr. Morrison said he did not know the exact number of inspectors on the Bon Vivant case either nationally or locally.

He stressed that the FDD must be prepared to adequately handle such emergencies, no matter how infrequently they occur.

Families Dance Together

Families interested in getting into shape in their leisure hours should look up up Solomon Walter, a newcomer to the city who's keen on getting Mom, Dad and the kiddies all out on the dance floor together.

Walter, who will be opening up a new dance studio on Fort St. Tuesday, can teach you just about any type of dancing you're interested in learning — from traditional ballroom and the Viennese waltz right through to ethnic specialties.

Walter's own specialty is Israeli dancing, although he's also very knowledgeable about other styles — including British, Central European, and even African.

Although Walter will be offering classes for beginners, intermediates and seniors, he hopes to make a go of classes for the whole family.

"I don't believe in letting anyone sit down," he said. "If parents come with their children, I get them dancing, too."

Walter is shown in the picture at left, helping Kim Wade, 9.

Big game hunting gets into the blood. There's the thrill of spotting an animal, the excitement of the chase and, finally, skill in bringing the animal down cleanly.

That's the way Thomas R. Gettelman rationalizes an interest that in the past seven years has taken him to Africa, Norway, Alaska, South America, India and into the mountain regions of this province.

Trophies that fill a room specially built for them at the back of the family home on Norfolk Road are evidence not only of his interest but his skill with rifle and gun.

Thomas R. Gettelman

Gettelman's first safari, back in 1964, came almost by accident. He was living in Milwaukee where the family brewing business "active over four generations" had recently been sold and he and a brother had gone into a malting firm.

Three friends were planning a big game hunt in Africa. They wanted to make it a foursome and "almost in a kidding way asked if I'd go along." Gettelman remembers. "I'd done quite a bit of bird hunting in Wisconsin, but no big game. However, much to their surprise, I said I'd take them up."

The four men spent 23 days hunting in what was then Bechuanaland (now Botswana), where they found weldebeest; sable antelope, the greater kudo, red hartebeest, impala, cape buffalo and springbok. They also went after tiger fish on the Zambesi River, "striped and with big teeth . . . not the best eating but good sport . . . although not as good as our own coast salmon."

Gettelman bagged an elephant and he claims that it was the most spine-tingling event of his seven years in big game hunting.

"We spotted a small herd. The guide and the native tracker singled out an old fellow. I aimed for his ear but he didn't go down. Two of the herd bolstered him up on either side and started leading him back into the bush. The others turned and rushed toward the sound of the shot.

"It's well known that elephants do not see well, that they rely on hearing and smell. So we stood perfectly still — hard to do with that tonnage rushing toward us. Just at the crucial moment they swerved and headed off at a tangent and we started to breathe again. After it was all over we tracked down the wounded animal and found it dead."

A pair of long ivory tusks mounted at the entrance to the trophy room and a hard, stringy elephant tail on the wall are souvenirs of that event.

The following year the same foursome went off to Norway looking for polar bear. "We found them on a little island up in the barren north of that country." Next came Alaska for moose and cariboo, then, in 1969, Gettelman and one of the others went to India for tiger.

"I didn't get one," the quiet spoken man said. "He zagged when he should have zigged and I missed. At the same time I had the thrill of seeing and tracking him."

Another year it was into the interior of British Columbia for cougar, the Cassiars for billy goat and stone steep, and about the same time to Paraguay for jaguar. "The only jaguar we saw had four wheels and steering gear."

Why did this big game hunter finally settle in Victoria? Well, as he puts it, "the time came for semi-retirement at least, and opportunity to do many other things I had always wanted to do."

Another safari? Thomas Gettelman looks over at a corner of the trophy room where his rifles and guns are racked. Then he shakes his head. One of the old-time foursome is now quite ill in Milwaukee. The others have lost interest.

"There may never be another," he says.

But there's a speculative look in his eyes that leads you to believe he is hoping that statement will not be true.

JESUS FREAK MURRAY FENWICK

COMMUNAL CHRISTIAN HOUSE ON MANCHESTER ST. BEING RENOVATED

Booze, Drugs, Sex Not Enough 'Freaks' Turn On With Christ

By HELEN MELNYK

It wasn't so long ago that John Lennon boasted that the "Beatles are more popular than Jesus Christ."

Now that the Beatles have split up, many young people are turning on with eJsus.

Booze, drugs, sex — these young people, commonly known as Jesus freaks, say they've been there. Now they've found what they've been looking for — Christ.

Jesus freaks talk of their lives in terms of "before and after being saved."

The "before life" of Len Bentham, 23, of the local chapter of th eJesus People movement was totally empty."

"I was turning on acid, grass — you-name-it — heavily for five years, said Len. "I had some unusual experiences but I found nothing in it. I wandered around Europe for a while, but there was nothing there. I tried mediation — nothing in that.

Len's "after life" dates back a month when he went to a communion service one evening with a friend.

"I started crying and then I spoke in tongues for two hours afterwards," he said. Len defined "speaking in tongues" as a God-given language.

Len refers to that evening as the day he was "saved", meaning that he experienced Christ and accepted Him as his saviour.

"Christ is the ultimate reality," says Len, "you have to be insane to deny it."

How does he know?

"I KNOW! In prayer I feel a vibrating ecstasy — it's a really pure thing. This may sound very nebulous, but it's beyond words."

Len, an artist, also describes his work in terms of before and after.

"Before my art work was all about me and in praise of myself. All my hang-ups went into it. Now all my art is in praise of God. I did my best art piece after I was saved."

Len was sitting on the floor of an empty old house on Manchester St. He "praised God" frequently. He laughed a lot, too.

So did the others. There were abotu seven of them. wielding hammers and paint brushes and humming hymns in preparation for occupancy. Oblivious to all the activity, two canines lay in the middle of the room inert, except for thumping their tails whenever anyone jumped over them.

House Full

Asked how she got involved with the Jesus People, Bev Hall, 27, of California, made jociferous sounds of amusement.

"I went away from home for a while, leaving a guy to look after the dogs. When I came back, the house was full of Christians," she said.

"There were Bibles all over the house. Every time I sat on a chair, I'd end up on a Bible. I was an atheist then, so it really made me mad."

One evening when Bev was feeling depressed, a friend asked her to go to a revival meeting. "I didn't want to be left alone, so I agreed to go.

"The meetings were being held in a tent in the middle of town. I hoped no one I knew would come by."

Bev said she was so impressed by the meeting that she kept on going, even though at first "it was definitely against my will."

"Everything hasn't become rosy since I've been saved," she said. "But now I've got inner strength to work from. Before I thought I had to be totally self-reliant; that I was the last court of appeals. I was struggling with all these things I couldn't handle. God can handle anything.

"Essentially I don't exist without God. There's this little malfunctioning shell called Bev running around.

"Before I was almost in a vacuum as far as personal relationships were concerned. Suddenly I found myself with 60 brothers and sisters. We can always maintain friendship without having to work and work at it, like you normally do outside. Your love for them and their love for you is all a love of God."

Shepherding the little flock is Kenneth Brinton, a 21-year-old youth minister. He outlined plans for the house that is now being renovated. It's going to be a "disciplined" Christian communal home for seven to 10 boys, 16 to 23 years.

Ken defined discipline as a balance between freedom of expression and authority.

"We're going to learn to live and work together for God and to relate to each other as brothers and sisters of Christ."

The boys will meet their food and rent bills by taking jobs, he said.

Ken elucidated the beliefs of the Jesus People.

"People can find a little bit of God in Buddhism, Baha'-Ism, in anything they want to, but to completely realize Him, you must go through Jesus. You're saved by the grace of God, not by good works."

This life is the only chance we get to find or to deny God's glory, stated Ken.

"If you deny Jesus, then you're spiritually dead in this life. You're living a life in Satan and will be in hell for all eternity.

Personal Thing

"God made us with free-will," he emphasized. "We're not just a bunch of robots."

Ken described his relationship with Christ as personal and paternal.

"He really lets you know if you've blown it. But He pats you on the back, too."

He criticized organized churches where "you can set a watch by everything that happens in the service." The repetition of the same hymns and prayers at the same time every Sunday is about as inspiring as "brushing your teeth," he added.

Ken said his people will take their faith to the streets of Victoria.

"Jesus said to spread the good news."

YOUTH MINISTER KENNETH BRINTON

DEAR ABBY...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are both in our early forties and we have always had what I considered to be a good marriage. My husband has been a controlled diabetic for some time, but now he has high blood pressure. He recently told me that his doctor has informed him that he cannot have marital relations with me any more as the excitement might further damage his health. Can this be true?

Don't suggest I ask his doctor because his doctor is his golfing buddy and he would never make a liar out of my husband even if he was one.—Wondering in N.J.

DEAR WONDERING: Yes, it's possible that your husband's doctor told him what he told you. But if you suspect your husband of trying to avoid marital relations with you by giving you a phony medical report, you have more trouble than a sick husband — you have a sick marriage.

DEAR ABBY: That letter from MISERABLE IN MAINE — the girl who was engaged to a disabled veteran — hit close to home with me.

I walked down the aisle to marry a man who was waiting for me in a wheelchair. It was a beautiful wedding, and I felt like the luckiest girl in the world to be marrying such a wonderful man.

We've been married for four years and we couldn't be happier. Our son is three and our daughter is two, and we go on picnics, fishing trips and camping vacations together. My husband is an excellent swimmer, and although he can't water ski, he drives our boat very well. Our kids don't feel cheated because their father is handicapped. They get more attention than most of their friends whose father are able-bodied.

Your answer was perfect. "If you really love him, nobody will be able to talk you out of marrying him!"

That's exactly what I would have told her. — Happy in Arkansas.

DEAR HAPPY: Would you believe you have company in Canada, Ireland and Italy as well?

DEAR ABBY: This if for the babe who says pumping gas is only a sideline — those nice men in the service stations are really there to give directions to people who get lost:

Is that so? I have helped hundreds of lost drivers get back on the right road. About half the folks who pull up here want everything but what we are selling. We call them "I. W. W.'s" (Information, Wind and Water.) You sure have to fight to make a buck in this business! — Lou in Cannon Falls.

DEAR LOU: You forget those fellow travellers who want the key to your restroom.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Status, Education Concern Women

EDMONTON (CP) — Waving reports at governments rather than bras at politicians is the way the International Federation of Business and Professional Women prefers to air its views.

Much of the debate at last week's congress of the IFBPW has been on issues championed by the women's liberation movement — only the method has been changed.

The 1,400 delegates to the congress — the average age is closer to 50 than 20 as in women's lib — have presented reports that show the group is interested in forcing governments to look into matters dealing with the status of women and into education and training of women.

Elena Mederos De Gonzales, UNICEF consultant at the United Nations headquarters in New York, told delegates education and training is the key to development, both for women and for the betterment of the world.

"Education is a means of promoting understanding in the cause of world peace," she said. "The difference between the status of women in the developed countries and the status of women in the developing countries, is a challenge which must be met."

The federation has a role of leadership, she told delegates, urging them to "do as much as you can for education and training in all parts of the world."

The close relationship between the federation and the UN also was stressed in the reports of UN representatives. The federation has permanent observers at both Geneva and New York and has non-government organizations status as well as being represented on several committees.

"The advancement of women, through the work of various UN bodies and programs, continues to be the chief responsibility of your representative," said Esther Hymer, one of the federation's UN representatives, in her report.

"Full utilization of the potential of women, new opportunities for training, attainment of social and economic rights, community development, economic growth, increased trade, higher levels of living, and a decent environment in which to live and work has been added to our usual concerns."

The federation was founded 40 years ago and now represents 250,000 women in 49 countries. Decisions made at the congress are referred back to the member federations for implementation within their countries as far as possible.

During last week's sessions, delegates discussed resolutions pertaining to the UN and its committees, urging scholarship funds be established by the federations, encouraging involvement of women at policy planning levels and as members of work teams, setting up targets for women's achievements by 1980 in their own countries and advising national governments of names of highly-qualified women who should be appointed.

SHILO

ALL-SOOKE ACTION

Shiver me timbers! All-Sooke Day was marred by rain Saturday for the first time in the 36-year history of the affair. Sprinkles didn't dampen spirits, however, and in the end only the dust was kept down.

Action was plentiful as shown, top left, when Mervin Lentz of Crestwell, Oregon, powered his way to the saw bucking title with a time of 8.9 seconds.

Getting spruced up with a shave from his keen-edged axe is best all-around logger Ron Hartill of Sooke (top centre) who won a first and a number of seconds.

Top right, Centennial Sam (Art Williams of Ladysmith) puts on a colorful act with a head-stand at the top of a 100-foot pole.

TOP TOT AT SOOKE

Little Shilo Johnson of Victoria may only be 13 months old, but he knows all about show biz.

He had to impress Dr. Jack Patterson, the judge, with enough charm to crawl off with the Times Cup as best baby at All Sooke Day.

And that's just what he did.

"I'm his agent," said grandmother Mrs. Eleanor Johnson beaming proudly after the presentation. The tot's parents are Janet and Robert Johnson of 1738 Ross.

Best Sooke baby was Karen Pitre, 8-month-old daughter of Diane and Ross Pitre. She may well be starting a tradition in the family because 23 years ago her mother won the Times Cup at the festivities as best baby.

Best baby under 5½ months was Kenneth Hillicke of Sooke.

Newcombe Wins Swiss Crown

GSTADD, Switzerland (AP) — John Newcombe, Australia's three-time Wimbledon winner, defeated Tom Okker of Holland 6,2, 5-7, 1-6, 7-5, 6-3 Sunday to win the men's title of the Swiss international tennis championships.

In the fifth set, Okker broke Newcombe's service to take a 3-2 lead, but the Australian came back to win the next four games.

It was Okker's fourth consecutive loss in the Gstaad final.

HOME GARDEN

Take a Tip From Shopping Centres

By HILDA BEASTALL

Do you, as a gardener, study the massed plantings you see in and around shopping centres? If not you miss living examples which could be helpful in achieving better effects in plants you already are growing there.

Hilda

While you see occasional errors of choice in public plantings, these are becoming fewer as experience is being gained.

Less commonly seen shrubs make their appearance, and this is useful to the gardener who perhaps never makes a trip to nurseries.

The other day I saw for the first time in a shopping centre planting a shrub named Viburnum opulus nanum, which is in fact a dwarf form of the common Snow-ball bush.

This shrub was no more than a foot high but measured a good four feet across. The remarkable thing about this dwarf viburnum is the complete lack of flowering in nearly 15 years we have had one at our own place. Nor do nursery catalogs mention flowers.

Three of these shrubs grown in a group will slowly cover a triangular space of eight to ten feet. While not evergreen, the new leaves are pretty enough with their bright green lobed outlines in spring and early summer, soon assuming bronzy tinges.

For weeks in late summer and fall, the colors are russet and old rose, until finally the leaves drop and reveal a mass of crimson stems which retain this color all winter.

Another mass planting seen around a six foot Scots-pine (Pinus sylvestris) were a dozen one-foot high lavender shrubs in full bloom. We know that as the tree roots extend smaller plants will find difficulty in surviving, but their purpose will have been fulfilled.

The grey foliage of the lavenders all winter, spring and fall, with the summer months of purple flowers make the spot gay and help to prevent surface drying of the soil, for lavender are not greedy of moisture.

A retaining bank between a main road and a huge parking lot at another shopping centre was planted about eight years ago to prostrate forms of evergreen cotoneasters.

These have grown enormously, are covered with little flowers in early summer, berries for several months, then brightly tinted leaves until resuming normal coloring for winter.

Another parking lot has used masses of dwarf and medium growing berberises.

These spiny shrubs are effective in preventing pedestrians cutting through the planted strips, yet provide color of foliage or flowers through the whole year.

There is no doubt that a mass of one kind of plant has a greater effect than a single sptcimen when we think of the smaller kinds of shrubs.

Initial cost will likely be less, and maintenance is less, too; both worth more than a passing thought.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Anatole France, the 1921 winner of the Nobel prize in literature, once remarked: "The law, in its majestic equality, forbids the rich, as well as the poor, to sleep under bridges, to beg in the streets, and to steal bread." His sardonic implication was that, from a realistic viewpoint, the presumed legal equality of the rich and the poor is a joke.

At the bridge table, however, while capability determines one's destiny in the long run, there are times when there is no justice even for the rich. In my analogy, the holders of the good cards are the rich, and the holders of the bad cards are the poor.

Today's deal is an example of the rich being denied justice. Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2♠	Pass	3♣	Pass
3♠	Pass	3 NT	Pass
6♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Three of ♣.

Had West opened either a spade, a heart, or a diamond, declarer would have waltzed in with his contract. He would have won the opening lead, drawn trumps, and then cashed the diamond ace. On the king of diamonds, he subsequently would have discarded his losing heart.

But West made the killing lead of a low club. Declarer had no choice except to finesse the queen — if he won the trick with the ace, his sole entry to dummy would be removed, and he would be unable to cash the diamond king.

If, after winning the trick with his club king, East had returned either a spade, a heart, or a diamond, declarer would have fulfilled his contract, for the club ace would be preserved as an entry for the cashing of the diamond king after the ace of diamonds had been played. But East played back a club, West's jack being taken by the board's ace. The diamond king had just become uncashable.

Hoping that the six outstanding clubs were divided 3-3 (but feeling in his heart that they weren't), declarer next led the high ten of clubs, to discard thereon his losing heart. Unhappily for him, East ruffed this lead. Declarer overruffed, of couse, but eventually he lost a heart trick, to incur a one-trick set.

Thus, on this deal, the only advantage of being "rich" was that South was able to collect 100 honors, to offset a one trick vulnerable set. My condolences are hereby extended to South.

By J A H HUNTER

It was one of those hot humid afternoons, and Susan could hardly keep her eyes open as she typed. "What's the time, Tom?" she asked. "My watch says three, but it stopped."

The old man thought a moment. "You figure it out yourself," he told her. "It's just four times as many minutes after three as it's minutes before Five O'Clock."

No peeking at your own watch now! What was the time?

5 DEATHS, FUNERALS

BLOWER — Suddenly in Victoria, B.C. on July 9, 1971, Mr. George Alfred Blower, aged 64 years; born in Nottingham, England, and a resident of Victoria for the past 25 years, late residence, 383 King George Terrace. Tonight's Top Television Shows

DIANNE HEATHERINGTON. 7:30 p.m., Channel 2. Guest singer tonight is Russ Thornberry. He sings Roseline and Miss January. Dianne sings Sharlina and joins in with her back-up group, The Merry-Go-Round, or You've Made Me So Very Happy.

BEWITCHED. 7:30 p.m., Channel 6. Poor beleaguered Darrin has more troubles than enough . . . and he suspects one of his in-laws is to blame for it all. He's near a nervous collapse as the bad luck streak continues.

COMEDY THEATRE. 8 p.m., Channel 5 (rerun). "The Blue-Eyed Horse," co-starring Ernest Borgnine and Joan Blondell. A light comedy which casts Ernest Borgnine as Melvin Feebie, an exasperated husband who can't seem to keep his wife from playing the horses. She keeps losing, too. Then Ernie discovers he has magical powers. He wishes out loud that he could turn his wife — played by Miss Blondell — into a horse, and he gets his wish. Paul Lynde adds to the frivolity.

IT WAS A VERY GOOD YEAR. 8:30 p.m., Channel 4. The year in the spotlight is 1947, marking a milestone in sports history when Jackie Robinson became the first black man to be signed to a major league baseball contract. Topics of conversation included the nation's post-war recession, flying saucers and the first nationwide telephone strike. Mel Torme helps the viewers recall those days.

REALITIES: 9 p.m., Channel 9 (rerun). Tocqueville's America. The prophetic warnings of a young French aristocrat and writer, Alexis de Tocqueville, uncannily return in a haunting aura as they are reviewed by a distinguished panel. The program originally was aired more than a year ago and included the observations of the late Senator Everett Dirksen, and former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, as well as Sen. Hugh Scott and Sen. Vance Hartke. Tocqueville was at once struck with admiration for the American way, and concern for its consequences. Well worth seeing again.

WORLD PREMIERE MOVIE. 9 p.m., Channel 5 (rerun). "City Beneath the Sea." Another of writer Irwin Allen's futuristic designs about life in another world. This one is a city called Pacifica, located 12,000 feet below the surface of the Pacific Ocean and inhabited by 2,000 residents, including marine scientists, navy personnel, aquanauts and their families. Stuart Whitman portrays a retired admiral ordered by the president (Richard Basehart) to transport the country's nuclear and gold supply to Pacifica. But the undersea community's residents bitterly oppose the project. Rosemary Forsyth and Robert Wagner are co-starred.

MONDAY NIGHT MOVIE. 9 p.m., Channel 4. "Weekend at Dunkirk," starring Jean-Paul Belmondo and Catherine Spaak. Four French soldiers, uncertain about their fate during the bombardment and entrapment at Dunkirk, try to plot their future anyway, hopeful that the British evacuation will save them. But even in war, for a Frenchman there is toujour l'amour and Belmondo meets and falls in love with Miss Spaak as bombs fall all around them.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Miss Marie Welsh of Des Moines, Iowa, just sent me several folders telling about a type of education for the deaf that interests me much — called the "total communication program." I have often heard discussed the problem of whether a deaf child should be taught to communicate only with his fingers or only by learning to read lips.

★ ★ ★

David M. Denton, superintendent of the Maryland School for the Deaf, and other experts in teaching deaf youngsters, feel that a deaf child should learn to use all forms of communication available to develop language competence. This includes "child-devised gestures, speech, formal signs, finger spelling, speechreading, reading and writing. Every deaf child also should be provided the opportunity to learn to use any remnant of residual hearing he may have by employing the best possible electronic equipment for amplifying sound."

I see, from the pamphlets and articles I have on my desk, that there are several schools in which the total communication approach is stressed. Dr. Richard G. Brill, superintendent of the California School for the Deaf, in Riverside, says that in his school they have been teaching classes of children from ages 3 to 5, and have been teaching them signs, and the finger spelling as well as speechreading and word recognition from the manuscript form.

"We find some 3-year-olds have developed as many as 300 usuable concepts manually, while the typical number for a child using exclusively oral means is likely to be about 200 in the same period of time . . . It seems logical then, to use every channel and every vehicle possible to get all this mass of information and language into the child, so that the teacher will have the opportunity to draw it out again in different forms and in the educative process teach the child to think. This means saturation with total communication."

★ ★ ★

Dr. Brill also points out that a child 4 years old who can hear has perhaps 2,000-3,000 words in his vocabulary, and he can use them in sentences to express many ideas, but the typical deaf child of the same age who must depend entirely on oral communication has only a few words at his command, and rarely can he use these words with much variety or effectiveness. As Dr. Brill says, "Communication is not speech or speechreading alone. It is not vocabulary building or word recognition alone. Communication is the person's ability to use his language for expressing ideas, needs, and feelings."

$98 BILLION COST OF VIET NAM WAR

WASHINGTON (AP) — The war in South Vietnam is estimated to have cost $98 billion—$490 for every American man, woman and child—and Senator J. W. Fulbright said Saturday the human and material costs may be "seriously undermining democracy in the United States."

The report put the total budgeted cost of the war at about $120 billion, or $600 per capita. The difference represents spending that probably would have occurred anyhow.

U.S. GENERAL LOSES COMMAND

SAIGON (AP) — Maj.-Gen. James L. Baldwin has been relieved of command of the Americal Division, and military sources suggested today that it was because of the attack on Fire Base Mary Ann in which 33 Americans were killed and 76 were wounded.

An official statement said Baldwin is "being reassigned by the department of the army," and a spokesman for the U.S. command refused to comment further.

However, other military sources said there were "unusual circumstances" surrounding Baldwin's replacement and suggested that it was the outcome of the investigation into the disastrous attack March 28 by North Vietnamese sappers on Fire Base Mary Ann, a battalion headquarters base of the Americal Division's 196th Infantry Brigade 25 miles west of Chu Lai.

The toll was the highest of any such attack on a U.S. base in the war. Some officers and men claimed that the base's defences were lax and the troops were not prepared for an attack. The Americans were about to turn over the base to the South Vietnamese.

Maj.-Gen. Frederick J. Kroesen, who had been assistant chief of staff for operations at the U.S. command in Saigon, took command of the division in Chu Lai Friday, while Baldwin was in the United States on leave.

Rummage Sale Nets $186 For Refugees

Pakistan refugees will get $186 worth of food, medical supplies and blankets, from a basement rummage sale at 1060 Burdett on Saturday.

Kathleen Ruff, president of Voice of Women which sponsored the sale, said the sale gave people a chance to clear up the junk in their basements as well as help the needy.

The response was good, she said.

"A tall-ho driver who was passing by, pulled in. He bought a couple of oil paintings while a wagonful of his customers sat and waited. Those tourists must have thought that Victoria is a really weird place."

German Topples Distaff Record

STUTTGART, Germany (AP) — Hildegard Janze-Falck of West Germany set a world record for the women's 800 metres Sunday with a time of one minute 58.3 seconds in the German track and field championships.

Vera Nikalic of Yugoslavia had held the record at 2:00.5 and Ann Parker of Great Britain had a listed mark of 2:01.1.

LONDON — Lord Snowdon was involved in a wine-throwing incident after he was refused permission to dance with a countess at a party he was attending with Princess Margaret, witnesses said Sunday. People who were at the Mayfair party, at which food millionaire Jack Heinz and his wife were hosts, said Peter Cazalet, 64-year-old trainer of the Queen's horses, was dancing with the Countess of Westmoreland, a 42-year-old beauty. Lord Snowden moved to cut in and Cazalet snapped: "This is not America." Snowden then threw a glass of wine over Cazalet's shirt front but the dance went on.

CAGLIARI, Sardinia — Livio Melis, 32-year-old Cagliari clothing shop owner, testified in court that his wife made him wear a home-made chastity belt every time he left the house. After his testimony the court found him not guilty of charges filed by his wife that he beat her continually and treated her with disrespect.

DAUGHTER DAWN, BILLIE AND WIFE
. . . leaving La Tuna federal prison

EL PASO — Billie Sol Estes left federal prison early today, parolled after serving six years of a 15-year term. He had been convicted of mail fraud charges after his non-existent West Texas fertilizer tank empire collapsed in a national scandal nine years ago. Adhering to his plan for no fanfare, the former big dealer quickly stepped into the back seat of a waiting car, then led reporters on a high-speed chase through El Paso, losing them. Estes, 46, said he will live with his wife and family in Abilene and work on a farm owned by a brother, John Estes.

SYDNEY, Australia — Sidewalks in the suburban Bankstown shopping centre here no longer will be swept. Instead, they'll be washed and perfumed. "We want something with a pleasant, refreshing fragrance," Bankstown health inspector H. C. Hunt told reporters today. His department is considering such perfumes as honronia, rosewater and pine to add to water used in the daily sidewalk rinse.

SPRINGHILL, N.S. — An audience estimated by civic officials at up to 20,000 listened Saturday night as Canada's top female vocalist Anne Murray performed at an outdoor concert here. It was the final day of a four-day "old home week" in this Cumberland mining community honoring the Springhill-born singer who won a gold record for selling one million copies of Snowbird.

TILLSONBURG, Ont. — George Sarson broke the world record for the number of parachute jumps made in 24 hours, making 210 jumps from midnight Friday night to 11 p.m. Saturday and bettering the old record of 200 set by Steve Sutton of Toronto.

Mayor Pushes Tax Relief For Elderly

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis has written all Social Credit members of the legislature asking them to consider some form of tax relief for elderly house owners.

He said discussions with other municipal officials, "suggest" increasing property taxes are proving a hardship for older homeowners in many parts of B.C.

"Some form of tax increase deferral is but one area which merits consideration. A supplementary homeowner grant for those over 65 years of age is another. Safeguards with respect to eligibility and length of time during which a home must be owned and occupied by a senior citizen could be established with relative ease.

"I am taking the liberty of forwarding this letter to each government member of the provincial legislature, respectfully requesting that he or she carefully consider the question and review it with municipal representatives in his own community.

"This form of tax relief can be granted only through provincial legislation. I remain most hopeful that the 1972 legislative session will be remembered as the one which finally recognized the problem and acted to correct it," Curtis said.

BBC to Show Gray Film

A film on B.C. by Victoria film-maker Wilf Gray will be shown in color by the British Broadcasting Corp. July 18.

The Last Frontier, a one-hour production, includes some natural and human history of this province, as well as a look at how people live today.

The film is to be shown as part of the BBC 2 series The World Around Us.

Cable Firm Gets Okay

Davin Enterprises Ltd., has been granted a licence renewal to Sept. 30 of next year for its Saanich cable television system, it was announced today in Ottawa.

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission said a dispute among Davin shareholders is affecting management of the system. The commission expected the dispute would be resolved so that the system would be capably managed.

In Victoria, Davin co-owners Dave Paterson and Vince Mielen said today arrangements have been made for Tele-Tech Services Ltd., of which Mielen is part-owner, to purchase Paterson's shares. Approval would be sought for this from the CRTC, they said.

Mielen said the system now serves about 300 houses in Saanich, west of Patricia Bay Highway and roughly north of Judah. He said plans envisage adding 1,000 subscribers in six months.

Joker's Note Forces Jet To Land

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — In what an airline spokesman called "a horrible practical joke," a TWA jetliner bound for Washington with 135 passengers was forced into making an emergency landing Sunday by a hijack note threatening to blow up the plane.

"The whole thing was a complete hoax," said the spokesman for Trans World Airlines after Shannon police and security men found no explosives or weapons in a search of the Boeing 707 and its passengers.

The note was discovered in a toilet compartment just after the plane left London with two U.S. marshals riding as guards. The message said "desperate men" aboard would blow up the plane unless they were flown to Algiers, Cairo and Hanoi.

The pilot, Capt. Roland Smith, decided to land at Shannon for a search. The big jet circled the airport for an hour dumping fuel while ambulances and fire units stood by on the ground.

The airliner eventually took off for Washington but an elderly couple refused to continue the trip.

Police arrested no one and said they had no indication who left the note.

Aussie Retains Tennis Title

NEWPORT, Wales (AP) — Ken Rosewall of Australia defeated Roger Taylor of England 6-1, 9-8 Saturday to win $3,600 and retain the men's singles title in the Green Shield tennis championships.

Virginia Wade of Britain won the women's title Friday.

MARCH FUNDS LAGGING

In the two months since the Miles for Millions march $55,581 has been collected, acting chairman Bob Ballam said tolay.

Ballam said it's estimated about $80,000 was pledged and that most of the money will be in by the end of the summer.

He said the fact school is out means children who took part in the march aren't being reminded by teachers to get their money in.

Proceeds can be mailed or delivered to the Miles for Millions office in the student Union Building at the University of Victoria, or deposited at any chartered bank in Victoria. Some banks may not now be accepting pledge money, Ballam said.

British Soldier Slain

BELFAST (CP)—Gunmen fired a volley of shots from a speeding car today as Northern Ireland's Orangemen celebrated 50 years of Protestant rule. A British soldier fell dead, three bullets in the back.

The soldier was on sentry duty in the Roman Catholic Falls Road area.

During the night, 10 bombs exploded in Northern Ireland by the Orangemen defying threats of terrorism began marching at daybreak in celebration of their ancestors' victory over the Catholics 281 years ago. The parades passed quietly.

Twenty thousand troops and police kept an iron security guard on the massive Orange Order festivities after a night of bombs and shooting in which nine civilians were wounded.

Security chiefs said parades in Belfast and other centres were perhaps slightly larger than last year, with an estimated total of 400 bands and more than 100,000 marchers on the routes.

Outgoing marches from town centres to fields and parks passed quietly. Troops took a rest before coming back to full alert in the event, when the Orangemen and their families headed home from a day of speech-making, drinking, picnics and children's sports.

The bombs began going off shortly after midnight Sunday night while thousands of Protestants were dancing around bonfires to celebrate the anniversary.

Four blasts shattered windows along Royal Avenue, Belfast's main street. The Protestants celebrating "the glorious 12th" in other parts of the capital ran for shelter and British troops moved in with armored cars.

Another bomb damaged a Belfast power station.

Seven persons were wounded by the blasts but police said their injuries were light. Six suspects were arrested.

BLAME IRA

Two more bombs damaged an empty Protestant hall and a power station in Irvinestown, 80 miles away. Two exploded in Pomeroy to the west and another went off in Newry near the border with the Irish Republic to the south.

Police and the British Army said the blasts were set by the outlawed Irish Republican Army, trying to provoke violence during the traditional celebration today. It marks the defeat of Catholic King James II by Protestant King William in the Battle of the Boyne in 1690.

FAIR WEATHER that delighted Victorians frustrated the 43 crews competing in the Thunderbird world championships which began off Victoria today. At start time for the first race the sailors were still waiting for the promised fresh westerlies forecast by the weather office. (James A. McVie photo.) See story on Page 2.

Provinces Told To Increase Tax

18-YEAR-OLDS GET VOTE IN ONTARIO

TORONTO (CP)—Eighteen-year-olds will be able to vote in the next Ontario provincial and municipal elections, Premier William Davis announced today.

The reduction of the "age of accountability" to 18 from 21 also will give the young people the right to hold elective office and to sit on juries, the right to consume alcoholic beverages and the right to undertake legal and financial contracts.

Higher Exemptions Mean Less Money

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson told the provinces today they will have to raise their personal income tax rates in order to stay where they now are in the race for the taxpayer's dollar.

Under the new tax plan he proposed in his June 18 budget, larger personal exemptions and lower tax rates will be introduced by the federal government.

Narrows Over-All Tax Base

This considerably narrows the over-all tax base, and the 28per-cent provincial tax that most provinces now charge will give them less money. Some provinces now charge more than 28 per cent, running up to 39 per cent in Manitoba.

Mr. Benson told a closed-door federal-provincial conference that in order to obtain the same share of income tax revenues, the 28-per-cent figure will have to be raised to 30 per cent. The top rate will have to go up to 42 per cent.

Mr. Benson said that while these higher rates will have to be written into provincial tax law to make it harmonize with the new federal income tax structure, they won't mean that taxpayers will have to pay out more or less in dollars.

Guarantee Same Revenues

In fact, he promised the provinces that if they bring their tax laws into harmony with the new federal plan, he will guarantee that they will receive the same revenues in 1972, 1973 and 1974 as they would receive if the old federal law was continued.

Manitoba immediately asked for a longer guarantee than three years. It said it stood to lose $50 million in five years.

Finance Minister Raymond Garneau of Quebec told the conference, moreover, that his advisers calculate the new rates would still yield the provinces "appreciably lower revenue." He said he would like to compare notes with Ottawa experts on their calculations.

Quebec is a special case, since it has opted out of most federal-provincial shared cost programs and administers its own provincial income tax. Mr. Benson welcomed an earlier statement by Mr. Garneau that the two might get together and harmonize their tax plans.

A. O. Aalborg, provincial treasurer of Alberta, released at the conference a letter to Mr. Benson objecting to the federal plan to tax capital gains. It was inconsistent, he said, with Canada's need to have more Canadians invest in Canadian development.

Ontario Also Voices Objection

Darcy McKeough, provincial treasurer of Ontario, said his experts haven't had time yet to digest the whole of the new tax plan, but he said the incentives for small business "is not as generous as we had hoped and believed."

Mr. McKeough, near the top of the speakers list for the opening session of the two-day conference, led other provincial finance ministers in criticizing as premature the federal government's withdrawal of the estate tax next Jan. 1.

British Columbia is being represented at the conference by Gerald Bryson, deputy finance minister. Premier Bennett last week declined to release details of British Columbia's presentation to the conference.

'Withdraw Tax Gradually'

At least two provincial leaders—NDP Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan, and NDP Finance Minister Saul Cherniak of Manitoba—said they would object to Mr. Benson's withdrawal of the federal estate and gift tax next Jan. 1. They want the tax withdrawn gradually, over a period of years, since they get 75 per cent of the revenues from it in their provinces.

He listed the following new rates which would have to be applied by each province just to get the same revenues, with the existing rates in percentages of the federal tax for comparison:

Newfoundland 35.5-33; Nova Scotia 30-28; Prince Edward Island 35.5-33; New Brunswick 41-38; Ontario 30-28; Manitoba 42.339; Saskatchewan 36.5-34; Alberta 35.5-33; British Columbia 30-28.

Pay Cuts Forced On M-B's Top 60

VANCOUVER (CP) — The top 60 executives of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., Canada's largest forestry company, have taken pay cuts of up to 10 per cent for the balance of 1971, Chairman J. V. Clyne said Sunday night.

"I cut everybody over $50,000 by 10 per cent and everybody in the $35,000 to $50,000 bracket by five per cent, effective July 1, to the end of the year," Mr. Clyne said in an interview, "and that includes my pay.

"It was important morally that this be done. I felt that when the shareholders were having their dividends cut that the management should do the same in the way of salaries.

"I don't want to give the impression that we are scared about the future because that isn't so. We are succeeding in holding our own. We have always run a tight ship; we don't have any superficiality."

In addition, the Vancouver-based company has eliminated its central engineering department of 25 persons, although the net layoffs from this move are not expected to be more than four.

FACING PROBLEMS

The pay cuts at MacMillan Bloedel are just part of a general tightening among the management and salaried staffs of British Columbia's major forest firms as they face continuing market problems for their products and declining profits.

Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd., with chronic financial problems over a number of years, has reduced its salaried personnel by 15 per cent in all operations during the last four weeks. An estimate of the number of people involved was not available Sunday night.

At least two other companies have allowed attrition to reduce administrative staff. Several other firms said that while there had been no pay of staff cuts that "things are very tight."

At Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., there were a small number of staff cuts in the spring but company officials could not say how many. In many cases, it meant that planned and even authorized additions to staffs, both hourly and salaried, were not made.

Richard C. Nelson, Crown Zellerbach executive vice-president, said the company had "taken a good hard look and we eliminated some positions—we were able to do a great deal of this by attrition."

A spokesman for B.C. Forest Products Ltd. said administrative jobs had been reduced by 20 through attrition. It is understood there have been no staff or pay cuts at Canadian Forest Products Ltd.

NEWS BRIEFS

Charges Faced

ANCHORAGE — Mike Haffenden of Vancouver, skipper of the 30-foot fishing vessel "All Star" today faced charges of violating American territorial waters. The craft was seized Friday while fishing near Coronation Island.

Body Recovered

NELSON B.C. (CP) — Divers recovered the body today of one of two residents of a commune who drowned Sunday in Slocan Lake in southeastern British Columbia. A team of divers found the body of Michael Gregory Peck, 24, in above 30 feet of water about 10 feet from shore. (See earlier story Page 3.)

Passenger Killed

HAVANA (Reuter) — A passenger was killed and three persons — including the two hijackers — were injured when a grenade exploded during an attempt to hijack a Cuban airliner, Cuba radio reported today.

Quake Hits Turkey

ANKARA (AP) — Several persons were injured and buildings were destroyed when an earthquake struck southeast Turkey late Sunday night, officials reported here today.

Firing Squad Kills Moroccan Rebels

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — The leaders of the attempt to overthrow King Hassan II were executed by firing squad at dawn today, Moroccan sources reported.

They said three generals and other officers were shot after giving authorities details of their plot.

The government withheld an announcement of the executions but a communique was expected later in the day.

It was not known whether the dozen or so senior officers said to have been involved in the plot all were executed.

King Hassan told a news conference Sunday that the officers who led the bloody military coup would all be dead by sundown tonight. The 42-year-old monarch named eight principal plotters including four generals and three colonels.

Hassan said Gen. Mohamed Medboun, the head of his personal military staff, and three other generals named Mustapha, Bougrine and Hambou used 1,400 ignorant, drug-crazed cadets in an abortive attempt to liquidate him and the entire leadership of his regime.

Medbouh was accidentally killed by his own men during the attack at the king's summer palace on the Atlantic, 15 miles south of Rabat.

At least 30 of the guests at the king's 42nd birthday party were killed, including the country's only field marshal, three generals, the minister of tourism, the president of the Supreme Court, Belgian Ambassador Marcel Duprat, and other officers and officials.

About 150 rebels died in a seven-hour battle for the Rabat radio station. The insurgents seized the radio, announced the king's death and proclaimed a revolutionary republic. But forces loyal to the king finally overcame the rebellion.

The four rebel generals named by the king were not known to have any leftist affiliations. Medbouh became Hassan's closest military adviser in 1963, when he betrayed a plot in which he said he pretended to take part.

BLUMSCHEIN SHARES AIR RACE PRIZE

The winner of the London to Victoria Centennial air race, Joe Blumschein of Germany, will donate $5,000 of his $60,000 winnings to be distributed "at the discretion" of Premier Bennett and Prime Minister Trudeau.

"No matter how prosperous a nation is, there are always still people who need help," he said Saturday night after receiving two trophies and cheques totalling $60,000.

Heroin Crisis Not Doctors Fault: MD

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark displayed a "lack of knowledge" about how doctors practise medicine when he attacked them for their reluctance to treat heroin addicts, Dr. W. G. McClure said today.

McClure, registrar of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in B.C., was commenting on weekend criticism by Loffmark of doctors "who refuse to treat heroin addicts."

Loffmark said doctors "are not doing their public duty" and that "they don't like to have them (addicts) around their offices."

The minister was responding to an earlier complaint by McClure that the provincial government has been doing nothing to meet a growing heroin addiction crisis in B.C.

McClure said today he doesn't want to get into a running public battle with Loffmark but said the minister "betrays a lack of knowledge about how doctors practise."

"The point I have tried to make is that these people can't be treated like an ordinary patient," McClure said. Many doctors who have tried treating addicts on their own have had "nothing but grief," including difficulties with narcotics control agencies when addicts exploit a number of doctors to get heavy drug prescriptions.

PROPER SUPPORT

Until a central registry is established with proper support programs on a provincial basis, doctors will be frustrated in efforts to treat addicts, McClure said.

Dr. Scott Wallace, Social Credit MLA for Oak Bay, said the necessity of seeing an addict every day would "completely disorganize" a general practitioner's practise.

In addition, he said, treatment of addicts is a highly-skilled process involving counselling and other specialized forms of treatment for which most doctors have not been trained.

The special purpose clinic approach is needed in treating addicts, Wallace said.

WALKOUT FACES AIRLINE

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada faces a possible shutdown in the near future if its mechanics and ground personnel vote tonight for a study session.

George Daley, vice-president of the Montreal local of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, said today it is "almost certain" that members will vote for a study session.

The starting time and duration of such a walkout would be decided at the meeting beginning at 8 p.m., he said.

Similar meetings were to be held tonight in Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Meanwhile, Air Canada said it would continue normal operations as long as possible.

Victoria airport will not be affected at this stage, a spokesman said.

Debate Resumes

QUEBEC (CP) — The national assembly was to resume debate today on the government's James Bay development legislation and Premier Robert Bourassa has vowed to continue legislature sitting until the bill is adopted.

BAD WEATHER TO END (MAYBE)

The weather pattern which has brought unsummery cloud and cool temperatures to Victoria has broken, giving grounds for cautious optimism, the weatherman said today.

"The situation is easing, but there's still an awful lot of dirty weather over B.C. and I'm a little leery about the whole thing," said Allan McQuarrie of the dominion weather office.

A huge low-pressure trough stretching in an east-west line over southern Vancouver Island has split, carrying rain storms east to the Prairies and west over the Pacific.

Despite this first break in the stubborn over-all pattern, more cloud is expected Tuesday and Wednesday. It was expected to be clear tonight.

MORE PEOPLE AND LESS FOOD

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — The world population will double by the year 2004 at the present rate of growth yet food production has already declined on a per capita basis, the United Nations reported Sunday.

The population total for mid-1969 was put at 3.561 billion. This represented a two-per-cent growth rate which would take the figure to seven billion by the end of this century.

WILSON GETS SUPPORT IN OPPOSING ECM BID

Times News Serives

LONDON — Opposition Leader Harold Wilson now has a majority in his "shadow cabinet" opposed to Britain entering the Common Market on the present terms, political commentators reported during the weekend.

The development has been brought about by a change of opinion by two leading members, said David Wood, political correspondent of The Times. They are Denis Healey, shadow foreign secretary, and Anthony Crosland, shadow minister for the environment.

Healey based his change of view on Wilson's allegation that the government's 20,000-word white paper suppressed the total cost of entry, particularly in regard to food, The Times said.

Crosland was seen as supporting Wilson's insistence on the importance of keeping the Labor party united.

Healey disclosed in a television interview Sunday night that he has swung a long way since the white paper was published last Wednesday.

An another market development, Prime Minister Heath said he does not believe that British entry will drive Canada deeper into the United States orbit.

He told reporters the impression he got from talks with Prime Minister Trudeau is that Ottawa will seek widest international relations with China, Soviet Union and others.

SWEDISH STYLE

A Sex Education For Our Minister

The hope that this province might eventually catch up with much of the rest of the civilized world in educating children to cope intelligently with the most vital function of their adult lives would appear to have died, not with a bang but a whimper. Oh, Lord! Oh, Social Credit!

While it's true that local school boards may make their own decisions on programs of sex education, it's surely a stunning triumph for Neanderthal thinking that Donald Brothers, the provincial minister of education, has dissociated the government from a planned province-wide course for elementary schools.

A fast poll of teachers and school board trustees, most of them still somewhat dazed by the minister's peremptory scrapping of the sex education section in a new course under the general title Human Life Science, finds them all but unanimous in the opinion that it is a decision Brothers made for political expediency.

Unless the Bennett government is running scared to the point of outright panic I find this hard to swallow. The teachers I've talked to are convinced that, at the outside, there are no more than two parents in every hundred who oppose the idea of an enlightened program of sex education in our schools. More often than not the objection of this insignificant minority is rooted in rigid religious concepts, parents whose children doubtless are most in need of precisely that kind of instruction.

I think a more reasonable explanation — and no idle boast — is that Brothers possesses one of the finest 19th Century minds in these parts, a distinction he nailed down not merely with the cancellation of this well-planned course, but by noises of outrage that Oak Bay High should be considering studies in political science that would include—horrors! —the reading of the works of Karl Marx, causing God knows what revolutionary ferment to start bubbling in the high-rent district.

Like his fellow Social Credit member, the adorable Agnes Kripps, who solemnly proposed in the legislature last year that the word "sex" be officially replaced by the word "Bolt" (standing discreetly for "biology on life today") one suspects that the minister of education is afflicted with the well-known ostrich complex. Just don't look — it may all go away, whatever it is: unemployment, poverty, corporate banditry, youth, sex, truth.

★ ★ ★

Nineteen years of Social Credit decision-making undoubtedly has had an anaesthetic effect on the public's capacity for reaction. In this case, sure enough, only those very close to the school system have made even a token complaint. The great body of parents who, presumably, would welcome such a course haven't so much as written a Constant Reader letter-to-the-editor.

That being the case, I see only one possible hope for us to begin catching up with more worldly parts, which means just about everywhere. What I am proposing is the sex education of Donald Brothers.

I propose that a special fund be established — to which I will gladly contribute—to send Donald to Sweden for exactly one month for the purpose of observing first-hand how, from the very first grade, students are taught the realities of sex relationships, how it has changed for the better a nation's attitudes in just one generation, how an eminently respectable, even somewhat strait-laced people, found their way to a new and honest morality through their children.

Sweden is the ideal model — as it is in labor legislation and public housing, though we mustn't expect too much in the way of Social Credit inspiration in those fields — simply because it was the first nation to accept the responsibility of the state in preparing its children for adulthood. It accepted it reluctantly, as we would, as the alternative to parental education, but it accepted it bravely, as we should, in the knowledge that parents can't or won't do the job.

It was an experimental program 15 years in the works, a program that caused a continuing rage of controversy, conflicting theories and implacable resistance from the churches. But in the years since 1956 when the courses became compulsory in every public school that hostility has all but totally disappeared. The nation today rightly prides itself on its pioneering role and gladly shows off its accomplishments to every visitor. When one of the architects of its sex education program visited Canada not long ago he put it right on the line. "We're 50 years ahead of you."

★ ★ ★

I believe that Brothers would accept that, might even become an advocate, if he were to go and see for himself. At the same time I'll concede that the experience might well provide him with some justification for his own cop-out on the grounds of parental objections or, more accurately, inertia.

The first fundamental lesson to be learned in Sweden is that only the relentless pressure of informed public opinion can bring it about. Sex education did not originate through the wisdom, courage or far-sightedness of Swedish legislators. It originated in the insistence of the people who put them into office.

The real trail-blazers were the educators, themselves, and for the most pragmatic of reasons. So many pregnant young girls were dropping out of the school system in those days before The Pill that the teachers demanded a program of sex courses simply as a means of protecting a child's right to have an education.

A majority of parents supported their stand and a significant number of students, themselves, banded together in militant, policy-making student councils, added their weight. Trade unions joined the crusade, to such an extent that they still provide the bulk of the financing for the National Association of Sex Education, a non-government body that plays an important part in sex education outside of the school system.

In retrospect, however, most Swedish educators give the real credit to the women of Sweden. Long before there was a liberation movement the wives and mothers of Sweden had launched the good fight for equality. The right of sexual freedom, of emancipation from a tyranny of ignorance, now a fait accompli in all of Scandinavia, was their single-minded aim. It began with the recognition that a full knowledge of the sexual facts of life for their sons and daughters was Square One.

Big dugout canoe rests in security of Inner Harbor

Leisurely Canoe Trip —Clear to Hawaii

A 43-year-old West Vancouver adventurer will set sail from the Inner Harbor Tuesday on what he hopes will be a 45-day solo voyage to the Hawaiian Islands in a dugout canoe.

For George Tocher the trip is more than an adventure.

He hopes to prove the theory, held by many historians, that Pacific Northwest Haida Indians travelled to Hawaii, the Easter Islands and even New Zealand in their canoes.

It's taken him 2½ years to complete his 50-foot canoe, which is from a design by the Kwakioti band.

She's made of red cedar, painstakingly whittled into shape from a tree seven feet in diameter.

•

Tocher calls her Orenda, an Iroquois word meaning in harmony with nature. "And this I'll have to be on this voyage."

He first learned the art of whittling canoes when he helped Indians with their boats during his years as a faller with a logging company.

Orenda differs from the Haida canoes which Tocher says had two hulls. She has one hull and an outrigger, filled with styrofoam for bouyancy.

There is over 45 feet of rope in each of her lashings and Tocher is under no illusions about their ability to stand up in rough weather.

"I'll probably have to redo them but I met some rough weather in Howe Sound, of all places, and the canoe rode it well."

•

Today he was loading his craft with canned goods and topping his water supply — 40 gallons contained in one-gallon strawberry syrup cans and bleach bottles.

"Some of the water tastes like strawberries but I hope the bleach ones are okay!"

One modern innovation on the unique craft is a self-steering vane, put together for Tocher by Vancouver marine architect Stan Huntingford and mechanic Bill Lee.

The craft is powered by a 16-foot-square mainsail, and a 25-horsepower outboard motor.

When he's not steering with the vane he'll use a 17-foot sweep which took him three days to make, shaped out of yellow cedar with a cherry wood handle.

George Tocher Has Theory to Prove

Wallace Hits Hospital Delay

Dr. Scott Wallace, Social Credit MLA for Oak Bay, said today he sees "no reason whatever" for any further delays in expansion of St. Joseph's Hospital.

Wallace, who sat in on a meeting last Wednesday which sought a compromise solution to lengthy delays in expanding the hospital, said it would be much cheaper to develop St. Joseph's than to build an entirely new hospital in the suburbs.

The fate of the expansion of St. Joseph's depends on Health Minister Ralph Loffmark's approval of arrangements made last week by representatives of the hospital and the city and the regional hospital board.

Loffmark, who returned to Victoria today after spending several days in the Interior, couldn't be reached for comment. His office said he was tied up with meetings.

The city's hopes of extending Belleville Street through the proposed hospital property owned by the Sisters of St. Ann has been a key problem in the issue of expanding St. Joseph's.

City council Thursday unilaterally amended an earlier agreement with the province on the extension question by requiring that technical studies should be the eventual basis for deciding whether to extend the road.

Air Race Display Closed by Thefts

Thefts from three planes in the London-Victoria air race was one reason the public didn't get a really close look at the machines at Saturday's "open house", a race official said today.

Digger Dagg, provincial liaison officer for the race, was replying to complaints that people who drove out to Victoria International Airport to see the aircraft had to look at them from behind a snow fence.

"You cannot leave the public roaming around out there without security or crews to keep an eye on things," Dagg said.

Stolen items included wing-tip generators from one plane and control locks from another. Dagg couldn't remember what was missing from the third plane.

He said visitors were allowed into the fenced-off compound from roughly 10 to 11 a.m. while crews were on hand to keep an eye on things and answer questions.

By 11, however, the crews had to leave to attend All-Sooke Day, so visitors were asked to leave. RCMP officers were on hand to gently shoo out the hangers-on, Dagg said.

About 35 of the 52 race planes were on display.

Mrs. Elizabeth Price, 2822 Craigowan, said she was able to talk to one of the pilots at the fence and that he lifted her child over the fence to sit in his plane.

She said it was "rather maddening" that other people didn't get in.

"I was sure disgusted. If that's B.C.'s centennial, then forget it."

The three top winners of the race saluted the city and the provincial government in a fly-past over the Legislative Buildings at noon Sunday as they departed Victoria.

Officials had hoped more planes would have taken part in the "thankyou" for the reception received in Victoria after the race, but most crews departed individually before-hand because of work commitments.

Meatcutters Accept Two-Year Contract

Meatcutters in Victoria and Vancouver voted overwhelmingly Sunday in favor of a new two-year contract with the major supermarkets.

The agreement, affecting about 120 employees in Victoria and 650 in Vancouver, provides wage increases of $20 a week this year and $20 a week next year for journeymen meatcutters, assistant head meatcutters and head meatcutters. Head meatcutters will get an additional $4 a week this year and $2 next year and assistant head meatcutters will get an additional $2 this year.

Meat and delicatessen clerks will get an additional $16 a week this year and $16 next year.

The old rates of pay were $182 a week for journeymen meatcutters, $192 for head meatcutters, $185 and $186 for assistant head meatcutters and $142 a week for clerks.

Meat department employees also gained a reduction of one hour, to 38 hours, in the average work week which George Johnston, representative of the Amalgamated Meatcutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, described as "the major achievement."

Full-time employees now will accumulate two hours each week and when they reach eight hours they have a day off with pay, Johnston said.

Part-time clerks who would not qualify for this will receive an additional 10 cents an hour this year and another 10 cents an hour next year, he said.

In other areas of the settlement, Johnston said the employer will pay the total cost of the dental plan which now will include orthodentistry, extending coverage to a female employee's husband as well as her children who were previously covered, additional contributions to the employer-paid pension plan, unpaid maternity leave of 11 weeks prior to birth and six weeks after, splitting health and welfare premiums 70-30 between employer and employee instead of 50-50 and severance pay.

Birds Dead From Spray?

Deaths of large numbers of swallows around lower Vancouver Island may have been caused by use of a highly-toxic mosquito pesticide, autopsies revealed today.

Rory Finnegan, a biologist with the Fish and Wildlife Branch, performed the autopsies this morning.

He said use of the substance "Baytex," a mosquito controller, could have killed the birds, large numbers of which have been reported dead on Salt Spring Island, South Pender Island, Central Saanich and the Saxe Point area of Esquimalt.

Finnegan cited two other possibilities of reasons for the deaths: an abnormal level of chlorinated hydrocarbons which would cause a mother to not pay enough attention to her young, and bacterial infection through parasites.

TRACE POSSIBLE

The autopsies were performed on two young nestlings which Finnegan said were both quite fat and showed no obvious signs of cause of death.

One bird was infested with a warble fly maggot which "wouldn't have done it any good, but would not have been fatal," Finnegan said.

He said use of Baytex could be traced through the department of agriculture, which keeps records on users, and that it might have been someone trying to get rid of mosquitoes.

Another possible cause of the deaths, he said, was the weather and a shortage of flying insects.

18-HOUR FEEDING

"Certain weather conditions do not produce enough insects," he said.

The swallows migrate to B.C. all the way from South America especially for the long hours of sunlight and the supply of insects, and if these conditions do not exist, "they may as well stay down in South America."

"The young have to be fed for 18 yours a day," he added, so the amount of insects available is important.

He said samples were being sent to different laboratories to determine pesticide levels in the dead birds and exact levels of chlorinated hydrocarbons, and a check was being made with the agriculture department about the Baytex.

A Central Saanich woman has reported more dead swallows. Mrs. Marilyn Ross, 2351 Styan Road, said a mother bird and her five nestlings were healthy Saturday, but were dead by Sunday.

Finnegan said other types of birds had been reported dead as well. Seven pigeon guillemots, a type of sea bird which, feeds on fish and shrimp, were found on the Chain Islands off Oak Bay. All were dead for no apparent reasons.

One had been found sitting dead on its nest, he said, and the six others were around logs in the area.

PANIC

Finnegan said the birds deaths "may have been a natural phenomenon, which happens occasionally in the bird world. Populations get too high, and they fall."

"It's all very unfortunate, and very sad, but it happens."

TO APPLY FOR LANDED IMMIGRANT STATUS

More Ups, Downs for Hannagan

Roger Hannagan's girls have scattered, but the pugilistic pilot is determined to stay in the Victoria area as a Canadian.

Hannagan's navigator, Francine Johnson, was en route home to Montreal this afternoon via commercial airline.

She left Quebec City with the 22-year-old pilot last Sunday after he was disqualified from the London-Victoria air race following a fist-swinging dispute with his regular co-pilot.

Hannagan's girl, Toots Johnson, is waiting to be picked up by him in Seattle on Tuesday.

The 6-foot-6 aviator, with tape holding on the malfunctioning door which started the row with his co-pilot, will carry on from Seattle to return the plane to its owner in Portland Tuesday.

But before he leaves Victoria, Hannagan will apply for landed immigrant status at the immigration office and as soon as he tidies up his affairs in Portland, he'll be back here pounding the pavement in search of a job in commercial aviation.

•

There are indications that a welcoming committee will be on hand when Hannagan and Toots touch down in Oregon.

Portland television newsmen report a barrage of calls asking when the pilot will be landing, and say they will be there to record the event.

Hannagan said the co-pilot with whom he had his now-famous fisticuffs in Scotland, osteopath Dr. Lawrence Dennis, has said he "wants to wash his hands of the whole episode."

For Hannagan, the long saga ends when he turns over the plane to its owner, a Portland physician, Tuesday.

In a rare show of sentiment Friday, Hannagan stood in front of his fellow competitors in the race and apologized, tears in his eyes, his voice breaking.

"I didn't mean to steal the show from all of you," Hannagan said. "If I've offended anyone, I'm sorry."

He was replying to an attack moments earlier at a press conference by Alberta competitor H. W. Aycock. After assailing the press for "poor coverage" of the race, Aycock launched into personal criticism of Hannagan.

•

Here's a man who pulls a fool's stunt in Scotland . . . then he comes over here (to Canada) and picks up some girl in Quebec City and everyone thinks he's a hero."

Although Aycock later shook hands and said he harbored no ill will, Hannagan was visibly hurt by the attack.

He explained that he had spent six months modifying his aircraft and otherwise preparing for the race, and was not about to discontinue because of "an argument."

Then, in a move that surprised even race organizers, Air Marshall Clair Annis, president of the Air Race Corporation, praised Hannagan for getting publicity and making the world aware of the race.

Hannagan also was defended by Lillooet pilot Ken Akers, who said he had flown much of the race near Hannagan and found him to be "a friendly person and a good pilot. I think he was just caught in bad circumstances.

"It could have been any one of us. In a case like that, you just have to make the best of it. He did finish the race. He's a damn good pilot."

MORE MONEY NEEDED

Raise Taxes, Provinces Told

Higher Exemptions Mean Less Money

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson told the provinces today they will have to raise their personal income tax rates in order to stay where they now are in the race for the taxpayer's dollar.

Under the new tax plan he proposed in his June 18 budget, larger personal exemptions and lower tax rates will be introduced by the federal government.

Narrows Over-All Tax Base

This considerably narrows the over-all tax base, and the 28 per-cent provincial tax that most provinces now charge will give them less money. Some provinces now charge more than 28 per cent, running up to 39 per cent in Manitoba.

Mr. Benson told a closed-door federal-provincial conference that in order to obtain the same share of income tax revenues, the 28-per-cent figure will have to be raised to 30 per cent. The top rate will have to go up to 42 per cent.

Mr. Benson said that while these higher rates will have to be written into provincial tax law to make it harmonize with the new federal income tax structure, they won't mean that taxpayers will have to pay out more or less in dollars.

Guarantee Same Revenues

In fact, he promised the provinces that if they bring their tax laws into harmony with the new federal plan, he will guarantee that they will receive the same revenues in 1972, 1973 and 1974 as they would receive if the old federal law was continued.

Manitoba immediately asked for a longer guarantee than three years. It said it stood to lose $50 million in five years.

Finance Minister Raymond Garneau of Quebec told the conference, moreover, that his advisers calculate the new rates would still yield the provinces "appreciably lower revenue." He said he would like to compare notes with Ottawa experts on their calculations.

Quebec is a special case, since it has opted out of most federal-provincial shared cost programs and administers its own provincial income tax. Mr. Benson welcomed an earlier statement by Mr. Garneau that the two might get together and harmonize their tax plans.

A. O. Aalborg, provincial treasurer of Alberta, released at the conference a letter to Mr. Benson objecting to the federal plan to tax capital gains. It was inconsistent, he said, with Canada's need to have more Canadians invest in Canadian development.

Ontario Also Voices Objection

Darcy McKeough, provincial treasurer of Ontario, said his experts haven't had time yet to digest the whole of the new tax plan, but he said the incentives for small business "is not as generous as we had hoped and believed."

Mr. McKeough, near the top of the speakers list for the opening session of the two-day conference, led other provincial finance ministers in criticizing as premature the federal government's withdrawal of the estate tax.

British Columbia is being represented at the conference by Gerald Bryson, deputy finance minister. Premier Bennett last week declined to release details of British Columbia's presentation to the conference.

'Withdraw Tax Gradually'

At least two provincial leaders—NDP Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan, and NDP Finance Minister Saul Cherniak of Manitoba—said they would object to Mr. Benson's withdrawal of the federal estate and gift tax next Jan. 1. They want the tax withdrawn gradually, over a period of years, since they get 75 per cent of the revenues from it in their provinces.

Benson listed the following new rates which would have to be applied by each province just to get the same revenues, with the existing rates, in percentages of the federal tax for comparison:

Newfoundland 35.5-33; Nova Scotia 30-28; Prince Edward Island 35.5-33; New Brunswick 41-38; Ontario 30-28; Manitoba 42-33.9; Saskatchewan 36.5-34; Alberta 35.5-33; British Columbia 30-28.

British Soldier Slain

BELFAST (CP)—Gunmen fired a volley of shots from a speeding car today as Northern Ireland's Orangemen celebrated 50 years of Protestant rule. A British soldier fell dead, three bullets in the back.

The soldier was on sentry duty in the Roman Catholic Falls Road area.

During the night, 10 bombs exploded in Northern Ireland by the Orangemen defying threats of terrorism began marching at daybreak in celebration of their ancestors' victory over the Catholics 281 years ago. The parades passed quietly.

Twenty thousand troops and police kept an iron security guard on the massive Orange Order festivities after a night of bombs and shooting in which nine civilians were wounded.

Security chiefs said parades in Belfast and other centres were perhaps slightly larger than last year, with an estimated total of 400 bands and more than 100,000 marchers on the routes.

Outgoing marches from town centres to fields and parks passed quietly. Troops took a rest before coming back to full alert in the event, when the Orangemen and their families headed home from a day of speech-making, drinking, picnics and children's sports.

The bombs began going off shortly after midnight Sunday night while thousands of Protestants were dancing around bonfires to celebrate the anniversary.

Four blasts shattered windows along Royal Avenue, Belfast's main street. The Protestants celebrating "the glorious 12th" in other parts of the capital ran for shelter and British troops moved in with armored cars.

Another bomb damaged a Belfast power station.

Seven persons were wounded by the blasts but police said their injuries were light. Six suspects were arrested.

BLAME IRA

Two more bombs damaged an empty Protestant hall and a power station in Irvinestown, 80 miles away. Two exploded in Pomeroy to the west and another went off in Newry near the border with the Irish Republic to the south.

Police and the British Army said the blasts were set by the outlawed Irish Republican Army, trying to provoke violence during the traditional celebration today. It marks the defeat of Catholic King James II by Protestant King William in the Battle of the Boyne in 1690.

FAIR WEATHER that delighted Victorians frustrated the 43 crews competing in the Thunderbird world championships which began off Victoria today. At start time for the first race the sailors were still waiting for the promised fresh westerlies forecast by the weather office. See story on Page 2. (James A. McVie photo.)

Firing Squad Kills Moroccan Rebels

RABAT, Morocco (AP) — The leaders of the attempt to overthrow King Hassan II were executed by firing squad at dawn today, Moroccan sources reported.

They said three generals and other officers were shot after giving authorities details of their plot.

It was not known whether the dozen or so senior officers said to have been involved in the plot all were executed.

King Hassan told a news conference Sunday that the officers who led the bloody military coup would all be dead by sundown tonight. The 42-year-old monarch named eight principal plotters including four generals and three colonels.

Hassan said Gen. Mohamed Medboun, the head of his personal military staff, and three other generals named Mustapha, Bougrine and Hamlou used 1,400 ignorant, drug-crazed cadets in an abortive attempt to liquidate him and the entire leadership of his regime.

Medbouh was accidentally killed by his own men during the attack at the king's summer palace on the Atlantic, 15 miles south of Rabat.

At least 30 of the guests at the king's 42nd birthday party were killed, including the country's only field marshal, three generals, the minister of tourism, the president of the Supreme Court, Belgian Ambassador Marcel Duprat, and other officers and officials.

About 150 rebels died in a seven-hour battle for the Rabat radio station. The insurgents seized the radio, announced the king's death and proclaimed a revolutionary republic. But forces loyal to the king finally overcame the rebellion.

The four rebel generals named by the king were not known to have any leftist affiliations. Medbouh became Hassan's closest military adviser in 1963, when he betrayed a plot in which he said he pretended to take part.

BLUMSCHEIN SHARES AIR RACE PRIZE

The winner of the London to Victoria Centennial air race, Joe Blumschein of Germany, will donate $5,000 of his $60,000 winnings to be distributed "at the discretion" of Premier Bennett and Prime Minister Trudeau.

"No matter how prosperous a nation is, there are always still people who need help," he said Saturday night after receiving two trophies and cheques totalling $60,000.

Heroin Crisis Not Doctors Fault: MD

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark displayed a "lack of knowledge" about how doctors practise medicine when he attacked them for their reluctance to treat heroin addicts, Dr. W. G. McClure said today.

McClure, registrar of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in B.C., was commenting on weekend criticism by Loffmark of doctors "who refuse to treat heroin addicts."

Loffmark said doctors "are not doing their public duty" and that "they don't like to have them (addicts) around their offices."

The minister was responding to an earlier complaint by McClure that the provincial government has been doing nothing to meet a growing heroin addiction crisis in B.C.

McClure said today he doesn't want to get into a running public battle with Loffmark but said the minister "betrays a lack of knowledge about how doctors practise."

"The point I have tried to make is that these people can't be treated like an ordinary patient," McClure said. Many doctors who have tried treating addicts on their own have had "nothing but grief," including difficulties with narcotics control agencies when addicts exploit a number of doctors to get heavy drug prescriptions.

PROPER SUPPORT

Until a central registry is established with proper support programs on a provincial basis, doctors will be frustrated in efforts to treat addicts, McClure said.

The special purpose clinic approach is needed in treating addicts, Wallace said.

BAD WEATHER TO END (MAYBE)

The weather pattern which has brought unsummery clouds and cool temperatures to Victoria has broken, giving grounds for cautious optimism, the weatherman said today.

"The situation is easing, but there's still an awful lot of dirty weather over B.C. and I'm a little leery about the whole thing," said Allan McQuarrie of the dominion weather office.

A huge low-pressure trough stretching in an east-west line over southern Vancouver Island has split, carrying rain storms east to the Prairies and west over the Pacific.

18-YEAR-OLDS GET VOTE IN ONTARIO

TORONTO (CP)—Eighteen-year-olds will be able to vote in the next Ontario provincial and municipal elections, Premier William Davis announced today.

The reduction of the "age of accountability" to 18 from 21 also will give the young people the right to hold elective office and to sit on juries, the right to consume alcoholic beverages and the right to undertake legal and financial contracts.

Pay Cuts Forced On M-B's Top 60

VANCOUVER (CP) — The top 60 executives of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., Canada's largest forestry company, have taken pay cuts of up to 10 per cent for the balance of 1971, Chairman J. V. Clyne said Sunday night.

"I cut everybody over $50,000 by 10 per cent and everybody in the $35,000 to $50,000 bracket by five per cent, effective July 1, to the end of the year," Mr. Clyne said in an interview, "and that includes my pay.

"It was important morally that this be done. I felt that when the shareholders were having their dividends cut that the management should do the same in the way of salaries.

"I don't want to give the impression that we are scared about the future because that isn't so. We are succeeding in holding our own. We have always run a tight ship; we don't have any superficiality."

In addition, the Vancouver-based company has eliminated its central engineering department of 25 persons, although the net layoffs from this move are not expected to be more than four.

FACING PROBLEMS

The pay cuts at MacMillan Bloedel are just part of a general tightening among the management and salaried staffs of British Columbia's major forest firms as they face continuing market problems for their products and declining profits.

Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd., with chronic financial problems over a number of years, has reduced its salaried personnel by 15 per cent in all operations during the last four weeks. An estimate of the number of people involved was not available Sunday night.

At least two other companies have allowed attrition to reduce administrative staff. Several other firms said that while there had been no pay of staff cuts that "things are very tight."

At Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., there was a small number of staff cuts in the spring but company officials could not say how many. In many cases, it meant that planned and even authorized additions to staffs, both hourly and salaried, were not made.

Richard C. Nelson, Crown Zellerbach executive vice-president, said the company had "taken a good hard look and we eliminated some positions—we were able to do a great deal of this by attrition."

A spokesman for B.C. Forest Products Ltd. said administrative jobs had been reduced by 20 through attrition. It is understood there have been no staff or pay cuts at Canadian Forest Products Ltd.

WILSON GETS SUPPORT IN OPPOSING ECM BID

Times News Services

LONDON — Opposition Leader Harold Wilson now has a majority in his "shadow cabinet" opposed to Britain entering the Common Market on the present terms, political commentators reported during the weekend.

The development has been brought about by a change of opinion by two leading members, said David Wood, political correspondent of The Times. They are Denis Healey, shadow foreign secretary, and Anthony Crosland, shadow minister for the environment.

Healey based his change of view on Wilson's allegation that the government's 20,000-word white paper suppressed the total cost of entry, particularly in regard to food, The Times said.

Crosland was seen as supporting Wilson's insistence on the importance of keeping the Labor party united.

Healey disclosed in a television interview Sunday night that he has swung a long way since the white paper was published last Wednesday.

An another market development, Prime Minister Heath said he does not believe that British entry will drive Canada deeper into the United States orbit.

He told reporters the impression he got from talks with Prime Minister Trudeau is that Ottawa will seek widest international relations with China, Soviet Union and others.

Servant Jailed

OTTAWA (CP — A public servant was sentenced to six months in jail and another six months indeterminate after admitting he stole $23,443 in income tax rebate cheques. Roy Peter Eyamie, 21, of Ottawa, a supply and services department employee, was arrested May 31 after RCMP officers searched his home and found the 38 cheques. The supply and services department prints all federal government cheques.

Rummage Sale Nets $186 For Refugees

Pakistan refugees will get $186 worth of food, medical supplies and blankets, from a basement rummage sale at 1060 Burdett on Saturday.

Kathleen Ruff, president of Voice of Women which sponsored the sale, said the sale gave people a chance to clear up the junk in their basements as well as help the needy.

The response was good, she said.

"A tall-ho driver who was passing by, pulled in. He bought a couple of oil paintings while a wagonful of his customers sat and waited. Those tourists must have thought that Victoria is a really weird place."

German Topples Distaff Record

STUTTGART, Germany (AP) — Hildegard Janze-Falck of West Germany set a world record for the women's 800 metres Sunday with a time of one minute 58.3 seconds in the German track and field championships.

Vera Nikalic of Yugoslavia had held the record at 2:00.5 and Ann Parker of Great Britain had a listed mark of 2:01.1.

LONDON — Lord Snowdon was involved in a wine-throwing incident after he was refused permission to dance with a countess at a party he was attending with Princess Margaret, witnesses said Sunday. People who were at the Mayfair party, at which food millionaire Jack Heinz and his wife were hosts, said Peter Cazalet, 64-year-old trainer of the Queen's horses, was dancing with the Countess of Westmoreland, a 42-year-old beauty. Lord Snowden moved to cut in and Cazalet snapped: "This is not America." Snowden then threw a glass of wine over Cazalet's shirt front but the dance went on.

CAGLIARI, Sardinia — Livio Melis, 32-year-old Cagliari clothing shop owner, testified in court that his wife made him wear a home-made chastity belt every time he left the house. After his testimony the court found him not guilty of charges filed by his wife that he beat her continually and treated her with disrespect.

DAUGHTER DAWN, BILLIE AND WIFE . . . leaving La Tuna federal prison

EL PASO — Billie Sol Estes left federal prison early today, parolled after serving six years of a 15-year term. He had been convicted of mail fraud charges after his non-existent West Texas fertilizer tank empire collapsed in a national scandal nine years ago. Adhering to his plan for no fanfare, the former big dealer quickly stepped into the back seat of a waiting car, then led reporters on a high-speed chase through El Paso, losing them. Estes, 46, said he will live with his wife and family in Abilene and work on a farm owned by a brother, John Estes.

SYDNEY, Australia — Sidewalks in the suburban Bankstown shopping centre here no longer will be swept. Instead, they'll be washed and perfumed. "We want something with a pleasant, refreshing fragrance," Bankstown health inspector H. C. Hunt told reporters today. His department is considering such perfumes as honronia, rosewater and pine to add to water used in the daily sidewalk rinse.

SPRINGHILL, N.S. — An audience estimated by civic officials at up to 20,000 listened Saturday night as Canada's top female vocalist Anne Murray performed at an outdoor concert here. It was the final day of a four-day "old home week" in this Cumberland mining community honoring the Springhill-born singer who won a gold record for selling one million copies of Snowbird.

TILLSONBURG, Ont. — George Sarson broke the world record for the number of parachute jumps made in 24 hours, making 210 jumps from midnight Friday night to 11 p.m. Saturday and bettering the old record of 200 set by Steve Sutton of Toronto.

Mayor Pushes Tax Relief For Elderly

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis has written all Social Credit members of the legislature asking them to consider some form of tax relief for elderly house owners.

He said discussions with other municipal officials, "suggest" increasing property taxes are proving a hardship for older homeowners in many parts of B.C.

"Some form of tax increase deferral is but one area which merits consideration. A supplementary homeowner grant for those over 65 years of age is another. Safeguards with respect to eligibility and length of time during which a home must be owned and occupied by a senior citizen could be established with relative ease.

"I am taking the liberty of forwarding this letter to each government member of the provincial legislature, respectfully requesting that he or she carefully consider the question and review it with municipal representatives in his own community.

"This form of tax relief can be granted only through provincial legislation. I remain most hopeful that the 1972 legislative session will be remembered as the one which finally recognized the problem and acted to correct it," Curtis said.

BBC to Show Gray Film

A film on B.C. by Victoria film-maker Wilf Gray will be shown in color by the British Broadcasting Corp. July 18.

The Last Frontier, a one-hour production, includes some natural and human history of this province, as well as a look at how people live today.

The film is to be shown as part of the BBC 2 series The World Around Us.

Cable Firm Gets Okay

Davin Enterprises Ltd., has been granted a licence renewal to Sept. 30 of next year for its Saanich cable television system, it was announced today in Ottawa.

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission said a dispute among Davin shareholders is affecting management of the system. The commission expected the dispute would be resolved so that the system would be capably managed.

In Victoria, Davin co-owners Dave Paterson and Vince Mielen said today arrangements have been made for Tele-Tech Services Ltd., of which Mielen is part-owner, to purchase Paterson's shares. Approval would be sought for this from the CRTC, they said.

Mielen said the system now serves about 300 houses in Saanich, west of Patricia Bay Highway and roughly north of Judah. He said plans envisage adding 1,000 subscribers in six months.

Joker's Note Forces Jet To Land

SHANNON, Ireland (AP) — In what an airline spokesman called "a horrible practical joke," a TWA jetliner bound for Washington with 135 passengers was forced into making an emergency landing Sunday by a hijack note threatening to blow up the plane.

"The whole thing was a complete hoax," said the spokesman for Trans World Airlines after Shannon police and security men found no explosives or weapons in a search of the Boeing 707 and its passengers.

The note was discovered in a toilet compartment just after the plane left London with two U.S. marshals riding as guards. The message said "desperate men" aboard would blow up the plane unless they were flown to Algiers, Cairo and Hanoi.

The pilot, Capt. Roland Smith, decided to land at Shannon for a search. The big jet circled the airport for an hour dumping fuel while ambulances and fire units stood by on the ground.

The airliner eventually took off for Washington but an elderly couple refused to continue the trip.

Police arrested no one and said they had no indication who left the note.

Aussie Retains Tennis Title

NEWPORT, Wales (AP) — Ken Rosewall of Australia defeated Roger Taylor of England 6-1, 9-8 Saturday to win $3,600 and retain the men's singles title in the Green Shield tennis championships.

Virginia Wade of Britain won the women's title Friday.

MARCH FUNDS LAGGING

In the two months since the Miles for Millions march $55,581 has been collected, acting chairman Bob Ballam said tolay.

Ballam said it's estimated about $80,000 was pledged and that most of the money will be in by the end of the summer.

He said the fact school is out means children who took part in the march aren't being reminded by teachers to get their money in.

Proceeds can be mailed or delivered to the Miles for Millions office in the student Union Building at the University of Victoria, or deposited at any chartered bank in Victoria. Some banks may not now be accepting pledge money, Ballam said.
